Trend Is Evident Throughout Region

Republican Areas Register Democratic Votes

Early returns from Elk Grove Township showed the same dramatic voting pattern for this area as was reflected in all of suburban Cook County — apparently strong Republican areas were registering strong Democratic votes.

In an apparent effort to get in on the hotly contested races for Cook County state's attorney and the race for governor on the Democratic side, substantial numbers of Republicans were voting in the county and state contests.

Initial midday returns from selected precincts in Elk Grove Township, for example, show that some areas had actually reversed completely in party choice among voters.

IN PRECINCT 5, Lions Park in Mount Prospect, Democrats and Republicans were splitting the ballot requests half and half.

In Precinct 20, Clearmont School in Elk Grove Village, early checks of voter preferences showed that of 100 early voters, only 18 had selected to vote on the Republican side.

At Brentwood School, Precinct 30, some 80 per cent of the early voters were casting votes for Democratic candidates and a similar 80 per cent margin for the Democrats was being recorded at Elk Grove High School, Precinct 47.

At Precinct 58, Juliette Low School, in southern Arlington Heights, early reports had voters selecting the Democratic ballot over the Republican candidates by a margin of two-to-one.

FIRST RETURNS on the race in the 3rd House District race from Wheeling township showed Mrs. Virginia Macdonald with an early lead.

With 14 out of 98 precincts reporting, the initial results were Mrs. Macdonald, 1454; Donald Totten, 710; and Roland Meyer, 429.

With 40 of 98 precincts reported in Wheeling Township at 7:30 p.m. the results are: Simon, 1,337; Walker, 3,389; Berg, 578; Hanrahan, 2,035; Moore, 2,162.

Candidate reaction to the initial returns was spotty, but the candidates seemed to regard the first, early returns as optimistic as is the nature of any candidate. Roland Meyer, candidate in a stiff race for a seat in the Illinois House from the 3rd District watched the early returns come drifting in and said . . . "I can't tell you yet, but I know that they (the other candidates) will know they have been in a fight."

Hanrahan's The Man, Say Area Voters

Edward V. Hanrahan, based on early returns last night, appeared to be the Democrats' candidate for state's attorney.

With 492 of 3,206 precincts reporting at 7:30 p.m. in the city of Chicago, the unslated state's attorney held a commanding 46,586 to 31,951 lead over the organization's candidate, Raymond K. Berg.

Donald Page Moore, running as an independent Democrat, was running third with 18,493 votes.

In the suburbs, Hanrahan was substantially ahead of his two opponents with only 22 precincts reporting, Hanrahan had tallied 1,116 votes with Moore second with 384 and Berg third with 250 votes.

Democrats who filtered in and out of the county clerk's third floor office in the County Building reportedly were muttering, "Hanrahan's the people's choice."

For Berg, the Democratic organization's regular choice, it appeared that it would be a long night indeed. Berg's greatest strength had been expected to be the city, where Mayor Richard Daley's army of political workers had been expected to give him a substantial lead.

Additional early returns showed Paul Simon running ahead of maverick Democrat Daniel Walker. With 442 precincts reporting in Chicago and the suburbs, Simon had tallied 44,908 votes to 36,979 for Walker.

A few scattered suburban returns, however, indicated Walker was running ahead of Simon in the rest of Cook County.

THOUSANDS OF SUBURBAN voters cast their ballots yesterday in neighborhood schools and other polling places in the Illinois primary election. A surprise switch by many voters to the Democratic side of the ballot made the results in the suburbs even more important to county and state races than usual.

Hansen's Early Reaction: 'Fantastic'

"Fantastic, fantastic," was all Carl Hansen, could say Tuesday night as he watched early returns come in at Elk Grove Township Republican headquarters in Mount Prospect.

Hansen, the township Republican committeeman, watched with obvious satisfaction as the township endorsed state representative candidates gained a wide early margin over Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer.

With 12 early precincts in, party regulars Virginia Macdonald and Donald Totten each had rolled up 2-1 margins over Meyer, and Hansen was confident the margins would continue.

"It'll be 2-1 by the time we're done," he said. "The only way Totten could foul this up is in his own township."

"We estimated that Meyer spent at least $30,000 in mailing — which is a lot of money to spend on a campaign," Hansen said. "Maybe this will show the mayors ought not to get involved in partisan politics."

Told later that Totten's Schaumburg Township was showing equal majorities for its Republican committeeman, Hansen declared, "We're in, Totten and Macdonald have won."

With 15 precincts reporting, Totten had 1,269 votes; Mrs. Macdonald 1,247; and Meyer, 573.

Looking at the early returns Hansen noted there had been "massive switchovers of Republicans to the Democratic side . . . Now all we have to do is get them back in the fall to the Republican side."

As more precinct totals rolled in precinct captains and party workers appeared pleased at the results but somewhat surprised at the cross over. "It's been amazing," said one precinct worker of the voter crossover.

'Diehard' Republicans Hurt: Chesney

"Unbelievable," was the only description Elk Grove Township Democratic Committeeman Chester Chesney could find last night for the results of his party's primary in the township.

"This was no Democratic vote," he said. "This ruling that let people cross over gave the diehard Republicans the chance to embarrass the party."

A lot of these people came over just to vote for Walker and Hanrahan, and the Republican party took over lock stock and barrel.

As the returns came in quickly, Chesney said he had expected between 1500 and 1800 Democratic votes. It was obvious the turnout would far exceed his expectations.

He said he expected the state's attorney's race to be closely contested in the suburbs and added he was not surprised at the strong showing by independent Donald Page Moore. However, he said, "this Walker situation is unbelievable."

This Morning In Brief

The State

Sen. Edmund Muskie got off to a quick early lead over Eugene McCarthy in his bid to score a comeback in the Illinois primary. Early returns, most of them from the Chicago area, gave Muskie 14,504 votes or 65 per cent.

Three precinct election judges were arrested on vote tampering charges and later released on $1,000 bond each for a March 29 hearing after an investigation of machines at a precinct polling place in Chicago showed votes had been registered at the time it opened. In another incident, a poll watcher for Daniel Walker, independent Democratic candidate for governor, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct, breach of the peace, and interfering with an election.

The Nation

With Chief Justice Warren Burger dissenting, the Supreme Court rules 6-1 that state and county laws requiring any lengthy residence in order to vote are unconstitutional. The decision suggested a 30-day waiting period may be enough.

Democratic Voting Rises

Sturdy Republican voters in the suburbs turned out in nearly record numbers yesterday to vote for the candidates of their choice — except this time in one of the most surprising developments in Cook County politics, the choice for many suburban voters was to vote Democratic.

Early checks of precincts throughout a five township area of Northwest Cook County told a story of unexpected changes in the voting patterns of traditionally Republican strongholds.

In almost unbelievable terms, some election judges reported that voters were selecting Democratic party ballots over Republican ballots by margins of 6-to-1 and 4-to-1.

Basis of the massive switchovers was thought to be the hotly contested race for Cook County State's Attorney and the equally fast race for governor on the Democratic side.

While Republicans were quick to point out yesterday that the sudden switch in some precincts to Democratic ballots does not mean anything in terms of the November general elections, it is clear that something was making voters change parties.

Regardless of the immediate meaning, it was apparent as early as yesterday afternoon that changes were afoot, and that the changes were going to affect the total Republican vote from the suburbs and perhaps alter the final tally for Cook County-wide races.

A survey of five townships yesterday afternoon pinpointed these areas of voter switchover:

—Wheeling Township. In heavily Republican Scarsdale, Precinct 14, judges had handed out about equal amounts of Republican and Democratic ballots by noon, an unprecedented event for that area. Precinct 23, Surry Ridge, normally a 75-per cent Republican area now going Democratic by 50-per cent. Precinct 52, Virginia Terrace, was going 80 per cent Democratic instead of 90 per cent Republican in previous years.

Similar survey in the early afternoon of heavily Republican Maine Township also showed a reversal of normal primary voting patterns:

Five polling places checked by Herald reporters registered a total of 300 Democratic voters compared to 170 voters in the Republican primary. In the far south side 41st Precinct, a normal four to one GOP-Democratic vote ratio was reversed. In the south side 16th Precinct, judges reported heavy Democratic voting by young adults. A normal two to one Republican vote there has been changed to 84 Democratic versus 59 GOP votes at about 1:30 p.m.

On the heavily Republican near west side of Des Plaines, the margins still were with Democratic party voters who were out-ballooting Republican party faithfuls four to three.

In Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove Townships the story was essentially the same. Sudden changes to the Democratic side were reported early in the day by election judges and although some fluctuations were reported in the late evening when husbands returned from work, the pattern continued.

At Schaumburg High School, receiving the votes for much of the center of Schaumburg, the Republicans and Democrats were about half and half. In Hoffman Estates Democrats were leading Republican voters by two and a half to one. At Fox School in Hanover Park, 41 Democrats had voted compared to 15 Republicans.

In Palatine Township, in heavily Republican Precinct 3 in Inverness, three quarters of the early ballots went Demo-

Officials Meet With Dial-A-Ride

Elk Grove Village plans for a village bus service got some help from a good source yesterday — the developer of a successful similar venture in New Jersey.

John Ford, vice president of Dial-a-Vehicle-Enterprise Systems of Haddonfield, N.J., spent the day conferring with village officials about development of a bus service for the village.

Ford's Dial-a-Ride service in Haddonfield was the first of a series of projects which involve providing a combination bus-cab service for use of residents in a fairly small area. The Haddonfield project began as a venture serving an area of about 33,000 people and is soon to be expanded to serve an area with a population of nearly 150,000. Village officials are considering development of similar service here, one which would probably involve use of a small bus with a flexible route which could be deviated from to pick up passengers at their homes.

FORD MET WITH two members of the village board's bus committee yesterday and explained how the Haddonfield project works.

Buses used in Haddonfield follow a general route but deviate from it to pick up residents who call in for a ride, Ford said. "You hit a guedpost at predetermined times, but you deviate from it when you have to," he explained.

Ford said the Haddonfield project has three base fare rates — 40, 50 and 60 cents. The rates vary according to several factors, he said, with the higher rates for the pick-up service.

In Haddonfield the 50-cent rate provides the break-even point, he said. "A community such as this (Elk Grove Village) should be able to operate on a break-even basis," he added.

BUT TRUSTEE Ed Kenna noted that the 50-cent rate is probably too high for the type of service proposed for the village. A 25-cent rate would be better, with the higher rate possibly going for the dial-a-ride service, he suggested.

Ford also noted that the use of small buses rather than full-sized ones helps the service greatly.

"We don't want to run a big bus down a regular route and have it empty all the time," he said. "Psychologically people see something wrong with it."

Ford and committee members also discussed the goals of a village bus service, which Trustee Nanci Vanderweel said could be in operation by summer.

Kenna noted that the immediate goal of a bus system would be "to provide an internal transportation system at a reasonable cost with a flexible schedule."

The long-range goal would be to expand it to include peripheral centers such as O'Hare Airport, Woodfield and commuter railroad stations, he said.

Kenna noted that some persons feel inclusion of Woodfield in the route "would drive the sales tax dollar out of town... But I don't believe we would be driving any out that isn't already out."

Board To Buy Civil Rights Insurance

The Board of Education of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 decided Monday night to buy civil rights insurance for board members and district employees.

By a vote of 5-2 the board decided to buy the insurance for three years at a premium of $6,000.

The insurance will protect board members and district employees as individuals from court judgments brought against them if their actions are found to have violated someone's civil or Constitutional rights.

Board members Erwin Poklaci and Sharrie Hildebrandt voted against buying the insurance. Poklaci said he did not think the board had studied the issue carefully enough, adding, "This protects us only if we act in haste and do something that will get us in trouble. I don't personally think I need this policy."

Supt. James Erviti told the board purchase of the insurance was recently made legal by the legislature, saying, "I think in view of the many inquiries that are being made to school districts about legal rights, I think this would be desirable."

THE DISTRICT ITSELF has always been protected by liability insurance, but in lawsuits board members and administrators are often named as individuals, Erviti said.

He pointed out that the board employs an attorney whose advice is "supposed to keep us out of trouble. But none of us is perfect. We can make mistakes and do something that will impair someone's rights."

Also at Monday's meeting the board voted 5-2 to postpone action on participating in cooperative purchasing operated by the State of Illinois and the Northwest Education Cooperative. Poklaci and Hildebrandt again voted against the action.

Board members asked Board Atty. Frank Hines to study the cooperative purchasing arrangements, in which several governmental units take bids for items and buy together to get an improved price because of volume. Several board members expressed concern about what would happen if a board member held interest in a company that was dealing with other school districts and ended up selling items to his own district because of a cooperative arrangement.

Advisory Unit To Be Complete By April 3

Appointments are expected to be complete by April 3 for the citizen's advisory committee which will study boundary changes for the new Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 junior high school in Des Plaines.

So far appointments have been received from six of the district's 16 elementary school parent's associations, according to Supt. James Erviti. The district wants each school represented on the committee, which will redraw the attendance boundaries for the junior high schools to accommodate Friendship Junior High, which will open in 1973.

Also, three members of the original citizen's committee which recommended building the school have asked to be appointed to the new committee. Board members said they hope to formally approve the committee and give it directions at the April 3 board meeting.

Waltman To Take Leave To Work On Doctorate

Albeon Waltman, assistant superintendent for personnel in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, will be taking a sabbatical leave to work on his doctorate sometime in the next few years.

Waltman, who has been with the district as a teacher and administrator for 10 years, will start the year-long sabbatical sometime between July, 1973 and July, 1974 depending on his progress on work toward the degree.

Waltman said he will be working on the degree at the University of Illinois. During the 1969-70 school year, Waltman served as the district's acting superintendent. After Supt. James Erviti joined the district he assumed his present post.

When the board of education granted permission for the sabbatical, which will allow Waltman half his salary while he is away, Board Member Allen Sparks said, "I'd like to comment that Mr. Waltman has done a fine job for the district in the past and I'm sure the district will benefit by his leave."

The last sabbatical leave granted by the district was to Robert Brower, assistant superintendent for instruction. He is expected to return to the district this summer and is expected to serve as principal of Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines.

Larsen To Head Finance Committee

Schaumburg Village Trustee Jack Larsen was named chairman of the village board finance committee last week, filling a post vacant since the resignation of Trustee Gordon Mullins last January.

Larsen formerly headed the village clean environment and health committees, and was responsible for health, safety and ecological programs.

In appointing Larsen to the finance committee chairmanship, Mayor Robert O. Atcher noted he is responsible for budgeting for a major department at Motorola Inc., communications division, Schaumburg. "As consequence, I think he'll do an outstanding job," said Atcher.

Larsen's responsibilities in environment, health and safety will now be handled by Trustee Peter Justen, newest member of the village board. Justen has not yet been named to any other committees, but Atcher appointed him to head the environmental and health units.

New Court Date Set For Roselle Woman

A 36-year-old Roselle woman is in custody at the Cook County Jail after Schaumburg police arrested her Friday for failing to appear in court to answer a bogus check cashing charge.

Hildegard Hurley, 225 Park Ln., Roselle, was arrested outside the Schaumburg branch of the Cook County Circuit Court after she had appeared on another court matter.

She originally was arrested Feb. 11 and charged with deceptive practice after allegedly cashing checks totaling over $100 in the Schaumburg area.

Miss Hurley was scheduled to appear in court on March 8 to answer those charges. She did not appear.

Her new court date has been set for March 22 in Schaumburg. Bond was set at $2,000.

C&NW Sale Plan Clears Major Hurdle

by LEA TONKIN

The proposal for employee ownership of the Chicago and North Western Railway (C&NW), billed as a plan "unique in railroad history," cleared a major hurdle this week.

The Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) approved on Monday the bid by Chicago-based Northwest Industries to sell its transportation assets to an employee organization. Larry S. Provo, C&NW president heads the Northwest Employees Transportation Corp. (NETCO) which seeks to purchase the C&NW.

The next step in this employee purchase plan would be the acceptance of the ICC conditions for the sale by both parties and the commission's approval of the NETCO stock prospectus. The ICC requires that Northwest Industries guarantee approximately $6.5 million owed by the C&NW in its share of joint obligations with other railroads.

THE COMMISSION did not, however, go along with the proposal by an ICC commissioner last fall that the parent firm be responsible for the railway's debt for a 10 year period following the sale. Ben W. Heineman, president of Northwest Industries, had said this condition to the sale would be unacceptable.

No comment was available from Provo or the Northwest Industries spokesmen yesterday, as they considered the ICC decision.

If the ICC conditions of the sale are acceptable to both parties, NETCO would assume approximately $415 million of the railway's debt. NETCO indicated it would offer railway stock to some 14,000 employees if the sale is completed. The maximum purchase would be limited by an employee's annual salary. No employee could buy more than $100,000 worth of stock. Provo said he plans to buy $100,000 of the NETCO stock.

NETCO officials see employee ownership of the C&NW as a means to generate more enthusiasm among workers and in turn, more profits. The ICC termed this move to buy up railway assets as "unique in railroad history."

SELLING THE railway will take a burden from the shoulders of profit-minded Northwest Industries. Chairman Heineman who several years ago earned credit for rescuing the C&NW, made no secret of his desire to get out of the railroad business. The small profit margin for 1971 was $4.4 million on revenues of approximately $340 million.

"To put it simply I've become discontented with the railroad industry and its long range outlook under present circumstances because its rate of return is disgustingly inadequate," he said earlier. Northwest Industries also has interests in chemicals and industrial goods.

The ICC considered NETCO's chances for making a profit on the operation of the C&NW before making its decision. The commission concluded the railway would remain marginally profitable under employee ownership, but it might have a better chance than if it were retained by Northwest Industries.

THE PROPOSAL by NETCO to purchase the C&NW was first announced in October, 1970. NETCO directors in addition to Provo are Richard Freeman and Robert Brooker. Freeman is vice president of legal affairs for the railway. Brooker is a former chairman of Marcor and has had experience in employee stock ownership plans with both Sears, Roebuck and Co., and Montgomery Ward.

C&NW commuter and freight lines cover an 11,500 mile line. If plans for employee ownership are completed it will be one of the largest such operations in the country.

Bakalis Proposes Study Of Twelve Month School

Proposed legislation developed by State School Supt. Michael J. Bakalis exploring the use of 12-month school year plans in Illinois has won approval from the school problems commission.

The Bakalis proposal calls for funding local school district studies to determine the feasibility of adopting the 12-month school year. It also would provide financial aid to help districts during the transition period.

An appropriation of $150,000 is being requested to fund the local studies with a maximum grant of $2,450 per study.

According to Donald Eslick, associate superintendent for governmental relations in Bakalis' office, the proposal does not advocate any single 12-month plan or even state that a 12-month plan is desirable for every district.

"What we are saying," Eslick explained, "is every school district should be given the means to determine if a 12-month plan would benefit the educational process in their area. And if the decision is yes, we would provide financial help during the transition period."

Bakalis was encouraged by the districts' interest. "We feel the 12-month program is a more rational — and economical — use of expensive school facilities," he said. "To leave schools empty or underused for three months a year while many districts are forced to institute double shifts to accommodate students during the regular academic year makes no sense."

"This does not expand the school year for individual students," Bakalis said. "It just means that traditional vacation breaks could be staggered or spread out over the school year."

For three years now a representative from 10 school districts in the Northwest suburbs have been meeting monthly — a meeting of the chiefs something like an Indian powwow.

The group, the Northwest Education Cooperative, was formed partly as an alternative to district consolidation. At that time, many school officials were not ready for all of the boundary and administrative changes consolidation entails. Yet they could see advantages to uniting their efforts to solve mutual problems and share government funded projects. Districts 15, 21, 23, 25, 26, 54, 57, 59, 211 and 214, organized the cooperative.

Looking back over the cooperative's record, some school officials have become disenchanted with the whole idea. The Dist. 54 School Board was disenchanted enough to drop out altogether. "The cooperative hasn't done enough," they say. Or "We're not getting enough for our money." The cost ranges from $1,582 to $7,172, based on student enrollment.

It is interesting to note that if you ask the disenchanted about a specific NEC project — say the elementary vocational education program which trains educators in career oriented curriculum or the data processing program which provides computer services — he is not likely to condemn it. But, he says he wants more.

PROPOSERS OF THE cooperative will argue you only get as much as you put in. They say the cooperative can't do more unless the school districts are willing to give more. Even some of the ex-member Dist. 54 officials admit the logic to this argument.

What it all really boils down to is, "is it worth the effort? Can the leaders of nine school districts really put aside their local interests and cooperate? And if they do cooperate, is there anything worthwhile they can do?"

The second question brings up one of the stickiest problems in the cooperative operation. Gloria Kinney, director of NEC, is a fine administrator, but can any one person provide leadership for nine superintendents and nine school boards? The NEC director has no real authority over the school officials and in a sense can only be an organizer and a cheerleader.

In addition the mere size of the cooperative and all of the underlining operational problems that come with it, have bogged the cooperative down with bureaucratic trivia. The NEC members recognize the problem and have hired a consultant to come in and straighten it out. With a more efficient administrative structure, the members hope to be able to spend more time on education projects.

WHETHER THE cooperative will become more efficient remains to be seen, but the members should at least give the consultant a try. Pulling out just at the time reform begins, seems to be regressive at best.

If the NEC members do get together, can they do anything worthwhile? The answer can only be yes.

Many of the cooperative's projects would be too expensive for any one district to operate. Together they can save money. But more than that, they should be able to benefit from each others' experience and wisdom. After all no one district is an island. They are all in the same business, and in the case of the high school districts and their feeder elementary districts, directly related.

With cooperation established, the districts have to find projects that will benefit the greatest number of members. Recognizing that not every district will want to participate in every project, the cooperative now operates on a volunteer basis. Inevitably some districts benefit more than others because they have less resources at their own disposal.

What is needed is a willingness to help out a weaker district and a willingness to work for the benefit of the group. Many districts are already doing this. But for success, more districts are just going to have to put out more.

Students Can Get Career Counseling

The Community Counseling Center at Harper College in Palatine could help high school seniors and their parents decide future college or job goals, according to Gary Rankin, center director.

"We can help the high school senior with two decisions," explained Rankin. "Should he go to college or not? If so, what type of college? If not, what kind of occupation would be advisable?"

Rankin gives a hypothetical example showing how the center can help when parents and student disagree:

"Fred was receiving pressure about entering college in a field of his father's choice. Although Fred liked music, he had done well in other subjects also, and Dad thought he should go to law school. In fact, Dad said he wouldn't pay for a private music school."

"Fred's high school counselor told him it was time to decide on a college."

"Fred's Mom, tired of the hassle, contacted the Harper College Community Counseling Center. Tests of Fred's abilities, interests, aptitudes and personality characteristics were given."

"THE CENTER COUNSELOR explained that Fred was highly motivated toward a career in music, and that there was more to consider in making a career decision than just ability."

"Dad finally agreed, and Fred chose a music school from among those listed in the center's large college catalog collection."

There is no obligation for an initial counseling session at the center, according to Rankin. If a student decides to take the recommended tests, fees could run from $60 to $85, he said.

The first battery of tests help in showing ability and aptitude toward college or an occupation.

Additional tests could indicate the type of college, or the kind of occupation which would best suit the student.

If for some reason a student has been unable to complete high school, the General Educational Development (GED) tests administered at Harper Center make possible the equivalent of a high school diploma.

To obtain further information or make an appointment, telephone Harper College at 359-4200, extension 343, or visit the Community Counseling Center at the Algonquin and Roselle road campus in Palatine.

Tennis: Newest Craze For Sports-Mind

by DOUG RAY
It was once considered the white pants, North Shore sport enjoyed by affluent country clubbers for three or four sunny months out of the year.

Tennis was the delicate pastime for the exclusive and the average sports buff ignored the game of battering a small white ball across a waist-high net.

A decade or two ago, tennis was in the same obscure position as golf, with the majority of people knowing little about the game because there were few places to learn.

Then speculators built public golf courses to the delight of the recreation minded public who took an avid interest in the sport. Today many of the same people are involved in tennis as new indoor facilities are making the game accessible on a year-round basis.

TENNIS IS THE newest craze among the sports-minded and its popularity has spurred public schools to expand their programs. Park districts are offering lessons and the watchful eye of television is bringing the professional into the average home in living color.

In the Northwest suburbs, tennis facilities are being built to accommodate the new interest. Three indoor tennis complexes have been constructed within the past year and another is scheduled to open in May.

The elaborate clubs are equipped with sauna baths, whirlpools, lounges and even nurseries, so that the mother doesn't need a babysitter while she plays.

"It all happened eight or ten years ago," said Steve Morgan of the Barrington Bath and Tennis Club, which was one of the first indoor facilities in the area. "We knew it was going to boom. People developed an interest."

MORGAN AND HIS partners transformed a Barrington corn field into an indoor tennis facility with a thriving business.

Requiring a small membership fee and an hourly rate for "court time," the club now has about 500 members. The Barrington club has 4 indoor courts and six outdoor courts making the sport a year-round activity.

It costs between $8 and $11 for an hour of court time, depending upon whether it is "prime time" or "non-prime time," Morgan said. Evenings during the week command a higher price as do the daylight hours on the weekends and holidays. A full-time professional gives lessons for $9 a half hour.

The rates are about the same at all the indoor tennis clubs.

Morgan said "many factors have contributed to the added interest" in tennis. "Television brought the best players into focus," he said. "The pro ranks opened up and people learned about the game."

THE RIGHT TENNIS Club opened in Schaumburg last year and has a membership of 1,200, mostly Northwest suburban residents. "The oldest member is 69 and the youngest 7 or 8," said Mickey Wright, club professional and manager. Like other clubs, family memberships are offered.

"The first ones (tennis clubs) started a few years ago," Wright said, and now there are more than 20 in the Chicago area. "Eight more are planned next year," he added.

The Right Club is air-conditioned so that players have controlled temperatures year-round. "It's our personal conviction that people are spoiled after playing indoors all winter," Wright said. "The courts are faster and harder (outdoors) and lighting is poorer."

"Tennis is what golf was 10 to 15 years ago," he said. "Everyone is getting into the sport."

HE ATTRIBUTED the rise in interest to the "attitude toward physical fitness and tennis takes less time to play than other sports."

Jim Doessel, manager and professional at the Northbrook Tennis Club which opened Oct. 1, said the sport "is enjoying an eight per cent growth each year." Adding that this area "is one of the best tennis spots in the state," Doessel said "more women are now playing than men."

Of the eight indoor courts at Northbrook, four will be air-conditioned. "When it's too cold or rainy, people still want to play," he said.

The River Trails Tennis Club near Mount Prospect is in its first year of operation and already enjoys "about 85 per cent full-time usage," according to Nelson Campbell, club manager.

"THE FIRST GUYS who brought the game indoors were considered real dreamers," Campbell said. "What's this business of playing inside?"

But, according to Campbell, "People liked the idea" and indoor facilities were planned throughout the area.

The game lacked interest by the general public, Campbell said, because "There was an image problem. It was a lush sport for the old line country club set."

Campbell said high schools developed better programs and the Illinois High School Athletic Association (IHSAA) loosened the restrictions on athletes so they could play year-round.

"The indoor courts allow the younger players," Campbell said, "to reach the top of the sport. Chicago can now compete with California."

ABOUT 1,000 LOCAL residents are members of the River Trails club, Campbell said, and many of them are women.

The Arlington Indoor Tennis Club is scheduled to open this spring in Palatine featuring carpeted tennis courts in an air-conditioned building.

Busing: It Hasn't Worked

There are better ways to equalize educational opportunity and to assure every American a decent public education than through busing.

Eighteen years ago, in the 1954 U.S. Supreme Court decision which ruled segregated public education unconstitutional, the germ of busing — i.e. busing children to maintain racial balance in schools — was born.

With other court decisions, busing has become the major method of integrating schools where residential segregation has isolated the races into separate schools.

If busing — and we don't mean ordinary, in-district busing — is judged on popularity, it has failed miserably in bringing black and white together. It has mobilized white (and some black) opinion against it and has led to the popularity of busing as a 1972 Presidential campaign issue.

It's also failed to improve the overall quality of education for students trapped in inferior schools. For the handful of black students who have been bused to superior white schools, perhaps there has been a benefit: for the thousands of black kids trapped in inferior ghetto schools, nothing has changed.

Quality education? It was supposed to be a goal of the 1954 decision. Busing, however, has not worked as a tool to better educate children.

Integration, in fact is only one way that black and white children will ever obtain a quality education. Money is one tool which can advance education. Changing the basis of public education from the present unfair property tax basis would be a good first step, as the California Supreme Court recently suggested.

Beyond money, however, there must be a basic integration in society before we shall see the problems of segregation solved. Housing segregation patterns must change, before meaningful integration of schools will happen.

For the short term, however, there are some acceptable approaches. A desegregation plan recently unveiled by Michael Bakalis, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, speaks of a number of methods, with busing as only one item on the list. "Magnet schools," which attract students across district lines because of the quality education offered, is one possibility.

For the present time, however, we must live with busing, even if it has no direct effect on the Northwest suburbs. President Nixon's recently announced moratorium on new busing does not block busing where it is presently taking place. Busing as a doctrine developed by the courts will not vanish overnight.

In the Northwest suburbs, busing is an emotional issue, much as it is across the rest of the country. The spectre of children being bused 15 or 20 miles a day, just to obey the law as developed by an obscure judge somewhere, is painful for any suburbanite to consider.

For us, the price tag for an alternative to busing must be considered. There will be no easy or inexpensive answer to the lack of quality education in certain areas in America — it is up to us to foot the bill for future generations in this country. Otherwise, busing may remain the alternative.

Busing could be a worthwhile issue this election year. We would be well served if all of the Presidential candidates would sit down together and look at options to busing. If the candidates would realize that education, not busing, is at the root of the problem, perhaps we'd begin moving towards a solution.

Snow's A Cash Crop

Farmers used to mark time during the long winter months, maybe interrupting routine maintenance chores to tune into the noon livestock report.

Today, more and more of them anxiously await the weekend weather forecast, for more and more of them are beginning to harvest a new winter crop.

That "crop" is snow — or rather, the townspeople who, in growing numbers, are going for winter sports in a big way and are looking for new areas in which to enjoy them.

Combine this demand for snow with the already slippery business of farming profitably in a suburban area and you have a situation like that described by Bernard Kinney, a member of the Burkhardt, Wis. Cooperative Assn., who last year turned his 240-acre homestead farm into a winter recreation area with snowmobile trails and sliding hills.

"In the whole township I don't think there's a dozen farmers milking cows," he says.

Harvesting this new "crop" is more than a matter of merely putting out a welcome sign, notes the Midland Cooperator. As with other kinds of farming, it requires investment in a myriad of items: A tractor equipped to pack snow on hills for skiing or sliding. Tow ropes. Trail markers. A converted barn or farmhouse with facilities for dispensing hot coffee and cocoa. And advertising.

Next time you complain about the snow that makes winter in the city such a pain, remind yourself that at least it's good for the farmer.

Abortion: Another Side

EDITOR'S NOTE: Abortions, as an issue of local interest and controversy, has survived the political races you've read about elsewhere in this morning's Herald.

We're continuing to receive a flood of letters on the topic. Two weeks ago, we ran a "Public's Issues" column composed primarily of anti-abortion letters; today, Dolores Hentschel of Arlington Heights writes in favor of abortions.

by DOLORES HENTSCHEL

Last September, as a member of the Northwest Suburban Chapter of Planned Parenthood, I began speaking to various groups on subjects including abortion. Even when I was not specifically invited to speak about abortions, I received many questions on this controversial subject. In preparation, I have done a great deal of research into all aspects of abortion, and I feel compelled to respond to the letters published two weeks ago in "The Public's Issues."

Although Planned Parenthood had never been involved in abortion referrals, last year when abortions were being performed legally in Illinois, hundreds of women came to us for help in legally terminating their pregnancies. At the end of those ten days, we realized that we needed to take a position.

Planned Parenthood's goals include eliminating unwanted pregnancies by making effective means of fertility control, including contraception, voluntary sterilization, and voluntary, legal abortion, available to all who seek such service. We currently refer about 700 women per month to New York, where abortion is legal.

We believe that consistent use of effective means of contraception is the preferable way to avoid unwanted pregnancies, but because of the current state of contraceptive technology, we feel that abortion is a necessary backup service in cases of contraceptive failure.

No woman should be forced by the state to carry an unwanted pregnancy to full term because the method of birth control which she used was imperfect. Once a woman has decided to avoid procreation, that decision should be honored over all accidents. We believe that to deny a woman freedom of choice over her body's reproductive process is to deny her a fundamental, constitutionally supported right. It is on these grounds that the Illinois Abortion Law will be judged by the U.S. Supreme Court.

I reject the premise that "every woman who has ever carried a child has had a moment during her pregnancy and 'not wanted' it." Although there were indeed times during my pregnancies when I was uncomfortable, frightened and even in pain, never once did I "not want" my babies. I had consciously chosen to conceive those children and I would have gone through hell to have them.

Mrs. Schneider ("Public's Issues," March 8) states that a woman runs four times the risk of dying from complications of an abortion than from childbirth. This statement is completely false. Legal abortions performed by medically trained personnel are in fact eight to twenty times safer than pregnancy. In the U.S. there will be 28 maternal deaths for every 100,000 births. (In underdeveloped countries this figure runs as high as 500 for 100,000.) The maternal mortality rate has been reduced by 50 per cent in New York since abortion was legalized there. In Czechoslovakia, where abortion is legal, there were no deaths per 140,000 abortions.

Mrs. Schneider also refers to the "large number of would-be mothers" who require post-abortion psychiatric care. She gives no figures, so I would like to dispel this myth about abortion. Studies show that approximately 74 per cent of the women who undergo legal abortions in New York show absolutely no remorse. Our experience in Chicago is that very few women take advantage of post-abortion counseling which is available because they have no need for it!

Putting facts and figures aside, we are ultimately faced with the moral question of abortion. Is the potential life of the developing fetus less important, equally important or more important than the existing life of the woman and perhaps the rest of her family? I maintain that this vital question is one which no person, and no agency, religious or political, is wise enough to answer for any other person. Nor have they the right to point a self-righteous finger at any woman and order her to bring an unwanted life into this world because they deem the potential life of greater value than the existing human beings.

Inevitably we will be asked if we accept abortion during — let us arbitrarily say, the first 12 weeks — don't we then run the risk of going down the path to euthanasia, genetic control and eventually the "master race" philosophy, complete with its gas chambers?

This has been referred to as the "camel's nose" argument. This rationale denies both the ability of society and individuals to set arbitrary lines and the ability to enforce those lines. We live with many arbitrary lines — a person cannot drive a car until he is 16, cannot vote until 18, cannot buy liquor until 21. Permitting abortion during the earlier stages of pregnancy in no way indicates that babies born with birth defects will be killed, or that senior citizens will be done away with.

Although I am rarely asked to defend my stand on abortion in respect to my religious views, I did have to consider them. This is one area in which I cannot seek to impose my personal views on any other individual, just as I cannot be forced to accept his. But I do need to think about God — as I perceive and understand Him — and I must justify abortion in those terms. If I am wrong, if my God-given intelligence has gone astray, then I alone shall have to answer to my God for my mistake.

I believe that God created man as an active and responsible agent in the world. Every day, man uses his God-given intelligence to overcome nature and his spiritual strength to make that intelligence work to fulfill the Divine Plan. He sends a rocket to the moon, dams a great river, conquers a disease, delivers a baby by Caesarian section who otherwise would never have cried his first cry. If man can do all these things, then surely he was also intended to determine whether to bring the fruit of his seed into the world.

I believe and assert honestly and proudly, that, as creative partners of God, we reserve the right to create families purposefully and joyfully, not accidentally and reluctantly.

Dist. 57: Vote 'Yes'

On Saturday, March 25, residents of Mt. Prospect Dist. 57 will have an opportunity to determine the educational future of the children in this community. Because of declining enrollment and, therefore, considerably less state aid as well as an inflationary economy, it has necessitated a request for local funding. Therefore, the burden has fallen to the homeowner to "produce" money since there are no factories, large businesses or even shopping centers to "carry the weight."

Before a homeowner decides yes or no, I would like to tell of my own experience. When I was at Sunset Park and Lincoln Jr. High, some programs were offered and others were not. Knowing that I missed some, I'm especially pleased I was able to tackle Spanish. Now, as a junior in high school and in fourth year Spanish, I have had the opportunity to travel to Mexico and appreciate five weeks of a combination missionary-Peace Corps involvement. I worked considerably to develop and promote a community center. Teaching English and gym classes, painting fences, traveling to different cities, bargaining for items in the open market and making many great friends all contributed to my better understanding of another culture. Having had this experience, I can't see why anyone would be in favor of ruining possible and exciting opportunities such as mine for their own children by defeating the upcoming referendum. If it weren't for Dist. 57, I doubt if I would have been able to see and do what I did. And I have told this to kids in slide presentations I have given on Mexico through the Volunteer Bureau. The world is smaller and smaller so foreign language is important.

I'm also grateful for the public speaking, band narration, drama and talent experiences I had at Lincoln. Though I have not been able to pursue all these interests, I definitely feel it is this background that made possible the leadership I have demonstrated at Prospect. Personally, I am very grateful for the education I did receive in Dist. 57 and feel it has helped to make me the person I am and the person I hope to become.

No one gets something for nothing! And so I hope homeowners and parents will better understand the need for support, rather than a severely curtailed educational curriculum. When I become a taxpayer, I will gladly support somebody's children and grandchildren.

Vote 'No'

I highly recommend a "NO" vote for the referendum for school Dist. 57 on March 25. I am a parent who is deeply interested in the education of students, but feel it is time we arrived at the root of the problem, rather than merely adding an artificial bouquet. If a building is crumbling, we don't put two new bricks in to hold it together temporarily and let the foundation rot, rather we rebuild the foundation. Similarly we must go to the root of our problem in Dist. 57 in order to build that fine foundation for a good educational program.

I have attended board meetings and find that facts are not clearly stated by board members and the superintendent, incorrect impressions always seem to be given. Even though principals state in public that teacher morale is high — are we being told the truth? My impression is that there is bad teacher morale — this was definitely true when the superintendent had a rather arbitrary transfer policy last fall. This certainly shows a lack of leadership.

From my contact with the board and community, I would clearly say that the superintendent is not fulfilling his role in public relations. Where then is the root of the problem? It seems rather obvious that the superintendent and our elected board members are directly responsible for the difficulties we are now encountering.

As a lay person, I can only say that the classroom teachers play the most important role in the education of the students. Do not threaten the public with classroom teacher cuts. First look at your high priced administrative personnel. Why does such a small district need a high priced ineffective superintendent and an assistant superintendent? Why do we need high priced principals employed on a 10 month basis only? Some schools have only about 300 students. The priorities in staffing do not seem to be in the best interest of the student. It is imperative that the classroom teacher be placed in a high priority group.

I cannot accept a 39 cent increase as a temporary alleviation of the problem. Until we can get a responsible board and an effective superintendent, I must vote NO on March 25 and I urge the citizens to look closely and critically at the candidates for whom they will cast their vote on April 8.

Backs Wheeling Band

So the Wheeling High School Marching Band has been invited to participate in International Competition in Europe this Summer!

My first reaction was, How nice, but of course the expenses would make it prohibitive.

On second thought, Can Wheeling Illinois afford not to rise to this challenging opportunity?

First and perhaps most important, is what it could mean to our young people who would give of themselves in preparation in order to participate. How quick we are to criticize our youth when they seem to us to be rebels. But how ready are we to support them when they endeavor to bring honor to themselves and their community?

Secondly, I believe WHEELING could benefit by a display of faith and pride in our community. The need for this has been called to our attention recently it became necessary for a village official to censure a Realtor for failing to name Wheeling as the location of the property he was offering for sale within our village limits.

As a life long resident of Wheeling (75 years) I am not ashamed to call it my home town, and I would be glad to let our young people publicize us to the world through their music, and to help in any way I can.

Business Today

by LEROY POPE
NEW YORK (UPI) — The counter attacks on no-fault automobile insurance are heating up.

Months ago the New Jersey Law Journal said in a satirical article — "now that no-fault divorce is practically an accomplished fact and no-fault auto insurance is about to be enacted, it's time somebody has finally gotten around to carrying the concept to its logical conclusion."

The logical conclusion, the Law Journal said, would be no-fault murder. The authors, R. Bruce Gebhart and Ernest S. Gilckman, proceeded to argue that most people who get murdered are themselves to blame. Moreover, they said, "murder is a lot of bother for everybody except the victim. He leaves all his problems for somebody else to solve."

They then satirically advanced some of the same arguments for no-fault murder that are being pressed for no-fault auto insurance: that it would relieve congested court calendars, that it would reduce the crime rate because murder no longer would be a crime and would put the blame not on the killer but where it belongs — on the taxpayers.

THIS ATTACK didn't exactly wither the no-faulters but just before New Year's Day a court in Illinois dealt them a blow. It declared that Illinois' new partial no-fault auto insurance law violated the 14th Amendment by discriminating against pedestrians and between motorists on the amounts of compensation they would be permitted to obtain for injuries.

The state promptly appealed but the American Trial Lawyers Association and those insurance companies who have been against no-fault said the Illinois decision, if it stands up in the higher courts, also could destroy the Massachusetts and Florida no-fault laws.

The trial lawyers also came up with a poll taken for them in Massachusetts by Opinion Research Corp., of Princeton, N.J., which said 62 per cent of the Bay State accident victims queried thought the Massachusetts law was unfair.

BUT THE BIG counter-offensive of the trial lawyers is just starting. They are preparing to have introduced in Congress a federal automobile insurance reform act that would preserve the tort damage lawsuit right which the more extreme no-faulters want to abolish. The total no-faulters include the companies in the American Insurance Association and the advocates of such measures as the Hart-Magnuson bill pending in Congress and the bill Governor Shapp is pressing in Pennsylvania.

The trial lawyers' bill has its own no-fault provision. All auto accident victims would be compensated at once up to certain limits by a new federal government corporation financed out of the national gasoline tax. They would be paid regardless of whether they were at fault or whether the motorist who was at fault was insured.

The right to sue and collect from the guilty driver would be preserved but amounts already collected from the government firm would be deducted by the court from any judgment obtained against a guilty driver and his insurance company.

"So you see we no longer are afraid of the no-fault idea," said Prof. William Schwartz of Boston University Law School, general manager of the Trial Lawyers Association. "We simply want the tort legal system preserved and we look on no-fault as a justifiable social welfare principle, not as an insurance gimmick."

MASSACHUSETTS Insurance Commissioner John Ryan says his state's partial no-fault plan has worked far better than expected. In consequence he ordered a 27.6 per cent cut in bodily injury premiums for 1972 on top of the 15 per cent reduction made when no-fault went in effect.

The number of auto accident injury claims filed in Massachusetts dropped astonishingly in the first half of 1971, and the average claim payment fell to $185 from $254. Insurance companies paid out only $881,498 for bodily injury claims in Massachusetts during this period as against $4 million a year earlier.

Trial lawyers and those insurance companies skeptical about no-fault say that these Massachusetts results, far from representing progress, simply mean residents of the Bay State no longer can hope for adequate compensation if they get hurt in an auto crash.

Hoard Gold For Fun, Not Profit

by CARLTON SMITH

Gold. Roll the word around in your head — coupled perhaps with visions of a cache of the precious, yellow metal, buried pirate-like in your own back yard — and you'll be reminded of what a powerful grip it has on the emotions.

You may have seen the ads that have been blossoming recently, enticing you to convert some of your nervously fluctuating paper dollars into the solid value of gold. It's illegal, of course, for U.S. citizens to own bullion, or gold in bulk. Nonetheless gold is available, as a hedge against the uncertainties of the future, in two forms.

You can invest in gold by buying stock in gold mines. Or, if you prefer owning the end product to the means of production, you can make your investment in solid, yellow metallic gold.

There is no law preventing you, as a coin collector, from owning more gold than you'd want to carry upstairs in one trip. Vaguely, there's something about "limited quantities," but an official of Stack's, a major U.S. coin dealer, says no guidelines have ever been laid down and no collector, to his knowledge, has ever been accused of hoarding gold, though some own thousands of coins.

So you can salt gold away, as coins — but should you? Almost any coin you'll buy in the United States has a premium value, over its gold content. You'd be investing, not in gold as such, but in a special kind of antique.

It's different, though, with our neighbor to the south, where there's an officially sanctioned market in gold coins. Mexico's finance minister, announcing its opening in January, said it would be "unlimited." The country's half-dozen gold coins, ranging from 1/2 to 37/8 grams, can be bought in most Mexican banks by weight, at the prevailing market price of the day for gold.

A solid investment? The editors of a financial advisory service published there, "The Mexican Investor," doubt it. "There is a small school of 'gold bugs,' in Wall Street who have been advising people to buy gold for the past few decades," the investment letter notes, and takes a look at how you'd have fared if you'd taken that advice, and bought gold 10 years ago.

Gold was then pegged at $35 an ounce. Now cut loose from the dollar, it recently rose in the world free market to a 20-year high of $46.

This is, the editors point out, a gain of 31 per cent. Divide by 10 years, and you've averaged a bountiful 3.1 per cent a year on your investment.

Given "the continuing decline of confidence in the dollar, and in paper money generally," the advisory letter sees the price of gold "under the greatest upward pressure of the past two decades."

But even assuming that if the price of gold continues to rise, the worth of gold coins would appreciate, the editors observe that "the investment record in gold coins over the long term has been far from brilliant," and conclude that there is "probably better investment value in selected gold, or gold-silver, stocks."

Sure, you can buy gold. Even U.S. citizens can own the solid, yellow stuff. But it seems likely that your chief satisfaction would be psychological, not monetary.

Cost Of Business Letter Rises 1 Cent

The average cost of a business letter, on which the Dartnell Institute of Business Research has been keeping annual tab since 1953, went up one cent to $3.20 a letter in 1972. This was the lowest increase over a 10-year period which saw annual jumps recorded ranging between 5 and 35 cents per letter.

The stabilization of letter costs in 1972 was due to several factors which acted in concert to cancel one another out, said Robert S. Minoi, editor of the Dartnell Office Administration Service.

He said: "Wages did not increase as much as usual in this period of the wage freeze. Also, the tenor of the times led to some increases in productivity in many offices. On the other hand, postage rates increased during the period being measured for the first time since 1968."

Parent Effectiveness Training

A Return To The Joy Of Being Parents

by ELEANOR RIVES
(First of Two Parts)

Your young son is engrossed in outdoor play. It's a beautiful day; the air is filled with the squeals and laughter of children having fun. His turn is next.

Suddenly you call him to come to dinner — now.

He stalks into the house, angrily blurted out, "I don't want to eat, you dirty old stinkbug, you!"

Do you: 1. Shout back at him? 2. Send him to his room? 3. Give him a lecture? 4. Ignore his outburst? 5. Sympathize and soothe him?

None of these.

According to Connie Girtz, who with her husband, Al, teaches classes in "Parent Effectiveness Training (PET)," a parent must learn to respond not to the child's words, but to decode them, to look deep down inside and find the real message — to respond to his feelings.

"WHEN THE CHILD owns the problem, if we can just stay neutral and actively listen, we can help him through the problem instead of solving it for him," said Connie. "A mother might respond with something like, 'You're pretty mad at me, aren't you . . .,' allowing the child to be himself and talk about his feelings."

Simple. But dramatically effective. It's called active listening and it's one of three techniques learned and practiced by concerned parents enrolled in the PET course.

Have you, as a parent, ever become frustrated, worried, angry or insecure with your children? Do they ever defy your authority, bicker with you, disregard your feelings, break family rules or show annoyance with your concern?

"PARENT EFFECTIVENESS Training" is a course designed to teach parents how to avoid and handle family conflicts, to help them relate and act with greater effectiveness toward their children, and — not so incidentally — toward each other. It works with bosses, employees and friends, too.

The course was created by Dr. Thomas Gordon, a California psychologist who earned his PhD at the University of Chicago. Working with problem children, he came to realize that the benefits of his counseling were quickly torn down when the child returned to the home setting. To make the total setting more healthy, he originated a preventive education program for parents.

Rev. and Mrs. Al Girtz of Des Plaines

are two of more than 1,000 licensed instructors in PET in the United States. They are currently conducting an eight-week course in the Postgraduate Center at Forest Hospital in three-hour sessions on Thursday nights.

THE GIRTZES ARE well qualified to lead the program from the standpoints of both training and experience. Al, a Lutheran pastor, is currently a chaplain-resident at Lutheran General Hospital where he is getting special training as a pastoral counselor. As a parish pastor in Minneapolis for six years, he was involved in adult education, youth work and counseling. A graduate of Dana College in Blair, Neb., and Luther Seminary in St. Paul, he is a member of the International Transactional Analysis Association.

Connie Girtz, with a bachelor of science degree in psychology and education from Dana College, has been an instructor in elementary education for three years and a non-professional counselor for many years.

MOST IMPORTANT — the Girtzes are parents of three robust, active, bouncy children of their own — Jonathan, 6; David, 5; and Karin, 2. And the lines of communication in the Girtz household are wide open.

Working as a team, the couple are conducting PET classes for the fourth time. Outside of the classroom, they present PET programs, individually or as a team, to churches, schools or any interested organization.

Parents enrolled in the eight-session course — and enrollment is kept to a maximum of 16 — follow Dr. Gordon's book "Parent Effectiveness Training." The course quickly gets down to cases on how to communicate clearly, to discipline without causing rebellion, to develop more loving relationships and to raise responsible, self-reliant, cooperative children.

THERE ARE THREE effective techniques that clear the way for real communication with your child.

The first is the "active listening" technique as cited in the case of the little boy who didn't want to come in for dinner. This is effective when the problem belongs to the child.

The second technique, the "I" approach, is most effective when the problem belongs to you, the adult — when you are the one affected by the action. You're bugged about something the child (or other person) has done; you need to tell him about it but you still want to preserve the relationship, not reject the child.

WHEN CONNIE'S son repeatedly threw applejacks on the floor, she finally calmed down and said matter-of-factly, "It really bugs me when you throw these on the floor, because then I have to clean them up." She hit at the action rather than the person, discussed his behavior without blame and told how it affected her. She gave him an "I" message.

He didn't do it again.

The third technique is most effective when the problem is in the relationship itself. For example, Dad and teenage son both need the car at the same time. They sit down, talk it out, compromise. How about son getting the car two days a week in return for helping Dad weekends?

ADULTS IN THE PET classes not only learn these techniques but actually practice them on each other every week by "role playing" problems, many of which they bring from their own homes. After putting their new skills into practice at home, they come back and share their experiences with the class.

They are very careful to avoid the 12 roadblocks which barricade the avenues of communication and almost automatically block an effective relationship with another person.

Tomorrow: The 12 roadblocks and how to avoid them.

Grandson's Death Prompts Book About Birth Defects

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Until Feb. 26, 1970, Jessyco Russell Gaver had little knowledge of birth defects.

That was the day her first grandson, James Walter Grace Jr., was born. He was not made perfectly. His spine was open, a condition known as spina bifida. Little Jim, as his grandmother came to call him, died three weeks after birth.

Could an operation have saved his life? At some birth defects centers on occasion delicate surgery gives spina bifida infants a fragile hold on life. Then there are other operations. Children who survive may never become completely whole, but they are taught to make their abilities count more than their crippling disabilities.

Mrs. Gaver said in an interview that the hospital in which her grandson was born did not operate a birth defect center. These are special places, strategically located nationwide and funded by the National Foundation — March of Dimes.

LITTLE JIM was transferred to such a center in Newark, N.J., nine days after birth. Mrs. Gaver said his open spine was infected by then. "It was too late," she said.

"It may be trite but it's true — we are not interested in other people's problems unless they affect us personally."

"When a birth defect touched my life in such a tragic way, all I could do was think of finding some way of making certain that little Jim had not lived — and died — in vain."

She decided to learn all she could about birth defects, their treatment and even, where possible, the prevention of same. When she learned all that, she put it between the covers of a book just out — "Birth Defects And Your Baby" (Lancet).

AMONG THE facts that must be faced are these:

—250,000 children are born in the United States each year with birth defects. This misfortune strikes about one in every 10 American families.

—20 per cent of all defects are inherited from one or both parents who may not have the defect themselves but carry it in the genetic blueprints, the genes, they pass on to their children.

—The toll in anguish to parents, in medical bills to families, in costs to society for institutional care is incalculable. The defects caused by a single large-scale epidemic of rubella German measles, for example, may ultimately cost $1.5 billion.

Mrs. Gaver says the subject is of importance to those about to get married, to those already married who plan to have children, and, of course, to all those who have a loved one with a birth defect and don't know what to do about it.

"KNOWING WHERE to seek help is the beginning of hope," she said.

Mrs. Gaver said 22 publishers turned down her book manuscript on birth defects.

"Such a distasteful subject," one editor told her.

"It is," Mrs. Gaver said. "But it is far more distasteful to helplessly witness the death of a child for whom no adequate medical attention can be found — on account of ignorance about the birth defects centers throughout the country."

Speaking Of . . .

You And The Women's Reserve

by KAY MARSH

Pat T. was a nurse. Most of the time she's a mother of three and busy with Little League, but she works weekends at the local hospital.

Mary A. can't take a full-time teaching job now, but she's on the high school's substitute list. Her neighbor keeps her baby when she gets a call to teach.

Sally J. has a degree in English, but now she's set her sights on becoming a children's librarian. Her husband babysits two nights a week while she takes courses toward her master's degree in library science.

Married right out of high school, Eleanor T. never held a job. Through the years, though, she's become an expert needlewoman and plans to open a shop of her own as soon as her youngest child starts to school. Meanwhile, she teaches knitting, macrame and other crafts to small groups at home and banks her earnings.

WHAT'S THE COMMON denominator? Pat, Mary, Sally and Eleanor might all be said to be members of a "Women's Reserve" in that they're career-oriented women who are home-bound now, but who expect to return to the world of work as soon as possible. And just as National Guard and military reserve units are made up of citizens who spend some of their time learning to be soldiers, so are the WR's forward-looking wives and mothers who spend some of their time learning to be career women.

You may be a WR member yourself, even if you never volunteered. According to a Labor Department study released last year, about a third of all wives with children between 3 and 5 are in the labor force. The proportion rises to half for those with school-age children. What's more, three out of five of today's working women are 35 or older. It's a rare woman these days who retires to rest in an empty nest.

WHY'S VARY. Women work to meet the rising cost of living, or because of what experts call "a climate of rising expectations." Women work for money and/or for personal fulfillment. Most working wives say they would want to continue working even if the family didn't need the money.

The new wife-style, then, clearly indicates a fairly standard pattern for women to settle into regular employment once the children are reasonably independent. If you're home today raising a family, you will probably be looking for a job a few years from now. Your rewards, psychic and financial, will certainly be greater if you look upon your years at home as "reserve years" to prepare for the future.

Use it or lose it. Whether you're a typist or a violinist, keep up whatever skills you have, even if it is difficult to schedule regular practice periods.

Read and heed. Read trade journals and professional publications to keep up in your field. Changes seem to come a little faster every year.

CONTACTS AND CONTRACTS. Keep in touch with friends where you worked. Keep up your membership and active participation in clubs, unions or professional organizations in your field. And remember that going back to school brings you not only new knowledge, but also a host of valuable contacts with peers and professors who can help you find a job when you're ready.

Learn. If you can't enroll for regular college courses, take a correspondence course or one on television. Discipline yourself to your own program of continuing education to help you succeed, either in the career you left behind you or in a brand new one that you're aiming for now.

Earn. Substitute for someone who's sick or on vacation. Take a temporary job at an extra busy season, such as Christmas in a department store. Freelance a typing or writing assignment at home. Sign up for volunteer work that ties in with your special interests. Whatever your field and however young your children, there's probably some way you can participate on a part-time or temporary basis.

THE DAY MAY COME when business and/or government will establish formal reserve training programs for women employees temporarily on leave to raise a family. Meanwhile, you have to recruit yourself and use the "reserve years" to build for the future when you'll be ready to return to work and all the satisfactions of an active professional career.

Her attendants were in green velvet, floor-length gowns with ivory crepe bodices and long sleeves. Their flowers were nosegays of pink carnations, purple heather and baby's breath.

A cousin, Vonda Lynn Lehman of Overland Park, Kan., was maid of honor, and another cousin, Janet Logan, and the groom's sister, Mrs. Robert Knoebber, both of Chicago, were bridesmaids.

Best man was Robert Wilke, Chicago, and groomsmen were John Krass, Chicago, and Patrick Lannan, Round Lake Park. Ushers were the groom's brother-in-law, Robert Knoebber, Chicago, and John Waller, St. Charles.

A Wedding Decor In Pink, Purple

The pinkish-purple of the thistle was combined with pink for the wedding of Susan Elayne Schmidt and Richard E. Nihlean. Susan's attendants were in thistle velvet trimmed with beige Irish lace, and they carried colonial bouquets of mixed flowers. Susan included pink roses in her bouquet of white daisies and baby's breath, and her Victorian gown of candlelight ivory satin was trimmed in pink rosebuds.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Schmidt, 8 S. Maple, Mount Prospect, Susan and Richard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nihlean, 1314 S. Highland, Arlington Heights, were married Feb. 26 in St. Paul Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect.

Julie Trotter, Mount Prospect, was maid of honor, and the couple's sisters, Bonny Schneider, Hoffman Estates, and Linda Nihlean, Arlington Heights, were bridesmaids. Susan's 4-year-old niece, Jayne Pitzek, Mount Prospect, was flower girl, and her 3-year-old cousin, Mark Engelking, Minneapolis, was ring bearer. Jayne was in a short version of the other attendants' floor-length gowns, and she carried a miniature version of their bouquets.

EDWARD SCHNEIDER, Hoffman Estates, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man, and William Plangon, Cincinnati, also a brother-in-law of the bride, and Dean Mitchell, brother-in-law of the groom, Wheeling, were ushers.

The 7 p.m. double ring, candlelight service was followed by a reception for 135 in Old Orchard County Club.

The new Mrs. Nihlean is a graduate of

Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Nihlean

We're devotees of seafood in any form and this dish with scallops is a big favorite. Place 2 lbs. fresh scallops in a large heatproof baking dish. Then blend 1/2 cup Rhine wine with 2 tsp. lemon juice, 2 tbsp. chopped shallots, 2 tbsp. chopped parsley, 1/2 tsp. chopped fresh dill, 1/2 tsp. salt and 1/4 tsp. ground pepper. Pour this over the scallops and drizzle 1/2 cup light cream over the whole thing. Sprinkle with 1/4 cup bread crumbs and dot with 2 tbsp. butter. Bake in a 450 degree oven for 15 minutes. Remove and place under the broiler just long enough to brown. This should serve six but four didn't leave a crumb.

Dear Dorothy: How can I clean my white vinyl raincoat? Have had no luck with soap and water.—Jill P.

There may be other ways but one of our correspondents sprinkled baking soda on a damp cloth and said it made her white plastic raincoat look sparkling white after it was rinsed and dried carefully. No, I don't have stock in the company. We just report the various uses of the product and I'm constantly amazed by its versatility and effectiveness.

Dear Dorothy: I like the protection provided soft drinks in cans, but was annoyed because the carbonation disappeared when I didn't use up the whole can at one time. My brain started to function one day. Now I just pour what I don't want in a pint jar. With the cover screwed on, it stays perfect until I want it.—Candy R.

Dear Dorothy: I worried about how to treat certain windows because of adjacent radiators. When I read that fiberglass curtains are fire-safe, my problem was solved.—May Jones.

Skim For Skin

Many experts claim that skim milk is full of organic protein which is healthy for the skin even if you don't drink it. So taking advantage of the cosmetic value of natural substances, many lines have begun to add skim milk to their other ingredients. Skim milk, with its absence of fat, can be used as a non-greasy cleanser or an over-all skin care treatment.

Birth Notes

Ten Sisters To Spoil Him

"After 10 girls we finally got a boy!" exclaimed Mr. and Mrs. John William Burr of Arlington Heights as they received word that their 11th child was a son. John Clark Burr's birth was a very welcome surprise for the entire family.

For the past 15 years, the Burrs have proved they can easily produce daughters, but that male heir has been a real challenge.

Mrs. Burr had her first son March 16 in Northwest Community Hospital. John Clark weighed 8 pounds 6½ ounces. He is now at home at 1426 E. Lillian Ave., thriving on the attention of his many devoted sisters. They start with Ann, 15, then Mary, 14, Susan, 12, Laurie, 10, twins Carol and Joan, 9, Janine, 7, Heidi, 4, Linda, 3, and end up with Janet, 18 months old.

Also pleased to hear the news were the baby's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Rulon L. Burr of Oakley, Utah, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Hugh Chamberlain of Cedar City, Utah.

NORTHWEST COMMUNITY

Kurt Eric Lackner was born March 8 to Mr. and Mrs. W. Kurt Lackner, 209 Firestone Drive, Hoffman Estates. The 8 pound 4 ounce newcomer is a brother for Mark, 4. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J. Roland Duguay of Nasonville, R.I., and the Curt C. Lackners of Salzburg, Austria.

HOLY FAMILY

James Patrick Ermitage is the new-comer in the Salvatore P. Ermitage family, adding a son after three daughters. He arrived March 8, a brother for Sharon, 10, Carol, 8, and Kathleen, 4. The baby, who weighed 7 pounds 13½ ounces, is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Murray of Chicago. The Ermitage family lives at 108 S. Evanston Ave., Arlington Heights.

David Anthony Locander's birth on March 14 gives a second son to Mr. and Mrs. Conrad E. Locander, 521 Checker Drive, Buffalo Grove. The baby's brother is Michael Ross, 6. Grandparents of the two are Mr. and Mrs. Nick Rossi of Madisonville, Ky., and the Walter Locanders of Deltona, Fla. David weighed 7 pounds 14 ounces.

Remember Smith, Page?

Illinois Politicians Fade

by JOHN RUTHERFORD
United Press International

Illinois politicians fade faster than old soldiers.

Ralph Tyler Smith was a U.S. senator in 1970. Today he is just another face in the crowd at Republican party gatherings.

Other politicians who, like Smith, were defeated for reelection have fared little better.

William Stratton and Ray Page finally landed jobs with Canteen Corp., a food and vending service. Samuel Shapiro is practicing law and Paul Douglas has been prevented from returning to Illinois for several years because of poor health.

SMITH, 56, WAS twice elected speaker of the Illinois House of Representatives and reached the peak of his career when he was appointed to serve the unexpired Senate term of the late Everett M. Dirksen. From then on, however, it has been all downhill.

He was defeated for a term of his own by Adlai Stevenson III and had to ignominiously leave the Senate chamber by a side door when Stevenson appeared suddenly one day to claim his seat.

Shortly afterward, Smith suffered a coronary and quickly faded into oblivion. But he is hoping for a comeback.

"No one puts you out of politics," the Alton lawyer said. "You place yourself out and I do not intend to do that."

SMITH SAID HE IS "90 per cent plus" recovered from his coronary and has recently talked with the White House about a "top level job" in Washington.

D.C. He admitted, though, that "nothing has gelled yet."

Ray Page, 50, was another Republican who had trouble finding a job after he was booted out of office in the 1970 elections. Page served eight years as state superintendent of public instruction before being defeated for a third term by Michael J. Bakalis.

Page had to settle for a job with Canteen Corp. in Chicago when he was unable to land a position with the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW). His name had been submitted for a post as HEW's regional administrator for education but was withdrawn when opposition arose to his being placed over the man who defeated him in the election.

Also on the payroll of Canteen Corp., as a vice president, is William G. Stratton, 57, "the boy wonder of Illinois Politics" back in the 1950s when he served two terms as governor.

LIKE SMITH, nothing seemed to go right for Stratton after he was defeated in 1960 for a third term by Otto Kerner, now under indictment for a racetrack scandal while he was governor.

Two more attempts by Stratton to regain the governor's chair never got past the Republican primaries. He was indicted and acquitted in 1965 of income tax evasion. His political involvement became limited to occasional appointments to state commissions, the latest being last summer as a member of the losing side on the Legislative Reapportionment Commission.

Still, he appears undaunted over being shunted to the political sidelines.

"I still have the title (he likes to be called "Governor") but none of the responsibilities," Stratton said.

SAM SHAPIRO, 64, who became governor in May, 1968, when Kerner was appointed to the federal bench, has been practicing law in Chicago and Kankakee since he was defeated the following November by Richard B. Ogilvie.

Shapiro said he still is "very interested in politics" but devotes most of his time to bar association matters and civic functions.

His only headlines since leaving office were as the attorney for Mrs. Michael Butler in her sensational divorce from the millionaire producer of "Hair."

The only politician who apparently believes his life is worth retelling is Paul Douglas, 80, a U.S. senator from 1948 to 1966, when he was defeated for a fourth term by Republican Charles Percy.

DOUGLAS, WHO SERVED two years as chairman of the President's Commission on Urban Problems after leaving the Senate, currently is putting the finishing touches on his autobiography, "In the Fullness of Time," which is due out in May.

He suffered a stroke in 1969 which "really shuts off my travel," and has been pretty much confined to the Washington, D.C. area where he lives.

Although he is no longer actively involved in politics, Douglas said he is very interested in seeing Lt. Gov. Paul Simon elected governor. Simon, in turn, considers Douglas one of his "political heroes" and the two men are close personal friends.

De-escalate the war.

Believe it or not, highway hostility is not one of the necessities of life. It doesn't even have to be a fact of life.

Just because the other guy has an axe to grind doesn't mean you have to grind it with him. When another driver temporarily loses his head, don't lose yours. Don't honk back. Don't shout back. Don't drive aggressively to hold your ground.

The war of nerves and bad tempers doesn't have to go on. Your new car dealer would like to see the war end. He would like to see more peaceful, safer streets for all Americans.

So the next time the other guy tries to take out some highway hostility on you, do the one thing that will prevent an accident and might make him come to his senses. Keep your cool. Courtesy on the road can put out a lot of fires. There is an alternative to War... Peace.

Kidney Foundation Campaign Set

MRS. RICHARD D. O'DONNELL of Mount Prospect is serving as the chairman of that community's Illinois Kidney Foundation drive this Sunday. A victim of kidney disease herself, Mrs. O'Donnell has had her own dialysis machine for about 6 months, but is hoping for a kidney transplant. Part of Sunday's drive is to alert area residents to the Foundation's kidney donor program.

Several hundred volunteers will be canvassing in five Northwest suburban communities Sunday on behalf of the Kidney Foundation of Illinois. Their job is two-fold, to collect funds and to disseminate information on the foundation's kidney donor plan.

Drives will be conducted in Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Wheeling, Des Plaines and Hoffman Estates.

In Mount Prospect, chairman is Mrs. Richard D. O'Donnell, 201 S. Can-Dota. In Elk Grove Village Mrs. William Hutchinson, 105 Oakton, heads the drive. Mrs. Ronald Panzer, 1727 Whitcomb Ave., heads the volunteer effort in Des Plaines. Thomas G. Teller, 108 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling, and Mrs. Roger Leaf, 308 Kingsdale Rd. and Dan Rooney, 161 Bode Rd., co-chair the campaign in Hoffman Estates.

Kidney disease is the fourth leading health problem in the United States. More than 8 million Americans suffer from kidney related diseases. It's the top cause of work loss among women, the second cause of absenteeism among men under 25, and the fourth cause among men over 25. It strikes 4,000 children under six each year and kills more people annually than all automobile accidents.

Thousands of lives can be saved each year when enough kidneys become available for transplantation. The Kidney Foundation Organ Donor Program is intended to accomplish this. By the use of the organ donor card, kidneys can be donated at the time of death to give life to patients otherwise condemned. Disseminating information on this program to every household will be an important part of the marchers' duties Sunday.

Founded in 1949, the Kidney Foundation of Illinois brings help and hope to victims of kidney disease through research, the organ donor program, professional education, community services and public information, by improving insurance coverage and increasing health legislation.

Last year 450 patients were serviced in Illinois (300 in the metropolitan area). In this area alone there are 12 hospitals with dialysis (artificial kidney) units, six hospitals with transplant facilities and five community clinics and churches with dialysis units. Kidney patients are additionally serviced by a drug bank program which enables them to purchase their drugs at cost at 18 participating pharmacies throughout the state.

Price Unit Hearing March 24

A public hearing concerning the nation's price control program will be held in Chicago by the price commission March 24. Roger C. Beck, IRS district director for northern Illinois, said.

Price Commission Chrmn. C. Jackson Grayson Jr. announced that the hearing will be held in the Illinois Room of the University of Illinois' Chicago Circle Campus, 750 Halsted St., from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Purpose of the public hearing is to seek reaction from various sectors of the economy concerning the effectiveness of the price control program. The commission is seeking input from economists, labor representatives, consumers, businessmen, industry spokesmen and others.

Persons desiring to appear before the commission must make their request in writing or by telephone to Robert C. Cassidy, price commission, 2000 M. St., N.W., Washington, D. C. 20508, telephone (202)-254-8937. The requests must be received by the commission by March 20.

Written submission will also be accepted in addition to or instead of personal appearances at the hearings. The deadline for these is March 21. They should be sent to the above address.

Grayson and his staff will be in Chicago March 23 for a regional conference being sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry. That conference will be held at the Pick Congress Hotel.

Letters to the Editor

Abortion Stand 'Shallow'

The ideas on abortion presented in the March 1 editorial have put my mind in a ferment and I must vent my convictions to the contrary.

Because a newspaper has power to mold public opinion by exerting the pressures of leadership, it owes a great responsibility to the public it serves; it has no right to choose sides in a shallow or narrow manner. Should this be the case such inadequacy ought to be revealed to its readers.

To maintain "concern for a profound human problem" is a completely redundant statement which will not gain applause for originality; but if this expression of sympathy is intended as a foundation in a serious, controversial public issue, then such a subjective attitude is an evasive substitute for clarity of thought. Otherwise our every wish or necessity would be reason per se for any and every serious breach either public order or individual rights. The basic fact of unwanted babies is truly a human problem, except that its label is "selfishness."

Now if this sympathetic concern was not the basic argument of the ideas in the editorial, we should examine the second main statement, "that society must be protected from the imposition of moral and religious beliefs." The phrasing makes it appear that a new element of force has made an entrance. On the contrary it is the abortionist's role to be the innovator, as he tampers with nature's built in safeguards for the preservation of the human species, and also as he attempts to reverse the aspirations of a society which has sacrificially gained for the individual a great measure of human dignity from attacks against tyranny on many fronts.

The road down which the abortionist would lead us is a strange one. Assuming a steady growth in our accumulation of scientific knowledge, the time will arrive when man will have power, through chemistry and electronics, to engineer the human species genetically; there will be a control of the human intellect, instinct, and appetite for functional objectives, stripping him with the passage of time of nearly all individuality. Just picture the last small remnant of elite, bored with life, lacking the instincts of self-preservation as they make the final choice: a refusal to perpetuate the race.

This would be a fitting end for a race which rejected the value of self-discipline in striving for the goal of highest human fulfillment. Either man has the perception to use science discriminately, or science will use him.

'Confused' On Abortions

Abortions — For or against? I honestly don't know, as the abortion issue has me very confused.

I've seen TV talk shows and heard radio shows, where people scream at each other about abortion laws, and what should or shouldn't be changed. Politicians find the fetus issue a very fertile topic, depending on what area they're running in and what group they happen to be talking to. Then, the fetus grows and grows. (Like a pregnant woman) in hopes of winning votes. It strikes me as odd that a lot of these pro-fetus politicians don't get enraged when a 10-year-old, 190-pound fetus gets "aborted" in Vietnam.

The fetus has a way of making people mad. For example: Busing a fetus (with black skin) can make some people angry. Also welfare, equal employment, and low-income housing for a fetus can bring fear to the hearts of many.

I have great respect for Mrs. Sally Leighton (letter, March 8) and concur with her regarding war, love, brotherhood, et al. I personally don't think I would submit to an abortion, but I wonder — Can you, or should you, legislate what's in another woman's abdomen? I really don't know.

Mrs. Leighton says, "Some people I know would weep for days over the need to drown a litter of kittens, but not for a second over preventing bringing into the world unwanted children," etc.

Some of the anti-abortion people sound a lot like the people who have mixed emotions about cats. They are the ones who say, "I like kittens, but I can't stand them when they grow up." That's what concerns me. The ones who like the fetuses (kittens) but don't like the full grown human (cat). Is the right to live only for the fetus? Let's hope not.

Try 'Faith And Trust In God'

At this moment the "Dear Editor" is not really meant since I have reread your editorial for the sixth time on abortions which appeared in the March 1 issue.

What is wrong with people like you? For the life of me I can't understand how anyone can be so ignorant of God's commandment, "Thou shalt not kill." You nor anyone else is going to convince me a child at 20 weeks is not the same child at nine months. I am not a doctor nor a scientist. All I have to lean on is the fact that I do have children. This profound and beautiful experience of giving birth are my credentials.

All this slaughter because some women can't or won't cope with a little inconvenience. For instance, the woman having that legal abortion in Chicago just because she was not going to go through washing diapers again. Now she could have picked up Pamper instead! For that she had her child destroyed. Now that incident still sends shivers up my spine. Now that really convinced me all the more that the abortion law should stay. We say, "One nation under God" — do we really mean it?

What we need to solve this problem are people filled with love and respect for each other. To think of others, not just me, me, me. And most of all, faith and trust in God. You just can't beat that combination. Try it, you'll like it! Not the other guy or someday, but you and now!

Backs Editorial

I want to express my support of your March 1 editorial calling for reform of the Illinois abortion laws.

I have the feeling that some of your critics did not read your editorial. You did not say you were in favor of abortion but only in favor of removing legal restrictions to a woman's right to decide for herself and to be entitled to proper medical and surgical care if such an abortion is performed.

Personally, I am opposed to abortion. I accept many of the arguments against it and could never undergo an abortion myself. That is my right and my choice. But in making that individual choice, I do not have the right to make it for others who may sincerely and honestly feel differently.

Abortion is a moral, ethical and highly personal issue that is a matter for individual conscience. It is not for society or the law to pre-judge.

'Marriage Is Not Outdated,' She Says

This is a reaction to your articles "Alternatives Practiced Quietly in Suburbs." I have three young children, 10, 9 and 4 years old, and more and more I wish for a place where I could move that would give my children the same ethically and morally bound society I grew up in. My friends and I shudder at the thoughts of our children growing up instead of enjoying their adolescence and striving for maturity. We no longer know where to turn or even voice our opinions where they will be heard on these non-marriage and sexual relationships that have now taken over our society.

When sexual (petting) experiences are allowed on our grammar school playgrounds, necking and petting allowed during lunch breaks in our junior high and high schools (with teachers standing and watching) what does a parent who wishes to bring his child up morally straight do? We cannot be with our children 24 hours a day. These type exposures can only corrupt their minds. Growing up is hard enough with all the physical and emotional changes taking place. I personally do not feel anyone is made of iron emotionally. Our kids are bound to break eventually.

It seems that emotionally mature and good and loving marriages are things of the past or are laughed at. There is nothing unique about a marriage where relationships are allowed to grow from both sides. When a husband can come home and talk to his wife about his feelings and problems and vis versa. Marriage is not a stifling thing. Love starts and grows because of an inborn need for companionship and love. Marriage (not always perfect) is filled with arguments, misunderstandings, loving experiences, having children or not, as you choose, disappointments, mistakes, sorrow and happiness. A growing together and an emotional dependence on one another which cannot be exchanged for any other experience on this earth. These people, regardless of age, who feel they can live together without marriage, I cannot feel are truly happy. What kind of emotion maturity has occurred? They have talked themselves into believing they are grown up (and I notice even expect their children to believe it) when, in fact, they are still childish in their actions. We try to teach our children reasoning, understanding and love, hoping they will mature fruitfully. These people look for the

Save Those Old Photos

Re: Your article on Daguerreotypes March 3, 1972.

First of all you have your history all wrong. Daguerre did NOT look at himself in a mirror and decide to reproduce "that effect" as you put it of a painted portrait. He and a man named Niepce discovered this long involved process, using the camera-obscura, already invented.

People did not think him mad either since he was already famous for his Diorama (large drawings on a type of gauze that used lighting effects). You can find this information in many books, such as — "J. M. Daguerre," "The History of the Diorama and D-Type" by Gernsheim, Helmut & Alison, and other photography history books written by the aforementioned people, and by Beaumont Newhall. At the present time I am taking History of Photography under a man by the name of Edwards at AIC, who is very well versed on this subject.

Secondly, the cases are not more "salable" than the Daguerreotypes, and it's this type of article that make people throw the photo out because they believe the case is in demand. One such person in New York saw an article in the paper for Daguerreotypes and called the collector telling him he had a large one (full plate 6x8). The collector rushed over to find that the man had thrown the photo out because he had read that the case was the valuable antique. It turns out that the man had thrown out the full plate of the Capitol Building in Washington, D.C., before the dome had been put on it. It had been taken by the architect and would be worth several thousand dollars. The case is probably worth about $10 at the most!

I do not have a large collection because I am a student of photography at the Art Institute, and can not afford to pay large prices, but I have a good start on my own collection. I am disturbed reading articles, not only putting down my own profession and my collection but also giving wrong information on something this important to me.

'Back Speed Limit'

Having lived in California for one year and visited Arizona and Texas numerous times, I am amazed at the drivers in these states and their undoubted respect for "school zone" speed limits.

When driving a car in these states and one approaches a "school zone," one immediately lowers his speed to the posted limit. I tried to do that here in the northwest suburbs, and you have people blowing horns, passing you, or tailgating. This can be especially hazardous where kids are forced to walk close to the street.

Cannot our law enforcement impose stricter controls on this most needed 20 m.p.h. speed limit?

Nixon: Four Years Later

Following are excerpts from The Wallace Stand of January, 1972, official publication of the Wallace Campaign:

—Peace through strength; superior offensive and defensive capabilities of our military forces, second to none; then we will always be in a position to negotiate with our enemies.

—A return to law and order. Action by the Federal Government, in its proper role in cooperation with the States and their political subdivisions, to make it safe to walk on the streets of our cities.

—Curtailed Federal spending to bring about a balanced budget.

—A reasonable welfare program for those who are disabled, blind, elderly or otherwise handicapped, but a curtailment of welfare programs that are designed to pay able-bodied individuals not to work.

—The return to local control of public education on a non-discriminatory basis. A return to freedom of choice and the neighborhood school concept. A complete halt to involuntary busing to achieve any sort of balance, and the reopening of schools now closed under Federal Court orders, HEW departmental regulations, and/or by actions of the Justice Department where such openings are desired by the citizens and officials of the States and/or local school districts.

—A fair tax system that levies taxes on the multi-billion and multi-million dollar foundations which are now virtually tax-exempt, and whose purposes are other than strictly charitable.

—A reduction in taxes for the individual and businesses, as well as for industry — these taxes to be replaced with revenues from those now evading taxes through special laws passed in their special interest.

Dist. 207's Expenditures Blasted

Now that Dist. 207 has lost the referendum, they can say "I told you so," as they start dropping teachers and classes. Whether you realize it or not, many of the non-tenured teachers will be told that their services will no longer be needed at the Maine Township High Schools. Several classes with small enrollments will be phased out in the next four years. The student variety show and school plays will no longer be the highlights that they have been for many years. The rate of students dropping out will probably increase, because there will be less for them to want to stay in school. There will be more discipline problems next year because there will be less teachers to supervise the students. I would be willing to quote odds that prices in the bookstores and cafeterias will be much higher than this year. All this making it more expensive to get a free education. I also think that there will be more fees to pay, many which will not state where the money will be going. Many budget cuts will go into effect; already, the administration has announced that there will be cutbacks of 10 per cent in all areas of operation.

The problem does not lie in the fact that there is no money, but that the district does not and has not used it in the right way. There was $10,000 spent on sandblasting one of the schools. This money could have been spent on the salary of one teacher and still have $1,000 or $2,000 left to spend on the education of four students. The problem is that the board is more concerned in the outward appearance of the school than of its purpose, that is to teach. The spectacular gymnasium at Maine West is another example of this waste of money. The need for this gym was simply emotional, not logical. Those who defend it say that it will eventually pay for itself. One question, until "eventually" comes, who will pay the cost of operating this structure? It is the taxpayers, that's who. The students pay also, through the loss of a better education.

When some of the students were working for open campus, they were told that one of the reasons they could not have it was that it would downgrade the standard of education of this district. Can anyone realistically say that cutting the number of classes and dropping teachers will improve our standard of education? It is slightly HYPOCRITICAL for the board to do this and expect the taxpayers to stand up for it.

I am also sure that the schools do not need all the non-teaching faculty that it has. Some of the janitors, cafeteria workers, secretaries and clerks can be replaced with student help that can be paid less than the adult staff.

Saying that they will not be able to exist without their jobs is not applicable here. Emotionalistic hiring and firing practices will run this district into the ground.

Falconry Draws A Defense

This is in response to the letter written by the Elk Grove resident which appeared in your paper deriding falconry.

First of all, in answer to his question — the practice of falconry is legal in Illinois. Only after a person proves that he is qualified to handle and train a hawk is he issued a permit.

Secondly, I would like to clear up some of the discrepancies which were stated in the letter. Contrary to what was said, a bird of prey does not tear its quarry apart. There is either a clean miss or a kill. I would not consider this type of hunting a "slaughter of healthy wildlife." For not only is there a small number of game taken, but also there are no cripples produced to crawl away and die.

A letter such as this leaves me utterly disgusted. For it attacks unjustly a group of people who are actively working for the conservation of our dwindling wildlife. I wonder if this person realizes the advances falconers are making in the areas of breeding birds of prey. It is now very likely that through their efforts endangered species such as the Peregrine Falcon will be bred in such numbers as to allow for the restocking of areas where these birds once lived.

I believe that this misinformed individual should do some investigating before he attacks such a necessary group of people. For contrary to what he states, we do need these people. For their contributions to the conservation of birds of prey and wildlife in general cannot be disputed.

Elk Grove Speakers 'Perverted,' He Says

Three cheers for the Sociology Department of Elk Grove High School! By extending the courtesy of an invitation to visit the school, three self-professed homosexuals were given a forum upon which to soft-sell their perverted ways of life.

We, as parents, are expected to swallow this hogwash by accepting the explanation that it was an attempt "to put things in proper perspective." If exposing 100 students, possessed with the natural curiosity of youth, to the degenerates of society is the new wave in education, I'll take vanilla. If we must submerge our minds and hands in filth and slime in the name of academic freedom, let's take the class to the execution of the murderers, rapist, cop-killers and kidnappers who also are "normal in a different way." As a side effect, it might reinforce the rule of law created by a normal, healthy society.

Yes, we are all striving for recognition and acceptance. The college instructor writes books while his students follow goat trails to oblivion and graduate at the zenith of mediocrity. Is the high school teacher now about to follow suit by importing dog and pony shows into the classroom?

While much can be said in favor of the initiative and resourcefulness of teachers, there must be some reasonable limit placed upon unbridled, irresponsible enthusiasm when it invades the realm of decency in the name of education.

Mount Prospect

International Track Meet Slated In Area

Prospect High will be host to the first annual Coca Cola International High School Track and Field Championships Saturday, June 10 at 6 p.m., giving area fans a chance to marvel at some of the finest prep tracksters in the world.

The meet is an outgrowth of the highly-successful National High School meet that has been hosted, directed and officiated the past three years by members of the Northern Illinois Track and Cross Country Coaches Association of suburban Chicago.

This new event, like a Junior Olympics, should be first-class in every respect — and better than ever with the addition of international high school-age competition. The new site is the excellent eight-lane U.S. Royal track at Prospect with seating for 10,000 spectators and lighting for an evening schedule of events.

Housing, meals and a banquet

after the meet — headlined by a world-famous track personality — will all be provided for the athletes at the Holiday Inn in Mount Prospect. In addition, a coaches' smoker Friday evening and a Friday-Saturday International coaching clinic offering two hours' graduate credit and featuring outstanding coaches from America and abroad will be held in conjunction with the meet.

Additional information can be obtained by contacting one of the following four coaches:

Joe Newton, York High, Elmhurst, 60126, 834-9400 (school) or 654-3240 (home).

Bruce Samore, Arlington High, 253-0200, ext. 65 (school) or 358-3567 (home).

John Coughlan, Maine East High, Park Ridge 60068, 825-4484 (school) or 279-7147 (home).

Aftermath Of A Master Laugh

THE DENSE FOG of high school spirit slowly began ascending from the Assembly Hall mushroom by Sunday morning. The town of Champaign itself recaptured some of the characteristics of a college campus.

The vectors of teenage pandemonium were streaming homeward to the eight communities from whence they originated a week ago yesterday.

People no longer automatically discarded the front pages from newspapers to memorize the sports section.

Illinois High School Association basketball was history for the 1971-72 season and now only reflections instead of anticipations, prognostications and reservations could be made.

UCLA. I mean Thornridge. (I've been mixing those two teams up lately), played Superman against a field of mere mortals over the weekend and repeated as state champ.

There was no rebuttal — either verbal or physical.

So outclassed were the rest of the challengers that listening to the post-mortem speeches by stunned opposing coaches was almost more competitive than the games themselves.

Here are some of the better efforts by the unanimous losers:

Collinsville's Vergil Fletcher (598 career victories) after absorbing an opening-round 55-46 shellacking, made this yawning understatement: "They're a great physical ball club with great personnel."

"When they get the kind of officiating they got here today (the officials were NOT credited with the 20-point margin of victory in the final box score), they've got to be great."

Next on the guillotine was Peoria Manual's Dick Van Seyoe who fared the "best" against Thornridge's Boardwalk-Park Place monopoly.

Manual scored a moral victory in losing by only 19, 71-52, and registered a tournament "first" by actually out-scoring T-Ridge, 20-15 in the third quarter.

"They are a free-wheeling team and you can't play catch-up with them," Van Seyoe said. If only his Ram players had thought of that before getting buried under an 18-8 first-quarter avalanche...

Sherrill Hanks, the championship-game victim, was a little more realistic after playing Russian Roulette with Thornridge's cannon.

"We could have played them 100 times and we still wouldn't have beaten them," the veteran mentor said. "That was probably the best basketball team ever to play high school ball. Hell, I'm not so sure they couldn't do damn well in the Big 10 if they played high school rules."

Even Evanston head coach Jack Burmaster, whose Cinderella Wildkitts were ousted by Peoria, 82-63, made this evaluation from his seat at WGN-TV's color-man, "Thornridge belongs in Class AAA as far as I'm concerned."

For the first time in at least 28 years, tickets went on sale to the public before

Palatine Openings

The Pony League of Palatine Boys Baseball still has room for a limited number of boys to play in the regular season baseball league this summer.

Boys aged 13-14 are eligible to sign up now and until April 5. Any boy interested should call Mr. Donald Stair at 359-2721 or Mr. Tom Bowman at 358-3843.

ternoon at the fifth Paddock Publications Pro Sports Club Luncheon at Old Orchard Country Club. Also recognized at the luncheon were Tom Porter, who coached Hersey to the state wrestling championship, and Dick Redinger, who guided Conant to a Sweet Sixteen berth in basketball.

One Man's View

Growing Crisis In College Sports

by IRA BERKOW

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Dave Nelson, athletic director for the University of Delaware, is a maverick in National Collegiate Athletic Association circles. This is easy to understand. Hold a balanced, sage, pro-educational view of matter in the NCAA — pick a matter, any matter — and they look at you like you're a snaggle-toothed lunatic.

Maybe the thing that saves Nelson is his short, neatly groomed hair and clipped sideburns. Or the pink-cheeked, twinkly-eyed cherub look of this 52-year-old man. Or the soft voice coming from a 5-5 fellow. Or the awesome credentials that he had played in the same backfield at Michigan with Tom Harmon and Forrest Evashevski. Or his silent majority appeal of having coached winning football teams at Delaware.

Whatever, Nelson is popular enough and respected enough by NCAA peers to have been chosen secretary of their rules committee (and he was formerly head of the professional relations committee).

Now, what is Nelson's heresy? The indictment is so strong it may get him burned at the goal post. Here it is: Nelson believes college students should participate in sports for the beauty and pure love of competition and the building of character and self-fulfillment derived therefrom. He eschews professionalism and the maniacal pursuit of victory above all else. He espouses fair play and other soppy considerations.

"The sad thing is that nobody trusts anybody any more," said Nelson in a Manhattan restaurant recently. "The reason is that we've come to emphasize winning so much. We're so concerned with watching the other guy — how he recruits, what his eligibility standards are — that we've forgotten what the purpose of college sports is. The joys of simply playing a game have been lost."

Nelson believes that the NCAA bears much of the responsibility for the distortion of values. But he emphasizes that the NCAA has become a monster created and nurtured by the colleges themselves. The major power of the NCAA is derived from its organizing of national championships and from national television revenue of football games.

"Funny thing is that out of 700 member colleges, only about 100 of the strongest schools actually compete in the upper levels of national championships," said Nelson. "As for TV, last year only 67 schools shared about 95 per cent of the $12 million in revenue from football games."

Nelson deprecates the vicious cycle of recruiting top talent to produce winning teams to gain revenue (from TV, but also from prideful alumni) to recruit top talent.

"This results in the hundreds of rules for athletic eligibility that establish a base level for competition in national championships," said Nelson. "This hurts the student-athlete who should just be interested in sport as a form of extracurricular activity."

"The NCAA controls eligibility rules, recruiting procedures and financial aid procedures. It has been taken out of control of the member schools and the member conferences."

"For example, I deplore the 1.6 rule (The rule states that a student cannot compete in athletics if his 'predicted' or attained grade is below 1.6). If a school allows a student to enroll, it should allow him to participate in sports and in any other extracurricular activities."

"And there's that awful transfer rule. A student who transfers from one school to another must sit out one year of eligibility. This would be unnecessary if we weren't only concerned with winning — with maintaining that base level of competition. We immediately assume that a kid who wants to transfer got a better offer to, say, play basketball at another school. What if he switched majors and the other school just has a better department of, say, political science?"

Nelson is not troubled by the prospect of the pros signing more college basketball players — if it is done before the season: "A basketball player like a journalism major or anyone else should be allowed to pursue his profession when he wants to — and not, as the pro draft has had it, only when his class has graduated."

"As far as his signing hurts his team, so what? We're supposed to be in the business of education. A player leaves his college team before the season starts and there are others to take his place. The only difference is that maybe the team won't win as many games. Too bad."

Nelson said, though, that a player has a moral obligation, usually to stay with his team once the season starts.

"Winning has become all-important," said Nelson. "I think it's responsible for the ugly brawls like the one in the Minnesota-Ohio State basketball game recently. The attitude started with the pros. It's trickled down to us. We've accepted it as a way of life."

What to do? "One thing perhaps is to deemphasize national championships," Nelson says. "A return to club sports — in which students operate their own teams — is one acceptable way of changing the winning-is-the-only-thing-trend. But I do think organized sports under institutional control can be a positive thing. The NCAA is now looking for a solution along those lines."

"We are studying a program called 'compatibility groups.' That is, putting colleges with like interests together into maybe three or four different groups. This would return choice of autonomy to schools and conferences. There would be separate rules for each group, instead of the current grouping of all 700 schools under one umbrella. That makes sense. Really, what does a Harvard have in common with a Texas El Paso, for instance."

"College football began in 1869 with 11 students from Rutgers and 11 from Princeton running around. The object was to play for the sake of the game. To have fun. But the philosophy of our games today goes back to an earlier time. Back to the days of the Christians and the lions."

At Elk Grove Bowl

Dodie Gaydos' 531 series, which included games of 196 and 190, was the high mark in the Lane Brains League at Elk Grove Bowl... Rita Matsukes came up with a 527, Sue Baikie 523, Lillian Mayer 520, Judy Lundgren 511, Echo Hedberg 497 and Dolores Abraham 496.

CHEER UP! Young Tommy Borsilli seems in good spirits as Dennis Hull of the Chicago Black Hawks comforts him with an autograph. Tommy had injured his leg playing hockey. This scene took place during a recent semi-

Red-Hot Men's Race Continues

It is getting to the point where a contender can not afford an off night.

A 603 series by Warren Olson and a 600 series by Frank Riccio kept Leone Pools in contention with the 5-2 win over Des Plaines Ace Hardware. Jon Reed contributed a 210 game to the winners' cause.

For Des Plaines Ace Hardware, Don Christensen had a 213 and a 210, Bill Cornelius a 213 and Barry Stjernberg a 209.

Doyle's-Striking Charges Into Contending Position

A race in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League is developing after all.

Just when it seemed that Des Plaines Lanes was going to make a runaway out of it, the turn of events at Beverly Lanes Saturday turned the PWCTL into a highly contested race.

While Des Plaines Lanes was losing to Franklin-Weber 5-2, second place Doyle's-Striking Lanes blanked Morton Pontiac 7-0 to close the margin to three points.

Franklin-Weber Pontiac is in third place, three points behind the leaders, and L-Tran Engineering is in fourth by the benefit of a 7-0 win over Thunderbird Country Club. Arlington Park Towers jumped up two notches in the standings with a 7-0 triumph over KoHo Office Supplies.

Balanced scoring enabled Doyle's-Striking Lanes to down Morton Pontiac. Lu Schoenberger had a 598 series with 216 and 211 games and Bette Brelle had a 597 with a 214 game. Eunice Whitmore contributed a 209 game, Alice Schroder a 210 and Judy Croston a 203.

For Morton Pontiac, Marge Carlson had a 217 game and Mary Yurs a 215.

Franklin-Weber was paced by a 603 series by Lee Winski with 187, 215 and 201 scores. Marge Lindenberg had a 212 game. The leading pin getter for Des Plaines Lanes was Winnie Lohse with a 565 series. Nancy Porcelius turned in a 556 series.

L-Tran Engineering's sweep was headed by Toshi Inahara's 603 series which included 195, 202 and 206 games. Marlis Pleickhardt rolled a 210 game and Bette Bartlett a 206. Jean Ladd led Thunderbird Country Club with a 546 series.

Arlington Park Towers had its best series of the season, a 2777. Dee Kachelmuss turned in a 611 series with 172, 225 and 214 games and Mary Lou Kolb registered a 607 series with 234, 214 and 159 games. Donna Lohse contributed a 203 game and Peggy Wales a 200.

The Countryside YMCA ((Palatine) swim teams are in the twilight of their season now. All that remains is the state final competition to be held at George Williams College in Downers Grove March 25.

Those who will compete in the state final championship meet are as follows beginning with the girls:

Five Countryside boys qualified for the state championship in six individual events:

Buffalo Grove In League

The Buffalo Grove Boys Football Association has been admitted to the Northern Illinois Junior Football League and will begin play in 1972.

The announcement was made by NIJFL President Philip Thorne following March 14 League meeting at Round Lake. The 13-member League had to choose between Mundelein and Buffalo Grove and selected Buffalo Grove as its 14th member.

Buffalo Grove will field two tackle football teams into the NIJFL. One team will compete in the 110-pound-and under Lightweight Division; the other team will play in the Heavyweight Division — boys over 110 pounds. The League plays an eight-game schedule in September and October. Games are played on Sunday afternoons.

The Buffalo Grove Boys Football Association was formed in October 1971 by a group of men interested in forming a tackle football program in the village. The Association is looking for men interested in helping the program in such areas as: publicity, fund-raising, equipment, coaching, and registration.

Currently, the Association is concentrating on raising money for the program.

The association will also be looking for anyone interested in organizing cheerleading squads for the teams.

If you are interested in helping on the program, you are urged to contact the Association at: Buffalo Grove Boys Football, P.O. Box 123, Buffalo Grove, Illinois 60089.

Or, you can attend the next Association meeting on Wednesday, March 29 at 8 p.m. at the Buffalo Grove Park District Building, 150 Raupp Blvd.

Grid Sign-Ups In Elk Grove

In order to meet the equipment requirements of the George Halas Football and Pee Wee Division football teams this season, and due to the estimated increase in registrants, the Elk Grove Village Athletic Association is having registrations on Saturday, March 28 and Saturday, April 8 at Elk Grove Bowl from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Registration fees are $22 for the first boy in a family, $15 for the second, and $10 for each boy thereafter. As in the past, only the Pee Wee boys will pay fees at time of registration. All others may pay when they are placed on a team during practice in August.

Tourney Title To Little City

There were no losers as new stars were born at Little City where retarded youngsters staged their first basketball tournament.

Donald Becker, superintendent of Little City, presented the first place trophy to coach Baskin and members of his high-scoring team.

The Little City team of Palatine emerged as the champion by defeating Kirk Center of Palatine, 50-19. Coached by Nell Baskin, the Little City team was led by their super star and most valuable player, Michael Frazier who pumped in 32 points.

Stratford School lost to Little City, 66-12, in the first round play but came back to whip Molloy, 24-14, and become runner-up in the tournament.

But, the real story was the fun the mentally retarded kids had meeting the challenge of athletic competition and learning the meaning of teamwork.

Four suburban schools — Little City, Palatine; Samuel Kirk Center, Palatine; Molloy Treatment Center, Morton Grove, and the Stratford School of Highland Park — have formed the Northwest Suburban Athletic Association conference, for the trainable mentally handicapped students. The first conference basketball tournament took place this month at the Little City gymnasium.

Bad Bill

Bill Bridges, now of the Philadelphia 76ers, set the NBA record for most fouls in one season when he was whistled for 366 personals during the 1967-68 season.

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

THERE'S A HUNGRY grey squirrel screaming profanities at me through my office window.

There are some small warblers and a pair of cardinals at the bird feeder.

The ice is breaking up fast on the lake and the coots are moving in. Before long they'll be stumbling around the lawn on long, gawky legs that are made for swimming, digging at the crab grass roots and the loose corn the kids put out for them.

All of the oak trees need pruning; there's a representative stock of vintage 1971 leaves on the grass. Although I left the utility shed unlocked all winter, no one item, lawn mower, rake, shovel... nothing was stolen. Next year I'm putting up signs.

As I am sure, it is at your house, spring presents all of the above and some substantially more important duties that require your attention. I use a Spring Check-List to be sure that everything gets done. And I present it here in case you'd like to use it as a guide to prepare your home for the summer.

Items are listed in order of importance.

1. Make up Spring Check-List for wife. (Personal note: She'll need a scraper for the peeling paint on the south side of the house.)

2. Buy a new 12 volt battery for the boat. (Note: Each fall I take the older of the two batteries in the boat and put it in one of the cars. The new battery, each spring, is then used on the electric fishing motor and the year-old battery goes back to the outboard position.)

3. Buy new batteries for the Lowrance fish locator.

4. Tune the Chrysler outboards and give the boat a general cleaning out. Double-check the bow-mount for the electric motor; test the stringing in the landing net; test the steering cables and lubricate the pulleys.

5. Edit carefully Spring Check-List presented to me by wife.

6. Remove all of last year's line from all reels and rewind with fresh line, as follows: 2 lb. mono on ultra-light; 6 lb. mono on spinning reels; 12 lb. braided on revolving spool worm reels; 17 lb. No-Bo on spooning reels; 20 lb. mono on coho trolling reels.

7. Use emery paper to smooth all the guides on all the rods where any burrs or rough edges might cut the line. Lightly lubricate all reels and all rod ferrules. Glue down loose rod-wrappings.

8. Sharpen blade on wife's lawn mower.

9. Get a new pair of polarized sunglasses. (Note: Try the Foster-Grant "flip-ups" that flip the lenses up so you can see in shadows.)

10. See how what's-her-name is doing on her Check-List and then start on the tackle box:

Tackle-Box Check-List

1. Dump out everything on the floor. It's best to use the living room carpet, so as not to chip painted lures.

2. Separate the lures into groups, as follows:

a) Caught most of my fish on this type.

b) Caught several fish on this type.

c) Caught a few fish on this type.

d) Caught no fish on this type

3. Throw away all lures in Group "d." Don't give them to the kids for their tackle boxes, since they probably won't have any better success with them than you did. If you didn't catch any fish on a particular type lure, then either you didn't try it, you don't know how to use it, or, you were sold a pup.

4. Thoroughly scrub, with soap and water, the inside of the tackle box. If you have cork liners in the box, dab them dry. Be certain you rinse all the soap out of the box, or you'll have soap-flavored lures all summer long and wonder why you can't catch fish. The kitchen sink is the best place for this job.

5. Check all bottles of pork rind and pork baits. If the brine in the bottle still covers the baits, they will be all right for this season. Carefully check the caps on the bottles to be sure the brine has not corroded them. If they leak, they'll run everything in the tackle box.

6. Back to the lures that you now have spread carefully in groups around the living room. All the plastic worms that you did not keep in a plastic bag or plastic worm box, throw away. They are so impregnated with a variety of "flavors" and odors, they're likely to repel fish. Touch up the finish on all the lures. Particularly on white and partially white lures, repaint. Take a piece of monofilament and check all the slip-sinkers you used last year. If any of them bind and don't slide freely on the line, throw them away.

Check all feather, rubber and hair jigs. If they weren't cleaned last fall and are matted now, chances are you won't be able to restore their flair. Throw them away. Check all spinner-baits to be sure the spinners turn freely. If the spinner blades are corroded, detach and throw away the bad blade and replace with a snap-on spinner blade.

7. Hooks. Number 3 hooks measure about an inch from the bottom of the bend to the eye. You can sharpen, rather handily, this size and larger. Smaller hooks should be replaced if they are dull or rusted. All your extra loose hooks should be "strung," according to size, on safety pins.

8. Now, replace all the lures in the tackle box, neatly, and take a picture of it, because you may never see it in such remarkably good order again until next spring.

9. Remind wife it's getting too dark for her to do a first class paint-scrapping job and to come on in the house.

10. If you are not an ice-fisherman, then you are probably carrying around an expired fishing license. Buy a new one immediately. You can't go fishing tonight, but you'll sleep better knowing that you're ready.

The most important thing to remember about this annual spring home cleanup, is that you have to be completely ruthless in your decisions.

For example, no matter how attractive a lure may be to you, if it doesn't take fish for you, it has no value and only takes up space in your tackle box. Last year's line may seem okay, but it has been wound tightly on the reel all winter. If you don't want to replace the entire load, at least reel off the first 10 or 12 feet and throw it away.

That "old-favorite" reel may be an old friend, but if it isn't working perfectly, especially in the drag, it will have to go. The reel may not be all there is to fishing, but it can stop your casts, shorten them, or lose fish for you faster than any other single item.

And finally, in the ruthless department, you may have to check back more often than you would like, to be certain that she's keeping current on her check-list. But a firm, positive approach is the only way to get things done.

Conant's Surge To Sweet Sixteen Highlighted A Season To Remember

by LARRY EVERHART

Conant's basketball season lasted one week longer than most anyone expected this year. It was during that extra week that the Cougar cagers truly put the school and town of Hoffman Estates on the Illinois map outside of this area.

Any team that wins a sectional basketball title and gains the coveted Sweet Sixteen in the tradition-packed Illinois state cage tourney makes its name heard throughout the Land of Lincoln.

For the uninformed — of which there must be a few among basketball fans in this area — that is exactly what Conant did this season. This wouldn't be anything new in places like Galesburg, Quincy, Decatur, Centralia or Collinsville.

But for a school like Conant — in only its eighth year and from an area that never before had produced a sectional champ — the Sweet Sixteen coup made it The Season That Was.

(Last in a series of reviews of varsity basketball seasons at high schools in the Herald circulation area.)

"What can I say? It was a very rewarding season," understated coach Dick Redlinger. "By the end, we were getting the very maximum effort out of every kid, right down to the end of the bench. That's what the game is all about."

"I expected that we'd do well all through the season. I knew we had good material all along. But to be honest, I never thought about the Sweet Sixteen."

Again, reviewing what happened for the few who might not have heard — the Cougars won the Palatine Regional with wins over Palatine and Fremd in unimpressive efforts. Sure, they were in the Barrington Sectional, but no one took Conant seriously — no one except, that is, Redlinger and the Cougars themselves.

People started to sit up and take notice when Conant pulled off a tremendous, thrilling upset over heavily-favored Elgin. The final score was 65-64 after a long, desperate shot by 6-4 forward Chet Pudlosky that ripped the cords with three seconds left.

The Cougars trounced Rochelle, a team no one thought would make it that far either — for the sectional title (86-67) before being blown off the court, 93-53, against powerful East Aurora, eventual third-place winners in the state.

All of this served to erase the bitter disappointment the Cougars felt in not winning the South Division of the Mid-Suburban League — a division they had led late in the season. A heartbreaking 79-78 loss to Elk Grove in the final game killed Conant's title chances.

Still, there were thrills and gratification in the season even discounting

The University of Louisville has the most consecutive winning seasons among major college basketball teams, 27. Dayton and UCLA have each recorded 500 or better records for 23 straight seasons to tie for second place, while Duke with 21 straight and Cincinnati with 18 round out the top five.

all the tournament hysteria. For instance:

• Conant put together an eight-game winning streak, at mid-season, easily the longest in school history.

• The Cougars captured the Grant Invitational Holiday title just before the New Year with a thrilling 51-50 victory over Wauconda on a shot by Bill Arkus with 10 seconds left.

• The 19-7 overall record was easily the best in school history. (The previous peak had been 11-8 a year ago.)

• Last, but not least, as Redlinger said, "It was a great bunch of guys with the best attitude. They gave me everything they had, especially toward the end."

Rebounding and a tough zone defense were the Conant trademarks. They offset the fact that it was not by any means an explosive or flashy team. The Cougars' deliberate, careful style meant they didn't run away with many impressive routs, but by the same token formed consistency and made them tough against everyone. (Well, almost everyone. Forget that East Aurora game.)

"If we had any weakness," said Redlinger, "it would be that not all of our kids had played together before this year. (Guard Rick) Pearson transferred from Indiana and (guard Gary) Pemberton from Texas just last year. And not all of the others were on the same lower level teams."

"I wonder just how much more they could have done if they had all played together four years."

Individual spearheads, at least scoring-wise, were Arkus and Pudlosky. They were different types of players but each outstanding in his own right and they fit together well, along with the rest.

Pudlosky was the first Conant player ever named to the elite five-man all-Herald area squad, drawn from 15 schools. He had the most rebounds in the MSL by a healthy margin and averaged an excellent 15.3 rebounds per game for all 26 contests. Chet had 399 boards, almost exactly double the previous school record he had set last year.

He scored 444 points for a 17.0 average, taking up the slack, after Arkus — previous team scoring leader — was knocked out for the season with a knee injury in the first regional game.

As Redlinger said of his prize 6-4 forward, "Chester was the one who carried us through the tournament. He was our floor leader who would talk to the guys and calm them down. And I can't say enough about his rebounding. He made it go out there."

Of 5-8 guard Arkus, who averaged 17.4 for his 22 games, the coach merely asked, "What can you say? He was a real competitor. He did everything well."

Dave Schmitt, regular 6-7 center, was not a big scorer but was tough in the bread-and-butter rebounding and defense departments. "There were three or four games that he won for us," said Redlinger. "I just wish I had him another year. He had the good attitude and worked hard."

He also lauded forward George Pattée, the same type of player — often unnoticed but effective. "He started slow," recalled the coach, "and had trouble with illness, but he really came on at the end. He was quite a rebounder and always did what I told him. If anything, he might have tried too hard at times."

Pattée was the second best rebounder on the team, his 197 total falling just three short of the school record until this year.

Redlinger added, "I felt all along that we had one of the best pairs of guards around Pearson was fabulous all year. He tried hard and was one of the best dribblers in the area in a long time."

Pemberton fit in very well under pressure in Arkus' place in time of need. "He was a transfer and not used to our style," said Redlinger, "but he caught on and came on like gangbusters. We never would have gotten as far as we did without him."

Next year may be a rebuilding year even though there are promising juniors. The sophomore corps is exceptional, though, having just finished off a 19-1 season. "We'll be back in two years," says Redlinger.

When he says that, he may mean back to the supersectional. And he may well be right.

In the meantime, there are cherished memories from the past season — memories to last a long time.

Meeting, Draft Slated For Elk Grove Baseball

Elk Grove Village Boys Baseball will start this season with the annual spring meeting Friday, March 24 at 8 p.m. at the Holiday Inn located in Elk Grove.

Commissioner John Kichka will conduct the business meeting, discussing plans and programs for the coming season. Active members of Elk Grove Village Boys Baseball will be asked to vote to ratify the proposed By-Law Revisions which the Board of Directors has already approved.

The basic issues to be amended concern more playing time (three innings minimum per boy per game instead of one) and continuous batting order for boys participating in the A, B, and the Instructional League.

Managers will then participate in the annual drafting of players. Assistant Commissioner Red Tompkins, who has been in charge of registration, will conduct the draft.

Boys whose names will come up for draft are those who played in the 1971 Instructional League 13-year-old boys entering the Pony League and 15-year-old boys entering the Coli League. Boys who did not play last year or boys who are new residents will also be drafted.

Boys will be notified of their team and manager in April. Fathers who are interested in coaching should contact their sons' manager personally.

Umpire-In-Chief Erv Morrenzin is in need of more men to volunteer their services, to umpire league games. With 1,000 boys participating in this year's program, many umpires are necessary in order to make the season a success. Persons interested should contact Mr. Morrenzin at 437-3282.

Babe Ruth League Forms

The newly-formed Woodfield Babe Ruth League announced that registration of 13, 14 and 15 year olds is now being accepted.

All boys interested in playing Babe Ruth Baseball may register at Omega Sport Shop in Hoffman Estates or Streamwood starting today through April 15. Registration fee is $25.

Registrations have also been accepted by the Hoffman Estates Athletic Association, Schaumburg Athletic Association and Palatine Baseball Club.

Current plans call for a six-team league from the Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Palatine areas. Those wishing further information should call Commissioner Lou Bocci at 894-4456.

Agency Seeks Help For Migrants

by JACK PENCHOFF

A Mexican-American family, whose members for years had come to Illinois from Texas each spring for farm work, recently decided to settle permanently in this area.

With the help of the Illinois Migrant Council (IMC), the father quickly got a non-seasonal job. But after an unsuccessful two-month search for a place to live, the family moved back to Texas, their hopes of finding a new home and a better life lost for the present.

Breaking that "migrant cycle," which locks workers into farm and nursery jobs and leaves them dependent on their seasonal employers for housing, is one of the goals of the IMC. The key, said IMC organizer Clementi Fasci, is housing.

"We can find jobs for those who wish to stay but our big problem is finding housing for them," he says. One reason, according to Fasci, is that migrant families are large, averaging eight members.

"WITH A FAMILY that size, you need a house or a very large apartment to accommodate them. An apartment that big would probably be too expensive," he says.

Already, some of the 650 migrant Mexican-Americans who will work in Northwest Cook County this year are beginning to arrive. A total of about 3,000 will be seeking seasonal jobs and seasonal housing in all of northern Illinois. Of those, Fasci says, only half will return to permanent homes in Texas.

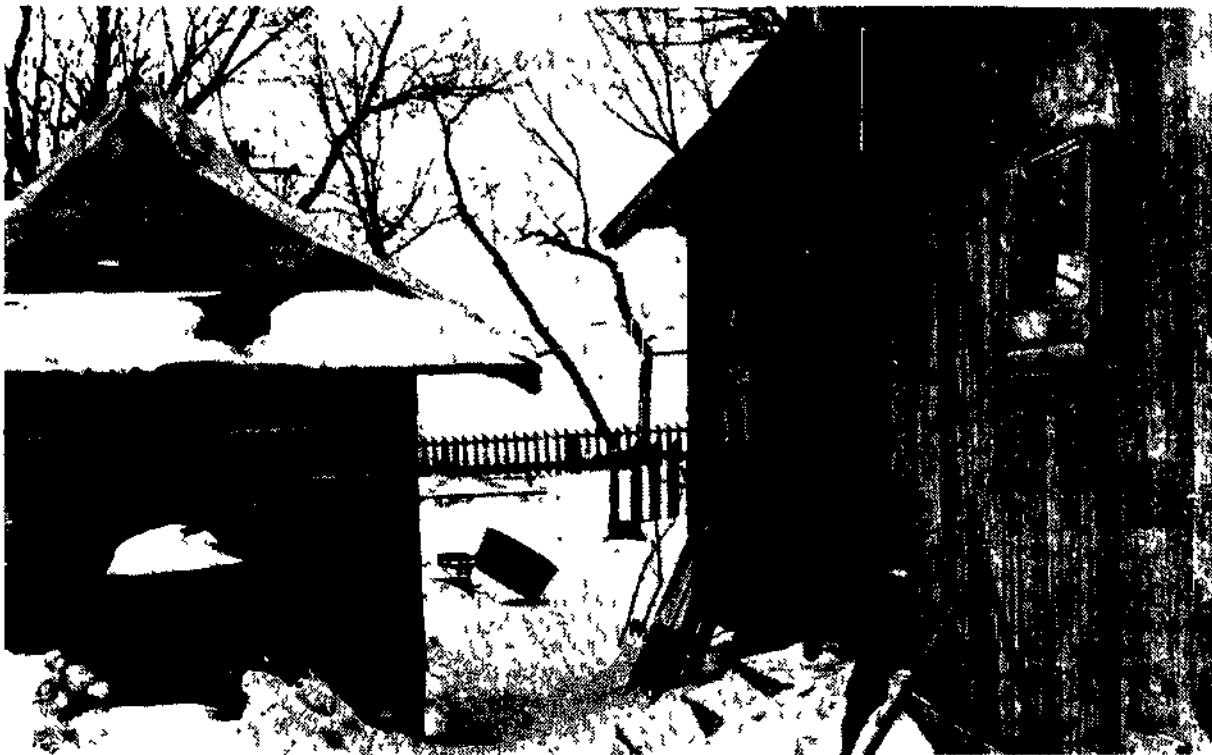

The rest will continue to follow the crops from state-to-state. Although seasonal jobs increasingly are more difficult to get, it's the difficulties in finding permanent housing that often prevent those families from "settling out" of the migrant cycle, says Fasci.

"Fewer migrants are being hired now because farms have become more mechanized and machines are doing the work the migrant worker used to do," he says. "It's those who just keep moving from state-to-state we're trying to reach and help them settle out permanently in an area."

THE IMC, headquartered in Crystal Lake, has established a program that encourages churches and other organizations to "adopt" a migrant family for a month. The church or other group provides $300 for expenses such as food, rent and utilities. During the month, both a job and permanent housing are sought by the head of the family with the help of IMC.

When it's over, the IMC feels the family should have had enough time to become adjusted to the community and begin to take care of itself.

"The average annual income of a migrant family is $3,000 and with that they have no insurance, their children aren't educated and the workers don't know their legal rights. We're working to help those people who want to settle out, find jobs and become part of the community," says Fasci.

THE MIGRANT CYCLE, which often forces families of farm and nursery workers to live in housing like this, is the target of the Illinois Migrant Council. The council is seeking churches or other organizations to "adopt" a

Last year, the IMC helped 44 migrant families settle in this area. Family heads were taught the basics of looking for jobs, filling out applications and developing special skills. This year, field representatives are traveling to farms, seeking out workers and offering help breaking the migrant cycle.

"When a representative goes to a farm, he counsels the worker about his needs and legal problems and at the same time offers him a chance to settle out. Some would like to, but don't know how to go about it," says Fasci.

FOR THOSE who go back to Texas, he says, there are no jobs and nothing to do but try to get unemployment compensation.

According to Fasci, the IMC's "adoption" program is needed to help migrant families make the transition from a rural, paternalistic job and housing pattern to self-reliance in an industrialized metropolitan area. He says the Illinois Migrant Council is seeking churches or other groups in the area to help out and urges them to contact the IMC at its Crystal Lake office.

Jill Is Deliciously Feminine

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — I have been wanting to tell you for some time my feelings in regard to Miss Jill St. John. You see, some of the fellows at the office have been giving me curious looks ever since I wrote that I thought Miss Barbara Streisand was beautiful. Well, she is, in a special kind of way, and Marcello Mastroianni thought so, too, and said so, but everybody is nice and polite to movie stars and I'm sure nobody hassled him while he was opening the mail at the office.

Anyway, I just wanted you to know I think Miss St. John, of television and movie fame, as they say, is really getting magnificent looking with each passing year — I figure she is about 30 now, according to writeups — and she has the kind of straight-out, old fashioned sex appeal that is wondrous to behold.

JUST AS IMPORTANT, though, she has developed into a much better film performer than she is given credit for, having progressed from decorative parts to roles in which she genuinely shows comedy and dramatic ability when given the chance. I met her only once, well over a decade ago, and she wasn't much of a performer then, or, in my opinion, very great looking either. Now, as we all know from reading the essential news, she not only has beauty and some talent but also a bit of jewelry and such good friends as Frank Sinatra and Henry Kissinger.

Reliable sources report Miss St. John is quite intelligent and reasonably witty. There is nothing like having a reliable source. Anyway, consider the reputation she had to overcome as an actress, having made such films as "Summer Love," "His & His," "The Oscar" and "Who's Been Sleeping in My Bed?"

On the other hand, one sometimes forgets she has also done pretty fair work in such other movies as "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone," "Come Blow Your Horn," "Tender is the Night" and "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker," as well as contributing pleasantly to the James Bond tale "Diamonds are Forever," with Sean Connery.

Well, anyway, she was born in Los Angeles, her family name was Oppenheim and she did radio soap opera as a kid. She's no threat to Shakespeare, and an Audrey Hepburn she ain't. But she is startlingly beautiful, apparently gutsy and smart, and deliciously feminine on the screen, where her talents continue to improve. Who knows? Maybe there were times Audrey Hepburn wished she looked like Jill St. John.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Over a year ago my nose was stuffed up while I was pregnant so I started using a nasal spray. I have been using it ever since. I thought if I just stopped using the spray maybe I could get over it by myself, but I was just so miserable I had to go back to the spray again.

I have tried everything, but nothing else works. I have never had a day of sinus or nose trouble in my life before. There is no sinus trouble history in my family except for one sister. What could cause my nose to act up like this and isn't there a cure or help for me? Please don't tell me to stop using nasal spray. I know too much isn't good for me but I just can't do without it.

Dear Reader — I am afraid you will have to do without it if you are going to get over your problem. You are describing a common complication of the use of some types of nasal spray.

The spray causes the lining inside the nose to shrink. The lining initially swells know too much isn't good for me but I with blood and fluid which we call engorgement. This gives you the stuffy feeling. The sprays normally contain medicine that causes the blood vessels to constrict. The fluid is then absorbed out of the boggy tissues and of course your nose no longer feels stuffy. You feel more comfortable but the hooker is that once the medicine in the spray has worn off the blood flow to the lining in the nose is actually increased and the engorgement is worse than before.

The patient then uses more nasal spray and he keeps getting relief and rebound, relief and rebound, and finally he develops a chemical sinusitis in which there is considerable damage to the usual normal functions of the linings in the nose.

This is why doctors aren't very enthusiastic about the persistent use of very many nasal sprays. I think that if you have had this trouble for over a year now you probably already have enough chemical irritation that it would be wise for you to see an ear, nose and throat specialist and see if he can do something about the lining in your nose that is now causing you this persistent trouble. It is not going to get better the way you are doing things now.

The small hairs in the nasal passages are nature's strainer and help to clean the air. They can be paralyzed by the spray. In general patients with nasal stuffiness or colds who do need some relief do better with medicines taken by mouth. These medicines have a general effect and are less likely to harm the nasal lining. There are exceptions but you would be wise not to take drops except under a doctor's advice.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

When you hold pressure cards in three suits you may be able to work a double-squeeze in which you squeeze both your opponents.

South bid his hand with all the delicacy of a steam roller. When North admitted possession of two aces and two kings, South counted 12 top tricks and felt that the Lord would provide a 13th for him. The game was duplicate so South placed the grand slam in no-trump.

The queen of clubs lead was encouraging. It looks as if West might be the only player to be able to stop clubs. Then if East was the only man able to stop either of the major suits a double-squeeze would be automatic.

He won the club and cashed five diamonds while discarding one card in each suit from dummy. West discarded two clubs, East three hearts.

That gave South all the information he needed. East was obviously very long in hearts. Thus South was ready to put real pressure on West.

He led a heart to dummy's ace and came back to his king. West discarded a spade. Now South led his last diamond and West had to let another spade go. He was still under club pressure.

Dummy's nine of clubs was thrown and East let his club go. Now South's last club was led to dummy and East had to

The Lighter Side

Wipe Out Poverty Pockets

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is devoting a good bit of time this year to rethinking the concept of federal aid for hard-pressed regions.

Revenue-sharing is one of the plans under consideration and there has been talk of a value added tax to help finance public schools.

But I personally favor the approach suggested by Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn, D-S.C., at recent House hearings on regional economic development commissions operated by the Commerce Department.

These commissions channel federal grants and public works projects into depressed areas for the purpose of stimulating their economy. Dorn called that program outmoded.

He said a better way to attain that objective would be to hold presidential primaries in those areas. When he was in New Hampshire last week, Dorn said, he found the hotels full, the restaurants doing capacity business and the airlines booked solid.

HE SAID HE even heard reports that the bars were overflowing, although he could not attest to that from first hand knowledge.

The boom, he surmised, had been generated by the New Hampshire primary, which brought a multitude of candidates, campaign workers, journalists and other big spenders into the state. If it uplifted New Hampshire, Dorn reasoned, primaries could be used to wipe out pockets of poverty anywhere in the nation.

He is right, of course. The only flaw in the Dornian theory is its parochial confinement to domestic economic recovery.

Let us not forget that Congress also is spending a lot of time this year rethinking the concept of foreign aid. There are strong objections to sending any more cash to underdeveloped countries.

BUT SURELY no one would object if we send them a few presidential candidates, of which we have an embarrassment of riches. Let us say that Bangladesh, for example, announces it is holding a presidential primary. Candidates would rush there with their entourages, bringing an end to hunger and privation.

They wouldn't, it is true, win any delegates in Bangladesh. But that shouldn't stop them from entering the primary.

Most of them didn't win any delegates in New Hampshire either.

And the beauty of it is, in Bangladesh they wouldn't have to answer any questions about busing.

Rev. Freddie Gage

Hip Pastor Preaches To 'Freaks'

by TOM TIEDE
RIVERDALE, Md. — The church is filled almost to capacity. Some bald heads. Many in the 30 to 40 age group. And hundreds and hundreds of kids. Shhhhhhh. Let us pray.

... And, Lord, we know that the young people here have money, too, and they can give. We pray that we may all give liberally. In Jesus name, Amen."

Pass the plate.
Clink, clink.
Quiet.

There he is! White boots. Double breasted, double knit, double look suit. Reverend Freddie Gage! The Underworld Preacher. Red Bible in hand. Finger popping at the audience. "Hey, man, ain't this something? All you people out there. Hey, man, this is really right on. Right? You kids, right? Right on. Man. Right on. Praise God. Hey! How many out there have bought my record? It's in the lobby. Five bucks. What are you, a bunch of cheapskates?"

There are, at conservative count, more than 200 traveling Baptist preachers in the United States. But there seems to be only one Freddie Gage. Some people would say Amen to that and thank heaven. But others, many others, are more than happy that Rev. Freddie Gage, white boots and all, is on the religious stump. His followers, mostly young, believe Reverend Gage is the damndest sin killer of them all.

GAGE IS BILLED as the friend of the freak. He claims he was once a drug abuser on the seamy side of Houston, Tex. He says he spent his youth running with crum-bums, shilling for pushers and badgering cops. But he was lucky. Says he: "I found Jesus when I was 19 and I been shilling for Him ever since."

Reverend Freddie is 37 now. His hairline is receding. And his attempts at dropout dialect ("I gotta splt, man") are a bit much. But in a time of teenage Jesus fads, the hipster pastor is enjoying unprecedented popularity. He spends 20 days a month on the road crusading for the souls of "motorcycle riders, drug addicts, hippies" and the rest of the kids he says the church has given up for lost.

"You ain't lost with Jesus," he assures the young faces in the mahogany pews. And the remark is usually greeted with a mumbled, appreciative "amen to that."

Gage believes that delinquent kids can find themselves by finding God. It's as simple as that. And to prove it, he relates endless success stories about his own "Pulpit in the Shadows." The pulpit, located on Houston's north side, is a drug rehabilitation center. Reverend Freddie says 3,000 kids have found Jesus and new life in the place. "I started it in 1963 and it's still going strong. We get all kinds there. You name it. I've seen many a sad case. But Jesus greets them all the same. He's ready to help. Man, I've seen thousands of kids kick the drug habit just by being there with Jesus."

There are, of course, many people who wonder about what Reverend Freddie has really seen. Skeptics familiar with narcotics addiction are not quick to accept the possibility that the Bible is of any physiological benefit to a junkie on smack. The reverend's motives are not questioned. But his intelligence is his knowledge of drugs is superficial, and dated. And his moral stuffiness is of his own rather than the present generation. ("I don't allow smoking in my pulpit ...

I think we ought to talk to God five times a day ...").

STILL, HIS FOLLOWING grows. The kids love him. He has participated in more than 700 evangelistic crusades, addressed assemblies in an equal number of schools, and saved, he says, "something over a quarter of a million souls."

He does all this pleasantly, as itinerant Baptist preachers go. He doesn't shout a crack in the cross. He isn't hooked on orthodox ("My only hangup is John, 3rd chapter"). And he's even witty: "Sometimes you get tired preaching. I remember one night I got on a plane and I was so tired I promised myself I wouldn't try to convert the pilot, or the stewardess. I'd just go to sleep and not even think about Jesus. Then up comes this little old lady and she says to me: 'Is this seat saved?' I said I don't know lady, but I sure am."

He goes on like that until the service is over. Praise God.

Organ music. People get up to go. "Now I'm gonna ask you one more thing," Reverend Freddie says, unfortunately. "I'm gonna ask you to please buy my record when you leave the church." (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

State Tax Questions Answered

Q—I AM A domestic worker. When I asked my employer for a W-2 form, I found that she did not withhold any State income tax. Was my employer supposed to withhold State income tax?

A—No. Under provisions of the federal law, domestics and agricultural workers are exempt from withholding and Illinois has the same provisions. All domestics and agricultural workers are supposed to pay their taxes by estimated tax returns.

Q—I HEARD that some of my pension benefits may not be taxed on the Illinois State return. How can I find out what to report of my return?

A—The agency or firm making the payments will furnish you Form IL-W-2P indicating amount to be reported. The IL-W-2P must be attached to your return.

Q—THIS YOUNG MAN lives in Chicago, employed by a firm in Chicago. He will continue with his Chicago employer but on Oct. 1, 1971 he moved to Terre Haute, Ind. and established permanent residence there. Where does he file his return? Does he pay income tax to both Illinois and Indiana?

A—He files a return in both states and is subject to tax liability in both states, but claims a credit on the Illinois return of taxes paid to Indiana.

Q—MY ILLINOIS STATE refund will be over $100. Can I arrange to have part of this amount applied to my 1972 estimated tax?

A—Yes, your overpayment can be in part refunded and in part applied to your 1972 estimated tax.

On your IL-104 indicate on Line 12 A the amount you want credited to your 1972 estimated tax. On Line 26 B show the amount to be refunded.

Close Race Between Muskie And McCarthy

Early Tally Shows Dem Gains In GOP Areas

Early returns from Schaumburg Township showed what must be termed "surprising" results from an area traditionally represented as a strong Republican dominated area.

Slightly more than one hour after the polls closed, initial returns showed candidates on the county and state level drawing strong voter interest.

With only 10 precincts reporting early in the evening, total votes on the state level were: Simon, 332; Walker, 798. On the county level, Hanrahan, 493; Moore, 479; Berg, 122.

In the presidential preference poll, a close race between Democratic candidates Eugene McCarthy and Ed Muskie was developing. With only 10 precincts of the total 38 precincts in the township reporting, Muskie was leading McCarthy 367 to 307.

IN THE CRUCIAL race for the 3rd House District, early returns from Wheeling Township showed Mrs. Virginia Macdonald with a clear lead over either Schaumburg Republican Committeeman Don Totten and Mayor Roland Meyer of Rolling Meadows. In Wheeling Township, home area for Mrs. Macdonald, she was leading the other candidates. Initial tallies had Mrs. Macdonald with 1454 votes; Totten, 710 and Meyer, 429.

Schaumburg Township Democrats who were happy about the heavy voter turnout early in the evening, quickly turned to sounding a sour note when the first precinct results began to come in yesterday.

Early returns showed maverick Democrats Daniel Walker and Donald Page Moore soundly outdistancing party-backed Paul Simon and Raymond Berg. Moore was running a nip and tuck race against Edward V. Hanrahan. Township Democratic Committeeman John Morrissey called the early results "disastrous" for the regular Democrats. He also predicted the turnout to be about four times greater than any previous Democratic primary. John P. Kelly, Democratic candidate for the state house, would say only that the race was "interesting." He added a clear trend would not be seen until Chicago votes were added with suburban results.

In Schaumburg Township precincts Totten is running first, followed by Mrs. Macdonald. Rolling Meadows Mayor Meyer is a distant.

"I'm certain from the results I've seen it's Macdonald and Totten," said Totten.

As of 7:30 the Schaumburg Township results were: Totten, 3,916½; Macdonald, 1,489; Meyer, 1,298.

THOUSANDS OF SUBURBAN voters cast their ballots yesterday in neighborhood schools and other polling places in the Illinois primary election. A surprise switch by many voters to the Democratic side of the ballot made the results in the suburbs even more important to county and state races than usual.

Hanrahan's The Man, Say Area Voters

Edward V. Hanrahan, based on early returns last night, appeared to be the Democrats' candidate for state's attorney.

With 492 of 3,205 precincts reporting at 7:30 p.m. in the city of Chicago, the unslated state's attorney held a commanding 46,586 to 31,951 lead over the organization's candidate, Raymond K. Berg.

Donald Page Moore, running as an independent Democrat, was running third with 18,493 votes.

In the suburbs, Hanrahan was substantially ahead of his two opponents with only 22 precincts reporting. Hanrahan had tallied 1,116 votes with Moore second with 384 and Berg third with 250 votes.

Democrats who filtered in and out of the county clerk's third floor office in the County Building reportedly were muttering, "Hanrahan's the people's choice."

For Berg, the Democratic organization's regular choice, it appeared that it would be a long night indeed. Berg's greatest strength had been expected to be the city, where Mayor Richard Daley's army of political workers had been expected to give him a substantial lead.

Additional early returns showed Paul Simon running ahead of maverick Democrat Daniel Walker. With 442 precincts reporting in Chicago and the suburbs, Simon had tallied 44,908 votes to 35,979 for Walker.

A few scattered suburban returns, however, indicated Walker was running ahead of Simon in the rest of Cook County.

Don Totten Breaks Out Champagne

Donald Totten predicted heavy victory in his race for state representative with nearly all of Schaumburg Township precincts reporting.

Totten, Schaumburg Township Republican committeeman, carried the Village of Schaumburg by more than 300 votes than his closest contender. In the village a total of 2,486 Republican votes were cast.

Totten garnered 1,144 votes while Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer got 825. Virginia Macdonald ran third in the Village of Schaumburg with 517.

Even Totten expressed surprise at the heavy Democratic vote in the usually solid Republican Township. He predicted, however, the switchover of staunch Republicans would help him, claiming most of Meyer's support was from independents and Democrats.

He claimed the Republican turnout for the primary was larger per precinct than in the 1970 election. He predicted Republicans would return to the fold next November.

While Totten claimed confidence, the general atmosphere at Schaumburg Township Republican headquarters remained tense until nearly 7:30 p.m. when returns began to come in more heavily.

Voting totals prior to that time were inconclusive. By 8 p.m. last night, though, the Totten backers were breaking out champagne, and Totten was served the first glass.

Donald Totten

Sitting across the table from Totten was his wife, Joyce, who said she was "a little bit nervous." Describing the scene as "very exciting" at headquarters she said her husband's race "looked pretty good."

Hansen's Early Reaction: 'Fantastic'

"Fantastic, fantastic," was all Carl Hansen, could say Tuesday night as he watched early returns come in at Elk Grove Township Republican headquarters in Mount Prospect.

Hansen, the township Republican committeeman, watched with obvious satisfaction as the township endorsed state representative candidates gained a wide early margin over Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer.

With 12 early precincts in, party regulars Virginia Macdonald and Donald Totten each had rolled up 2-1 margins over Meyer, and Hansen was confident the margins would continue.

"It'll be 2-1 by the time we're done," he said. "The only way Totten could foul this up is in his own township."

"We estimated that Meyer spent at least $30,000 in mailing — which is a lot of money to spend on a campaign," Hansen said. "Maybe this will show the mayors ought not to get involved in partisan politics."

Told later that Totten's Schaumburg Township was showing equal majorities for its Republican committeeman, Hansen declared, "We're in, Totten and Macdonald have won."

With 15 precincts reporting, Totten had 1,269 votes; Mrs. Macdonald 1,247; and Meyer, 573.

Looking at the early returns Hansen noted there had been "massive switchovers of Republicans to the Democratic side. . . . Now all we have to do is get them back in the fall to the Republican side."

As more precinct totals rolled in precinct captains and party workers appeared pleased at the results but somewhat surprised at the cross over. "It's been amazing," said one precinct worker of the voter crossover.

This Morning In Brief

The State

Sen. Edmund Muskie got off to a quick early lead over Eugene McCarthy in his bid to score a comeback in the Illinois primary. Early returns, most of them from the Chicago area, gave Muskie 14,564 votes or 65 per cent.

Three precinct election judges were arrested on vote tampering charges and later released on $1,000 bond each for a March 29 hearing after an investigation of machines at a precinct polling place in Chicago showed votes had been registered at the time it opened. In another incident, a poll watcher for Daniel Walker, independent Democratic candidate for governor, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct, breach of the peace, and interfering with an election.

The Nation

With Chief Justice Warren Burgher dissenting, the Supreme Court rules 6-1 that state and county laws requiring any lengthy residence in order to vote are unconstitutional. The decision suggested a 30-day waiting period may be enough.

Development Unit OKs Complex Plan

The Schaumburg Development Committee Tuesday accepted Amcon Construction Corp. plans for a 12-story apartment project at Hillcrest and Roselle roads, after the developer agreed to several provisions requested by the village board.

However, Ralph Piwko, representing a group of homeowners who object to the development near their single-family homes, stated he will continue to voice objections at the March 28 board meeting.

On that date the village board of trustees is expected to act on the project. AT A PREVIOUS hearing, Piwko's main concern was drainage and the height of the buildings. Tuesday he echoed the same objections.

The board took these concerns into consideration and requested Amcon expand a retention pond and relocate it on Roselle Road, where a commercial area was planned, Amcon agreed.

The commercial area is now scattered inside the 43-acre site.

The height of the buildings was not discussed, but the developer also agreed to increase the width of a buffer zone between the four 12-story buildings and the single-family homes by 40 feet.

The buffer will total about 300 feet, with the 40-foot greenstrip, a 27-foot roadway and the remainder in a decked underground garage. A full strip of trees will screen the area.

PIWKO SAID HE HAS heard assurances the development will handle its own water runoff, but challenges that statement because he has not seen proof the retention pond will be adequate.

Piwko added he is not sure what the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) suggests for retention but noted the pond's capacity is not stipulated in the plans.

The development committee noted the developer has agreed to all village suggestions and has attempted to satisfy residents' concerns.

Zoning on the site was approved three years ago for buildings up to 20 stories high.

The developer assured the homeowners drainage will have to be approved by the MSD and village.

PIWKO ALSO COMPLAINED the site is not wholly buildable and said soil conservation reports show the top five feet at the back of the site are not buildable.

The developer assured Piwko soil borings to a depth of at least 45 feet must be made before building, and pointed out shallow tests are not conclusive.

Grrrr - It's Cougar Week

March 20-25 has been officially proclaimed Cougar Week by Hoffman Estates Mayor Fred Downey in tribute to the Conant High School basketball team.

"We have recently seen the first time that any school in this area won in regional basketball competition, and want to give support and encouragement to the students, coach and team," he said.

Although the team went into competition through a victory at Barrington, they were later defeated by Aurora East and eliminated from "Sweet Sixteen" competition.

Termining the team's success "an all-out effort of 2,500 students," Downey commended team members and Coach Dick Redlinger for their achievements.

"Everybody can't win in state championship competition, as the Conant team discovered, but as time goes on the players, team coaches and others will focus on that Barrington victory where standards were set for others to follow," the mayor commented.

"As far as the students and this city are concerned, we feel that you are always winners," Downey told team members Bill Arkus, Rick Pearson and Chet Pudlosky.

Larsen To Head Finance Committee

Schaumburg Village Trustee Jack Larsen was named chairman of the village board finance committee last week, filling a post vacant since the resignation of Trustee Gordon Mullins last January.

Larsen formerly headed the village clean environment and health committees, and was responsible for health, safety and ecological programs.

In appointing Larsen to the finance committee chairmanship, Mayor Robert O. Atcher noted he is responsible for budgeting for a major department at Motorola Inc., communications division, Schaumburg. "As consequence, I think he'll do an outstanding job," said Atcher.

Larsen's responsibilities in environment, health and safety will now be handled by Trustee Peter Justen, newest member of the village board. Justen has not yet been named to any other committees, but Atcher appointed him to head the environmental and health units.

Prior To Blast Injuring Trio...

Company's Safety Record Was Good

T and F Fluorocarbon Co., the factory at which an explosion severely burned three men Monday night, had a good safety record prior to Monday's accident, according to Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty.

The equipment explosion at the north industrial park plant, 3860 Edison Place, left one man in critical condition and two in serious condition yesterday at the burn unit of Cook County Hospital.

In critical condition was Robert Greenman, 39, of 7500 Elmhurst Rd., Bensenville. Greenman was admitted with severe burns covering 85 per cent of his body.

In serious condition were Jeff Pedersen, 22, of 1859 Prairie, Park Ridge, and William Lewis, 24, of 295 Alcoa Ln., Hoffman Estates. Both suffered burns over about 40 per cent of their bodies. The three are in intensive care in the hospital burn unit.

The three men were working near a machine that coats cloth with teflon when the explosion occurred. The machine resembles a large printing press with an oven through which the cloth passes in the process of bonding the teflon surface to the material.

Fogarty described the explosion as a backflash under the machine that shot out flames igniting the men's clothing.

FOGARTY SPECULATED that the flames were fueled by chemical vapors exhausting under the machine. The flammable fumes included xylene and silicone, combined with carbon dust, he said.

A company engineer is studying the cause of the explosion in conjunction with the fire department's own investigation. Fogarty said he doesn't expect an engineer's report for about two weeks.

Fogarty said a backflash under a machine like that "never happens" unless something is wrong with the machine's exhaust system. He said the machine is supposed to exhaust from the top and not the bottom.

The company had a good safety record, Fogarty said, and had "no serious problems to my knowledge." He did recall a similar minor backflash at the plant once before when exhaust fumes at the top of the machine ignited. There were no injuries that time.

The machine involved in the explosion is the only one of its kind in the plant, according to owner Warren Frandsen. The explosion made it inoperative.

Property damage from the explosion was minor, according to Fogarty. The flames were confined to the underside of the machine, although enough heat was generated to set off an overhead sprinkling system.

Village Board Tables Action On Requests For Signs

Action approving sign placement requested by Multicon Properties, Inc. and four signs wanted by Barrington Properties, was tabled pending further investigation in Hoffman Estates this week.

Although the zoning board of appeals recommended a variation be granted allowing Multicon to place a 10 by 30 foot sign at Higgins and Shoefactory roads, trustees agreed to postpone approval until additional legal information is obtained. Also pending is approval for Barrington Properties to erect four signs.

Legal investigation and discussions with the developer are expected to take place since the area designated for sign placement is residential.

In other business Monday, the village board amended the local liquor control ordinance by increasing the number of Class B liquor licenses to be issued.

THIS ACTION paves the way for issuance of a license to Gold Eagle Liquors if Mayor Fred Downey, acting as liquor control commissioner, determines all qualifications are met by the firm.

Downey also was authorized to sign Metropolitan Sanitary District permits for the Medcoa Medical Complex, now under construction on Grand Canyon Boulevard, as well as for Crossroads Commons, a section of the Eagle Discount Center being developed at Higgins and Golf roads.

On recommendation of John Hassack, Public Works Superintendent, a $63,927 contract for construction of a pump house for village well number 10 was awarded to Oak Lawn Construction, lowest of nine bidding.

However, a motion authorizing issuance of a well permit for Kaufman and Broad, Inc. for installation of an irrigation facility, was denied.

Deferred for future consideration were discussions concerning proposed amendments to the village water and sewer ordinance, suggested amendments for increasing business and liquor license fees, and acceptance of underground improvements at Barrington Square Industrial Park and Hassell Road in the Kaufman and Broad unit two.

New Court Date Set For Roselle Woman

A 36-year-old Roselle woman is in custody at the Cook County Jail after Schaumburg police arrested her Friday for failing to appear in court to answer a bogus check cashing charge.

Hildegard Hurley, 225 Park Ln., Roselle, was arrested outside the Schaumburg branch of the Cook County Circuit Court after she had appeared on another court matter.

She originally was arrested Feb. 11 and charged with deceptive practice after allegedly cashing checks totaling over $100 in the Schaumburg area.

Miss Hurley was scheduled to appear in court on March 8 to answer those charges. She did not appear.

Her new court date has been set for March 22 in Schaumburg. Bond was set at $2,000.

Two Charged With Burglary

Two men have been charged with burglary and possession of stolen property in connection with the theft of over $3,000 in goods from a Schaumburg home last month.

Schaumburg police said Samuel Fleck, 29, 430 Baker St., Itasca, and Arthur Dexter, 39, 220 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates, were arrested yesterday after an investigation revealed the pair had allegedly burglarized a home in the Knightsbridge subdivision in February. Police said other suspects are still being sought.

Police recovered 200 yards of carpeting and several lamps.

Both men are scheduled to appear April 12 in Schaumburg court. Bond was set at $3,000 each.

Voters in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove turned out in surprising numbers to cast their ballots in strong numbers for the candidates on the Democratic side of the ledger. Heat of the election night activities centered on the race for Cook County state's attorney with early indications county-wide that incumbent Edward V. Hanrahan would be the winner.

Voters in the Democratic primary were apparently confused with the placement on the ballot of Neil Hartigan above Neal Eckert in the race for lieutenant governor. Although this race is not separate from the governor's race between Walker and Simon, the reverse placement on the ballot apparently caused some voters to split their ticket between the Simon-Walker candidacy and the candidacies of Raymond Berg and Edward Hanrahan.

According to James McCabe, Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman, "Berg is getting a shellacking. He got skunked." McCabe interpreted the strong vote for Hanrahan and in some areas for Walker as attacks on the Daley organization.

On the Republican side, Bill Kinkade had a total of 987½ votes in Wheeling Township, 22 out of 30 precincts in.

THE CENTER OF the most celebration in the county seemed to be in the Hanrahan headquarters office at 123 W. Madison St. in Chicago.

According to Herald reporter Roger Capetini, the Hanrahan celebration room downtown was a thunderous assembly of applauding and cheering fans, of a dixieland band and of Candidate Hanrahan standing on a chair to address his supporters.

JAMES MCCABE, Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman, manned the phones at his headquarters at the Union Hotel on Milwaukee Avenue in Wheeling. McCabe later was joined by various Democratic candidates seeking office in the 1st and 3rd Legislative Districts.

McCabe Jubilant Over Dem Showing

Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman James McCabe said last night that the overwhelming turnout in the Democratic primary may result in the party becoming "runalongs" instead of "runalongs."

McCabe pointed to the switchover of Republican voters in the Democratic primary and the increase in Democratic party member turnout and said he hopes this is a trend for November.

Only a handful of Democratic workers were at party headquarters at the Union Hotel in Wheeling when the first returns came in.

As of 9 p.m. the votes showed independent gubernatorial candidate Daniel Walker leading regular Democratic candidate Paul Simon by a 2½-to-1 margin. Independent candidate Donald Page Moore and incumbent Edward Hanrahan were clobbering Raymond Berg in the state's attorney's race.

McCabe said, "They (the voters) say they're attacking Daley and his organization. But they're voting for his right-hand man (Neil Hartigan)." Party officials were at a loss to explain why voters were casting ballots against the Daley endorsed governor and state's attorney candidates, yet were backing Daley's lieutenant governor and candidate.

WITH 40 OF 98 precincts reporting Walker was leading Simon in the governor's race with a total of 3,389 to Simon's 1,337. In the state's attorney's race Moore had 2,162; Hanrahan, 2,035; and Berg, 578.

"I hope we find a silver lining the cloud," said McCabe. "I hope when the primary is over we can unite with independents to bring about victory in November, which is what it's all about."

"To Republicans, I hope they have found it's not too painful to vote Democratic and will do so in the future. I hope they voted out of sincerity. I feel the vote in the suburbs has demonstrated today more than ever before must be taken very seriously."

Edward V. Hanrahan

Hanrahan's The Man, Say Voters

Edward V. Hanrahan, based on early returns last night, appeared to be the Democrats' candidate for state's attorney.

With 492 of 3,205 precincts reporting at 7:30 p.m. in the city of Chicago, the unslated state's attorney held a commanding 46,586 to 31,951 lead over the organization's candidate, Raymond K. Berg.

Donald Page Moore, running as an independent Democrat, was running third with 18,493 votes.

In the suburbs, Hanrahan was substantially ahead of his two opponents with only 22 precincts reporting, Hanrahan had tallied 1,116 votes with Moore second with 384 and Berg third with 250 votes.

Democrats who filtered in and out of the county clerk's third floor office in the County Building reportedly were muttering, "Hanrahan's the people's choice."

For Berg, the Democratic organization's regular choice, it appeared that it would be a long night indeed. Berg's greatest strength had been expected to be the city, where Mayor Richard Daley's army of political workers had been expected to give him a substantial lead.

This Morning In Brief

The State

State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan pulled far ahead of two rivals with more than 25 per cent of the total vote in. Hanrahan had 130,064 to 99,461 for organization-backed candidate Raymond Berg. Donald Page Moore, an independent, trailed with 65,976.

Three precinct election judges were arrested on vote tampering charges and later released on $1,000 bond each for a March 29 hearing after an investigation of machines at a precinct polling place in Chicago showed votes had been registered at the time it opened. In another incident, a poll watcher for Daniel Walker, independent Democratic candidate for governor, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct, breach of the peace, and interfering with an election.

Sponsor Explains Band Trip Plan

Warren Freeman, director of the National Educational Scholarship Foundation, met with members of the Wheeling Instrumental League Monday night to answer questions about the proposed Wheeling band tour of Germany.

The Foundation is sponsoring the musical competition at the German cities of Wiesbaden and Mainz, Aug. 13-27.

Freeman flew here from his home in Connecticut to talk with the league officers and help with any necessary preparations. He explained special arrangements are being made by the Spectrum Travel Agency, an international group carrier, to provide cleaning places for band uniforms plus transportation of instruments.

Spectrum is primarily a "wholesale" dealer which specializes in large tour groups, Freeman said. He added the trip is not the cheapest possible way for the band to travel, but it provides more than minimum accommodations and reservations on approved airlines.

Spectrum has also placed a $1 million deposit in the Michigan National Bank, Freeman said, to "guarantee performance" or make sure the students are able to complete the trip. The bond applies to all of the bands which are able to make the trip.

FREEMAN ALSO explained the Wheeling High School Band was not selected solely on the recommendation of Robert F. O'Brien, director of bands at Notre Dame University. Freeman said a committee started with a list of about 100 bands and each member added or eliminated bands until a small group was selected. The Wheeling recommendation came partly from William D. Revelli, director of bands for the University of Michigan. Wheeling Band director Irwin Brick said Revelli has been to Wheeling or seen the band perform several times. Freeman reminded league members that the foundation is also trying to raise enough money to provide a scholarship for a member of each band which wins the competition in the three categories in Germany. The idea of the band trips began, Freeman said, "because I'm interested in educational travel." Freeman, as headmaster of an independent school in the east, said he was on a trip with some of his own students when the idea of bringing a group of bands to Germany came up.

Freeman said he consulted with O'Brien and other officials and decided the plan had merit. "I know we haven't got all the best bands in the United States — we couldn't do that. We are not saying these are the best bands in the country but no defense is needed for the Wheeling Band," Freeman said.

"ONE OTHER VERY compelling reason I got into this is that I'm upset with the image they see over there (in Europe), said Freeman. "Everywhere you go you see dirty, unkempt hippies — this is true all over Europe. This trip gives our young people a positive way to present themselves to Europe."

Freeman added he has been dean of the College of Music and band director at Boston University, and has held positions in public schools and colleges.

"I feel the main purpose of my coming here tonight is to help you if I can. I'd like to help you put this across," he said.

Man Dies In Plunge At Construction Site Here

A River Grove man plunged to his death Monday morning while working on the Cambridge on the Lake Condominiums in Buffalo Grove.

Joseph Mueller, a painter with Ecker & Co. contractors in Chicago, reportedly fell from an open window on the fifth floor of one of the buildings under construction.

Buffalo Grove police said they received a call from Mrs. Phyllis Anderson, 966 Cambridge Dr. about 8:50 a.m. She said she had looked out her window and saw a body falling through the air.

Policeman Ron Gozdecki was the first man on the scene. When he arrived the victim was not breathing. Gozdecki administered artificial respiration and Mueller began breathing.

MUELLER WAS rushed to Northwest Community Hospital, where he was pronounced dead a half-hour later.

Police reported they could find no reason for Mueller falling. They said workmen in the area saw or heard nothing and as far as they knew there was no reason for Mueller to be on that floor.

Police and coroner officials will conduct an investigation.

Land Donation Law Accepted In Principle

The Buffalo Grove Village Board accepted, in principle, the approach of the Naperville Ordinance as presented by School Dist. 96 Monday night.

The board heard 2½ hours of testimony from school district, park district, and planning commission officials. Board members then questioned all the witnesses and gave their comments on the proposed ordinance as it would be adopted in Buffalo Grove.

The Naperville Ordinance is a plan instituted by the village of Naperville last September. It requires developers coming into the city to donate land, or money in lieu of the land, to the school and park districts.

Arthur Edmunds, president of the Dist. 96 school board, told the village that looking into the adoption of this ordinance is important to every taxpayer. He said since 80 per cent of the taxpayer's money goes to education the village should see that the best possible steps are made to provide for this education.

James Duncan, school board member and liaison to the village board, also spoke on the Dist. 96 position.

Duncan reminded the village that Dist. 96 had to pay $220,000 for its last school site because provisions had not been made and the board was forced into condemnation proceedings. He told the village that with an ordinance similar to the one in Naperville such problems would not come up and the taxpayer

Home Builders To Fight Plan

The Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago (HBAGC) has directed its attorneys to file suit against land donation ordinances adopted by the municipalities of Naperville and Aurora.

The regional builder organization has set up a special fund to challenge "those ordinances which go beyond the limitations imposed upon such municipal requirement by the Illinois Supreme Court," said Robert K. Widdicombe Jr., executive vice president of the group.

The HBAGC expects its suit against ordinances in the cities of Aurora and Naperville to be filed within two to three weeks. The ordinances in question require builders and developers to donate land, money or both.

These donations would be used for public parks, recreation and public schools as a condition for gaining municipal approval of a new subdivision or planned development. The Illinois Supreme Court has struck down comparable ordinances, Widdicombe said.

This added cost to the developer is in turn passed along to the home buyer or apartment dweller, according to Widdicombe. He said such "land takes" are based on the questionable assumption that builders draw population to a given area. The reverse is true, according to Widdicombe, who added that the builders rely on market studies to anticipate where there will be a demand for housing.

He also stated that the schools, parks and recreational facilities should be the responsibility of the total community.

opments come up.

"We have had good communication with the board in the last year that the members have been in office," said Duncan. "However, we do not like your slowness in this matter."

He explained that the school district was upset with the plan commission and feels that its investigation of the ordinance is not factual. He added the commission also did not accept help from the district's consultant on the ordinance.

George Yenerich, representative of the Illinois School Consulting Service, gave the village board a letter from Illinois State Sen. Harris Fawell, R-Naperville. Fawell said he thought the ordinance, with amendments, would work with few problems in Buffalo Grove.

Yenerich also pointed out that the ordinance in Naperville did nothing to drive developers away, as some Buffalo Grove officials were led to believe. "I think communities such as Naperville, Aurora and Elgin are proof of this."

Two New Lieutenants Here Take Oath Of Office

Two lieutenants for the Wheeling Police Department were sworn in at ceremonies Monday evening in the municipal building.

Ronald Nelson and Thomas Conte are the two new lieutenants who will assume new supervisory duties beginning Monday.

The two men took the oath of office as an audience of their families and wives of various village officials watched.

Notably absent from the ceremonies was Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher, who has just returned home from the hospital after suffering a serious illness two weeks ago.

ROGER STRICKER, village director of public safety, pointed out during the ceremonies that this was only the second or third time in village history lieutenants have been sworn in on the police force. Stricker said both of the lieutenants will have the support of the village administration and himself in their new posts.

All six of the village trustees attended the ceremonies conducted by the three-man fire and police commission.

Under the new system, Lt. Nelson will assume the duties of field division commander. Lt. Robert Llewellyn, who is currently on sick leave from the department after a heart attack, was the former field division commander.

Lt. Conte will assume duties as head of the department's service division. He replaces Sgt. Gene Wolf as commander of the service division.

Sgt. Ted Bracke will continue in his post as commander for the investigative division.

Sgts. Jack Kimsey, Michael Hermes and Harvey Gorman will serve as field division shift commanders and Sgt. Wolf will be a relief sergeant in the field division, Stricker said.

The field division handles the day-to-day patrol and response to calls. The service division handles records and evidence analysis and the investigative division is responsible for detective work and investigations.

School Board Forum Thursday

Candidates for the school boards of Dist. 96 and Dist. 125 will speak at a school board forum tomorrow in Kildeer School. The forum, sponsored by the Kildeer Community Club, will begin at 8 p.m.

A question-and-answer period will follow the speeches, and Supt. William Hitzeman will discuss the open classroom. The public is invited.

Ask Survey On Dundee-Schoenbeck

A survey of recent accidents at Dundee and Schoenbeck roads in Wheeling was requested by the Wheeling Village Board Monday.

Board members asked Roger Stricker, village director of public safety, to compile the survey which will be used to plead with the state for traffic lights at the intersection.

The board action came shortly after a 5:10 p.m. accident Monday in which an eight-year-old girl was injured at the intersection.

Tracy Ann Cummings of 992 Country Ln., Buffalo Grove, was treated for a head wound at Holy Family Hospital and released.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Barbara W. Cummings, 30, of the same address. Mrs. Cummings was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident. She is to appear in Arlington Heights District Court April 4.

POLICE ESTIMATED damage to her car at $800. Other drivers involved in the chain reaction collision were Timoteo Vasquez, 48, of Streamwood, who had $600 damage to his car, and Donna M. Piehl, 42, of 16 Henry St., Arlington Heights, who had $50 damage to her car.

A Wheeling woman was injured in another accident at the intersection Sunday afternoon.

In a discussion of the problem at the intersection Monday village Trustee Edward Berger said what happens is motorists waiting to cross Dundee at Schoenbeck and St. Armand "reach a point where they just say the hell with it," and take their chances despite the steady stream of traffic on Dundee.

Trustee Ronald Bruhn pointed out that the new stoplight on Buffalo Grove Road was supposed to help the situation at Schoenbeck Road, "but it hasn't done a thing."

Jack Metzger, a Wheeling plan commissioner, commented after the meeting that the new lights at Buffalo Grove Road have resulted in westbound traffic backing up past the Schoenbeck intersection at peak traffic periods.

TRUSTEE JOHN KOEPPEN noted that while the village could pay to have the lights installed he feared the village having legal liability for the lights.

The village has asked the state to install lights at the intersection before, but state traffic surveys of the intersection have not indicated the lights are warranted.

Residents of the subdivisions in the area have complained repeatedly to the village and have even petitioned state representatives for help in getting lights at the intersection.

The state has indicated that once Dundee Road is widened to four lanes at the Voters in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove turned out in surprising numbers to cast their ballots in strong numbers for the candidates on the Democratic side of the ledger. Heat of the election night activities centered on the race for Cook County state's attorney with early indications county-wide that incumbent Edward V. Hanrahan would be the winner.

Voters in the Democratic primary were apparently confused with the placement on the ballot of Neil Hartigan above Neal Eckert in the race for lieutenant governor. Although this race is not separate from the governor's race between Walker and Simon, the reverse placement on the ballot apparently caused some voters to split their ticket between the Simon-Walker candidacy and the candidacies of Raymond Berg and Edward Hanrahan.

According to James McCabe, Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman, "Berg is getting a shellacking. He got skunked." McCabe interpreted the strong vote for Hanrahan and in some areas for Walker as attacks on the Daley organization.

On the Republican side, Bill Kinkade had a total of 987½ votes in Wheeling Township, 22 out of 30 precincts in.

THE CENTER OF the most celebration in the county seemed to be in the Hanrahan headquarters office at 123 W. Madison St. in Chicago.

According to Herald reporter Roger Capetini, the Hanrahan celebration room downtown was a thunderous assembly of applauding and cheering fans, of a dixieland band and of Candidate Hanrahan standing on a chair to address his supporters.

McCabe Jubilant Over Dem Showing

Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman James McCabe said last night that the overwhelming turnout in the Democratic primary may result in the party becoming "runheads" instead of "runalongs."

McCabe pointed to the switchover of Republican voters in the Democratic primary and the increase in Democratic party member turnout and said he hopes this is a trend for November.

Only a handful of Democratic workers were at party headquarters at the Union Hotel in Wheeling when the first returns came in.

As of 9 p.m. the votes showed independent gubernatorial candidate Daniel Walker leading regular Democratic candidate Paul Simon by a 2½-to-1 margin. Independent candidate Donald Page Moore and incumbent Edward Hanrahan were clobbering Raymond Berg in the state's attorney's race.

McCabe said, "They (the voters) say they're attacking Daley and his organization. But they're voting for his right-hand man (Neil Hartigan)." Party officials were at a loss to explain why voters were casting ballots against the Daley endorsed governor and state's attorney candidates, yet were backing Daley's lieutenant governor and candidate.

WITH 40 OF 98 precincts reporting Walker was leading Simon in the governor's race with a total of 3,389 to Simon's 1,337. In the state's attorney's race Moore had 2,162; Hanrahan, 2,035; and Berg, 578.

"I hope we find a silver lining the cloud," said McCabe. "I hope when the primary is over we can unite with independents to bring about victory in November, which is what it's all about."

"To Republicans, I hope they have found it's not too painful to vote Democratic and will do so in the future. I hope they voted out of sincerity. I feel the vote in the suburbs has demonstrated today more than ever before must be taken very seriously."

Edward V. Hanrahan

Hanrahan's The Man, Say Voters

Edward V. Hanrahan, based on early returns last night, appeared to be the Democrats' candidate for state's attorney.

With 492 of 3,205 precincts reporting at 7:30 p.m. in the city of Chicago, the unslated state's attorney held a commanding 46,586 to 31,951 lead over the organization's candidate, Raymond K. Berg.

Donald Page Moore, running as an independent Democrat, was running third with 18,493 votes.

In the suburbs, Hanrahan was substantially ahead of his two opponents with only 22 precincts reporting. Hanrahan had tallied 1,116 votes with Moore second with 384 and Berg third with 250 votes.

Democrats who filtered in and out of the county clerk's third floor office in the County Building reportedly were muttering, "Hanrahan's the people's choice."

For Berg, the Democratic organization's regular choice, it appeared that it would be a long night indeed. Berg's greatest strength had been expected to be the city, where Mayor Richard Daley's army of political workers had been expected to give him a substantial lead.

This Morning In Brief

The State

State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan pulled far ahead of two rivals with more than 25 per cent of the total vote in. Hanrahan had 130,064 to 99,461 for organization-backed candidate Raymond Berg. Donald Page Moore, an independent, trailed with 65,976.

Three precinct election judges were arrested on vote tampering charges and later released on $1,000 bond each for a March 29 hearing after an investigation of machines at a precinct polling place in Chicago showed votes had been registered at the time it opened. In another incident, a poll watcher for Daniel Walker, independent Democratic candidate for governor, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct, breach of the peace, and interfering with an election.

Democrat Does Well In Palatine Township

Mugalian Takes Big Lead In House Race

Richard A. Mugalian, Democratic township committeeman in Palatine Township, last night racked up a substantial lead in his home township in his battle to gain a Democratic House nomination.

With 24 out of 45 Palatine precincts reporting, Mugalian had tallied 3,355½ votes. Neil Heibesen of Elgin was running second with 929 votes; Mary Lynn Monsen of Barrington and Edwin Hartly of Elgin had tallied 452½ and 191½ votes.

At 9:30 p.m. it was reported that Mugalian had carried all but one precinct in Barrington Township, but no totals were available. Heibesen finished second in Barrington, Mrs. Monsen's home township.

No returns, however, were available at press time from the City of Elgin or Cuba Township.

THE CENTER OF the most celebration in the county seemed to be in the Hanrahan headquarters office at 123 W. Madison St. in Chicago.

According to Herald reporter Roger Capetini, the Hanrahan celebration room downtown was a thunderous assembly of applauding and cheering fans, of a dixieland band and of Candidate Hanrahan standing on a chair to address his supporters.

"The numbers will be big, and they will be read loud and clear," Hanrahan said. At 8:20 p.m., Hanrahan came out of a back room and said, "the first results are extremely encouraging. They are great all over the city and the suburbs. In Chicago a couple of the wards have not yet caught up with the people," and at this the crowd broke into cheers.

The scene of the Hanrahan celebration was of a room filled with supporters drinking Cold Duck and congratulating the apparent victor.

In the Berg headquarters, the room was silent, and most supporters of Judge Berg were watching "Dragnet" on the television set.

Hanrahan's The Man, Say Area Voters

Edward V. Hanrahan, based on early returns last night, appeared to be the Democrats' candidate for state's attorney.

With 492 of 3,205 precincts reporting at 7:30 p.m. in the city of Chicago, the unopposed state's attorney held a commanding 46,586 to 31,951 lead over the organization's candidate, Raymond K. Berg.

Donald Page Moore, running as an independent Democrat, was running third with 18,493 votes.

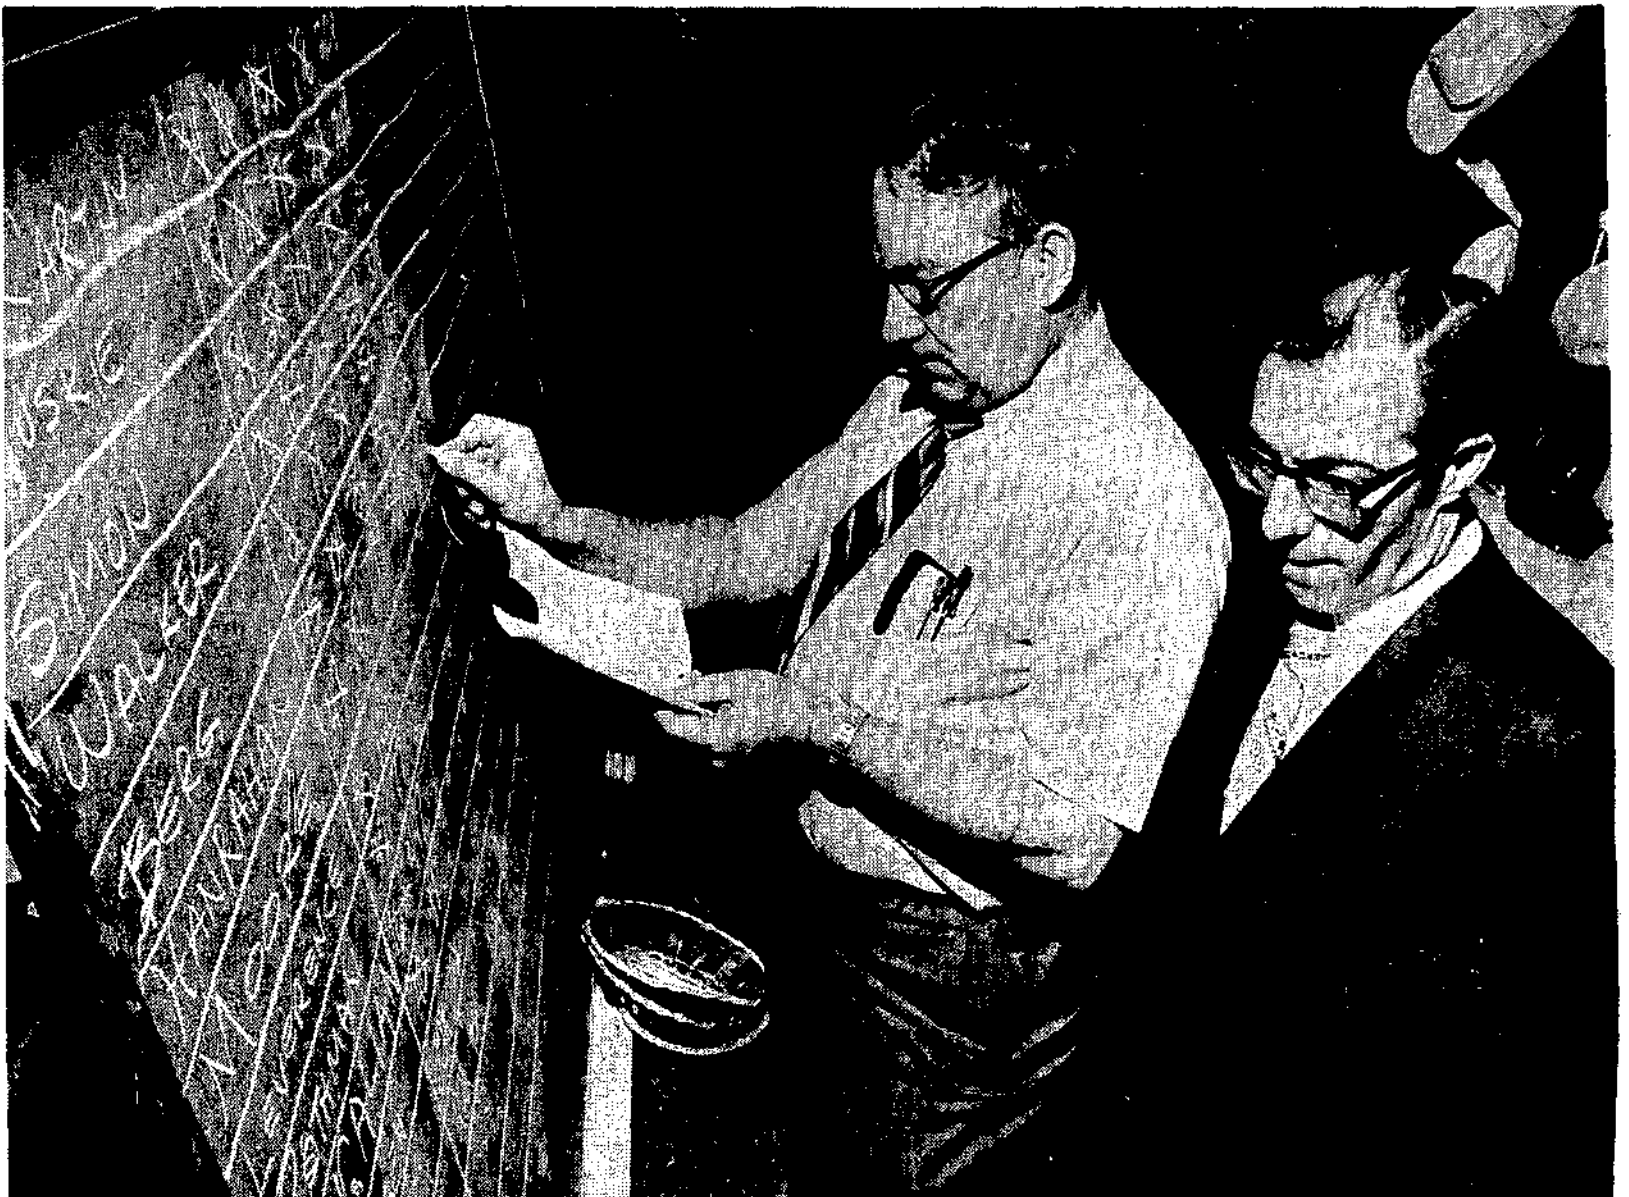

In the suburbs, Hanrahan was substantially ahead of his two opponents with only 22 precincts reporting, Hanrahan had tallied 1,116 votes with Moore second with 384 and Berg third with 250 votes.

Democrats who filtered in and out of the county clerk's third floor office in the County Building reportedly were muttering, "Hanrahan's the people's choice."

For Berg, the Democratic organization's regular choice, it appeared that it would be a long night indeed. Berg's greatest strength had been expected to be the city, where Mayor Richard Daley's army of political workers had been expected to give him a substantial lead.

Additional early returns showed Paul Simon running ahead of maverick Democrat Daniel Walker. With 442 precincts reporting in Chicago and the suburbs, Simon had tallied 44,908 votes to 36,979 for Walker.

A few scattered suburban returns, however, indicated Walker was running ahead of Simon in the rest of Cook County.

DICK MUGALIAN, candidate for state representative in the 2nd Legislative District, faces the township Democratic committeeman, is locked in a four-way race for two open Democratic House nominations.

Wait Was Over Early For Mugalian

For Dick Mugalian, the agony of waiting for returns was over early.

The 39th Precinct in Palatine Township reported in scarcely half an hour after the polls closed, giving the Democratic representative hopeful a margin of better than 2-to-1 over the combined totals of his three opponents in the 2nd Legislative District.

It was as expected. Mugalian acknowledged that the only doubt that he had ever had about his race was who would come in second.

It was the other races that concerned him, the Cook County state's attorney's contest in particular.

HE SHOOK HIS head as he saw the incumbent, Edward Hanrahan, scoring heavily in precinct after precinct.

When an observer asked if that was bad for him, Mugalian said: "It's hard for everyone."

Long before countywide totals were known, he vowed to challenge the Democratic party's slatemaking procedure.

"The whole system has to be drastically reformed or abolished," Mugalian declared. He said he would propose changes at the next meeting of the Cook County Central Committee, of which, as Palatine committeeman, he is a member.

BUT ALL THAT could wait until next month.

On Tuesday night, Mugalian stood on center stage and cherished the role.

His nomination puts him in a position of being virtually certain to be the first resident of Palatine Township ever to be elected to the State House. The two Republican nominees ran unopposed in Tuesday's primary.

Mugalian greeted precinct captains with hugs and thanks as they brought in returns from their precincts to the Democratic headquarters at the Beef 'n'

Barrel in Schaumburg.

THE PRECINCT captain of the 23rd Precinct proudly announced he had carried a heavily Republican precinct for the first time in 18 years, to which Mugalian responded: "Everybody did."

Mugalian sipped from an old-fashioned, then a bourbon and soda, a cigarette in his hand at all times, as he hopped from table to table, where Democratic faithfuls were helping themselves to cold cuts compliments of the party.

Where the party will get the money for the corn beef and salami can be considered next month. Tuesday was the time to enjoy the victory.

Muskie Builds An Early Lead

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, bidding for a badly needed comeback performance in the 1972 Democratic presidential sweepstakes, built up a solid lead over Eugene J. McCarthy in the Illinois primary Tuesday night.

The senator from Maine was also leading Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., in the separate balloting for shares of the 160 national convention delegates to be chosen. Early returns indicated Muskie had 42 delegates pledged or favorable to him to 11 for McGovern.

In the nonbinding presidential preference primary, Muskie had 97,029 votes or 65 per cent to McCarthy's 53,121 votes and 35 per cent with 1,059 of Illinois' 10,858 precincts reporting.

This Morning In Brief

The State

Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan apparently won renomination and dealt a stinging rebuke to Mayor Richard J. Daley's regular Democratic organization. With half of the county's 5,243 precincts reporting, Hanrahan had 44 per cent of the vote to 32 per cent for the organization-backed candidate Raymond Berg. Donald Page Moore, an independent, trailed with 23 per cent.

Three precinct election judges were arrested on vote tampering charges and later released on $1,000 bond each for a March 29 hearing after an investigation of machines at a precinct polling place in Chicago showed votes had been registered at the time it opened.

Palatine Today

Welcome To, Uh, 'Lovely' Palatine

by MARGE FERROLI

Welcome to, uh, beautiful downtown Palatine, folks — center of transportation for Chicago commuters and center of activity for the town's 26,000 residents.

As we travel west on Palatine Road (if the gate ever goes up and we can cross the railroad tracks), you'll notice our approach to the main intersection of the central business district at Brockway Street. You can't help but notice it. It's the corner where the cars are backed up two blocks.

Moving right along after that short delay now that we've managed to make our left turn, we find ourselves approaching Palatine Village Hall, the center of municipal activity. As you can see, the building rests quietly in a residential area, shaded by large maple and elm trees, except for the one there that had to be cut down when it got diseased.

We now are passing the Palatine Police Station, which also rests unimposingly among these antiquated, white-framed single-family homes. Next to it facing Greeley Street is the village health department, which had to set up headquarters in an old remodeled ranch house since there was no room in the village hall.

FOR YOUR INFORMATION, there's been some talk among village officials and land planners that downtown Palatine is blighted and needs much improvement. After having seen the area today, you should be a good judge of that yourself.

If the ride is getting a little bumpy, don't let it bother you, folks. We'll be out of the ruts shortly when we leave this general area where underground sewer construction has had the road torn up for a year.

After another little jog on Palatine Road, we turn onto Smith Street which leads us to Palatine's new transportation center and train depot. Those old shacks and that run-down barn to our right in the middle of the downtown area add a little "old-time" culture to the area.

As you can see, the parking lots at the train station are almost totally filled during the day but are virtually unused and wasted at night and on weekends. All those vacant store fronts in the transportation center should be filled with businesses someday, maybe after the roads are improved and people are more willing to travel here to shop.

The street ahead, where the cars are backed up, is Colfax Street, another main road through town. To the left down Colfax is a manufacturing area, but we won't go down there. There's not much to see and some people in town even call it an "industrial slum," if you can believe that.

Cutting back east to Brockway, we approach the Palatine Public Library, a major point of cultural activity in town — as a matter of fact, the only one, if you don't count the movie theater or the 53 Drive-in. The parking lot at the library is always full, not so much because of heavy use but because there's not many parking spots.

Crossing the tracks again, we head into the main commercial area of the central business district. Caution is necessary while driving here to watch out for the one-way streets and for drivers pulling out of diagonal parking spaces.

MANY STORES have been here for decades, including that former gray bank building there. It has some pretty unique architecture, but is now used as a place where statues and small novelty items are sold.

Three of these older stores which were major businesses in Palatine burned down in the past two years. Two of them even fell into the "landmark" category.

As we travel through downtown, you'll notice the large amounts of paved area to accommodate the cars in driveways and in parking lots. To get it this way, quite a bit of greenery and trees had to be removed, but after all, what's more important.

Following our tour today, we suggest that you get more information on Palatine and the downtown area from a brochure on the town available from the Chamber of Commerce.

If the pretty color pictures in the book don't look much like the things you've seen on our tour today, don't be alarmed. The pictures were probably taken from a different angle and made use of all those photographic tricks.

Hope you enjoyed the tour, folks, and watch your step leaving the bus so you don't trip on any pieces of crumbled sidewalk.

Company's Safety Record Was Good

T and F Fluorocarbon Co., the factory at which an explosion severely burned three men Monday night, had a good safety record prior to Monday's accident, according to Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty.

The equipment explosion at the north industrial park plant, 3660 Edison Place, left one man in critical condition and two in serious condition yesterday at the burn unit of Cook County Hospital.

In critical condition was Robert Greenman, 39, of 7500 Elmhurst Rd., Bensenville. Greenman was admitted with severe burns covering 85 per cent of his body.

In serious condition were Jeff Pedersen, 22, of 1859 Prairie, Park Ridge, and William Lewis, 24, of 295 Alcoa Ln., Hoffman Estates. Both suffered burns over about 40 per cent of their bodies. The three are in intensive care in the hospital burn unit.

The three men were working near a machine that coats cloth with teflon when the explosion occurred. The machine resembles a large printing press with an oven through which the cloth passes in the process of bonding the teflon surface to the material.

Fogarty described the explosion as a backflash under the machine that shot out flames igniting the men's clothing.

FOGARTY SPECULATED that the flames were fueled by chemical vapors exhausting under the machine. The flammable fumes included xylene and silicone, combined with carbon dust, he said.

A company engineer is studying the cause of the explosion in conjunction with the fire department's own investigation. Fogarty said he doesn't expect an engineer's report for about two weeks.

Fogarty said a backflash under a machine like that "never happens" unless something is wrong with the machine's exhaust system. He said the machine is supposed to exhaust from the top and not the bottom.

The company had a good safety record, Fogarty said, and had "no serious problems to my knowledge." He did recall a similar minor backflash at the plant once before when exhaust fumes at the top of the machine ignited. There were no injuries that time.

The machine involved in the explosion is the only one of its kind in the plant, according to owner Warren Frandsen. The explosion made it inoperative.

Property damage from the explosion was minor, according to Fogarty. The flames were confined to the underside of the machine, although enough heat was generated to set off an overhead sprinkling system.

The exercise I started several weeks ago is going strong and some of the girls are beginning to see results. There are seven of us who go through the routines every Tuesday morning. We don't have room for any more, however. If you are interested in taking off weight and/or inches give me a call and I'll tell you what we're doing.

We have an exercise record, but somehow mine got misplaced yesterday so we used my son's "God Bless America" record. You should see us do our sit-ups to "As the Caissons Go Rolling Along." Even the weather couldn't dampen our spirits.

MANY OF YOU have heard of the Bridge here in Palatine. It is a group of interested people who want to help teenagers with problems (any and all kinds of problems). The Bridge needs volunteers who are willing to give up a little time each week to lend a sympathetic ear to someone who may need to talk.

If you would like to volunteer for such a program, which consists of a brief training program, call Jay Pace at 359-7490.

I have heard many good things about The Bridge and I hope there will be enough people to volunteer so that we can lend a helping hand to the many who are asking for it.

MRS. DOLORES STEWART and her daughter Camille, will entertain patients and residents of St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly this Friday. Mrs. Stewart and Camille will feature harp and flute selections of favorite hymns, classics and popular melodies in the one-hour program.

Dolores teaches piano, organ, harp and voice in Palatine. Her daughter is a student of Mrs. Marion Viersen.

"I KNOW AN OLD LADY Who Swallowed a Fly." (I have other strange friends, too!!) Really this is the title of tomorrow's movie at the Palatine Library. This is a contemporary nonsense song about an old lady whose unusual appetite make an end of her.

The second film is "Brats" a Laurel and Hardy film with the boys acting as babysitters. The movies start at 4 p.m. and are for all school age children.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY will be the fifth annual rummage and bake sale sponsored by Girl Scout Unit 512 at the American Legion Hall. You may take your rummage to the Legion Hall anytime after 9 a.m. tomorrow. The sale starts Friday from 1 to 8 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. If you need items picked up or further information call Louise Flom at 358-6215 or June Beaulieu at 358-2426.

Proceeds of this sale will buy tents and cooking equipment for the girls' camping trips. Why not clean a closet or two out today and help these girls.

Don't forget to call me and let me know your news items or tell me your human interest story.

$30 For Nonresidents To Use The Library

The annual fee for nonresidents' usage of the Palatine Public Library has been increased to $30.

The $10 hike becomes effective as nonresidents apply for or renew library cards.

The library's board of directors decided last fall to increase the fee to $25, but postponed the increase when the wage-price freeze was imposed.

More than 400 persons currently hold nonresidents' library cards. The $30 fee applies to entire families.

Mayor Meyer Runs Third

Macdonald, Totten Lead In 3rd House Race

The battle between three Republican candidates for two Republican seats in the Illinois House from the 3rd District was apparently decided early in the evening yesterday.

Early returns from the four townships that are part of the newly formed 3rd District showed that all indications placed Mrs. Virginia Macdonald first, Schaumburg Township Committeeman Don Totten second and Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer an unsuccessful third.

In Schaumburg Township, with 35 out of 38 precincts reporting, Totten got an expected high return of 4,125 votes compared to 1,538½ for Macdonald and 1,326½ for Meyer.

In Wheeling Township, Mrs. Macdonald pulled ahead by a measure of two to one over Totten and four to one over Meyer.

In Elk Grove Township, with 51 out of 61 precincts reporting, Totten and Macdonald came close to each other with 3,286 and 3,334 votes respectively and Meyer came in third with 2,818 votes.

AND IN PALATINE Township, Totten was leading over both other candidates.

Although the race was not yet over by press time, early indications showed that the vast absence of Republican voters in the primary hurt Meyer's candidacy worse than it did the other two candidates.

Since he did not rely on the regular Republican organizations, Meyer's strength would have to come from voters interested enough in his campaign to not vote for the party's two endorsed candidates. Apparently it was those voters who were lured into casting votes instead in the Democratic primary where the hotly contested race for Cook County State's Attorney was a controversial issue.

Hanrahan's The Man, Say Area Voters

Edward V. Hanrahan, based on early returns last night, appeared to be the Democrats' candidate for state's attorney.

With 492 of 3,205 precincts reporting at 7:30 p.m. in the city of Chicago, the unslated state's attorney held a commanding 46,586 to 31,951 lead over the organization's candidate, Raymond K. Berg.

Donald Page Moore, running as an independent Democrat, was running third with 18,493 votes.

In the suburbs, Hanrahan was substantially ahead of his two opponents with only 22 precincts reporting, Hanrahan had tallied 1,116 votes with Moore second with 384 and Berg third with 250 votes.

Democrats who filtered in and out of the county clerk's third floor office in the County Building reportedly were muttering, "Hanrahan's the people's choice."

For Berg, the Democratic organization's regular choice, it appeared that it would be a long night indeed. Berg's greatest strength had been expected to be the city, where Mayor Richard Daley's army of political workers had been expected to give him a substantial lead.

Additional early returns showed Paul Simon running ahead of maverick Democrat Daniel Walker. With 442 precincts reporting in Chicago and the suburbs, Simon had tallied 44,908 votes to 36,979 for Walker.

A few scattered suburban returns, however, indicated Walker was running ahead of Simon in the rest of Cook County.

Don Totten Praises Meyer, Rips Bob Atcher

Donald Totten, victorious in the race for one of the GOP nominations for state representatives, had some kind words for words for that man's campaign manager.

Totten said Roland Meyer, defeated in the race, "conducted a good campaign, Meyer conducted a very honorable campaign."

He said about Robert Atcher, Meyer's campaign manager and Schaumburg mayor:

"I'm very disappointed with his actions in this campaign. I don't think they are conducive to a person who calls himself a stalwart Republican and I would be very interested to know if he is a stalwart Republican who will endorse the entire Republican ticket in November."

Totten asserted that some of Atcher's tactics "are conducive to the 24th ward in Chicago." He was referring to an alleged attempt by Meyer's backers to convince Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights, the other winner, that Totten was seeking bullet votes.

Atcher has been involved in an in-traparty feud with Atcher since the beginning of the 3rd District GOP campaign.

Totten added he would resign his state job when he was sworn into office.

MAYOR ROLAND MEYER received the early tabulations from campaign worker Miss Sheila Scanlan last night in his race for the Republican nomination for the 3rd Legislative District. Meyer was defeated by Mrs. Virginia Macdonald and Donald Totten in the mayor's first bid for a statewide office. He attributed his defeat to a poor showing in Schaumburg Township.

He attributed his defeat to a poor showing in Schaumburg Township.

Schaumburg Totals Silence Meyer

Roland Meyer took the telephone returns himself, somewhat symbolic of his battle for the state legislature without party support.

The Rolling Meadows Mayor seemed as nervous as the handful of campaign workers who huddled in his storefront headquarters in downtown Rolling Meadows as the first votes were trickling in. They came from Palatine Township, the heart of his support.

He was walloping both opponents Donald Totten and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald in the 3rd legislative district race with three times the ballots.

With about a fourth of the votes tabulated, "It's just too close to tell," Meyer told an anxious audience. "But one thing for sure, they'll know they were in a fight."

But soon afterwards the Schaumburg Township totals were released, silencing the crowd of well-wishers. Totten had polled more than 4,000 while Meyer had only 1,300. The bottom had fallen out of Meyer's campaign strategy. "We needed to break even in Schaumburg."

He still held a slim chance for victory.

MEYER BACKERS waited a longer time for the returns from Wheeling and Elk Grove townships. Campaign workers weren't assigned to every precinct because there weren't enough of them, and the Meyer camp had to depend on the opponents for the tabulation.

A few phone calls were made and the sobering statistics were clear. Wheeling had gone overwhelmingly for Mrs. Macdonald and Totten. And his two opponents had narrowly defeated him in Elk Grove Township.

At about 9 p.m., Meyer had the figures scribbled on yellow sheets of paper and was showing them to his workers. "He beat me in Schaumburg . . . It's just that simple."

Ald. Thomas Scanlan called Meyer's defeat "a damned good showing for a couple of guys against the machine."

Meyer got a vote of confidence from the Rolling Meadows precincts as he tallied nearly 2,000 while his nearest rival received only 500.

"They were just lucky we didn't have 10 more precincts in Rolling Meadows," Meyer said.

The crowd that had paced the floor throughout the evening grew silent. They took seats around the small room most of them talking about "why he lost."

A few had tears in their eyes, and a tiny baby was crying.

Muskie Builds An Early Lead

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, bidding for a badly needed comeback performance in the 1972 Democratic presidential sweepstakes, built up a solid lead over Eugene J. McCarthy in the Illinois primary Tuesday night.

The senator from Maine was also leading Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., in the separate balloting for shares of the 160 national convention delegates to be chosen. Early returns indicated Muskie had 42 delegates pledged or favorable to him to 11 for McGovern.

In the nonbinding presidential preference primary, Muskie had 97,029 votes or 65 per cent to McCarthy's 53,121 votes and 35 per cent with 1,059 of Illinois' 10,358 precincts reporting.

This Morning In Brief

The State

State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan pulled far ahead of two rivals with more than 25 per cent of the total vote in Hanrahan had 130,064 to 99,481 for organization-backed candidate Raymond Berg. Donald Page Moore, an independent, trailed with 65,976.

Three precinct election judges were arrested on vote tampering charges and later released on $1,000 bond each for a March 29 hearing after an investigation of machines at a precinct polling place in Chicago showed votes had been registered at the time it opened. In another incident, a poll watcher for Daniel Walker, independent Democratic candidate for governor, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct, breach of the peace, and interfering with an election.

The Rolling Meadows jazz band really surprised everyone, including themselves and their director, Lendell King, when they competed for the first time ever, against four-year schools with longstanding music divisions in the Mundelein Festival of Jazz last Saturday, and won!!

Most of the 25 members of the band are freshmen and sophomores and should feel very proud to have won against such outstanding competition.

King was quoted as saying before the contest, "We don't expect to win, but we're going to get experience in performing at these types of events."

Our jazz band, along with the other winning bands, performed at the evening concert where Northern Illinois University's (NIU) jazz ensemble also performed.

One "deserving" member of the winning band, Bob Mulley, of 2501 Martin Ln., was chosen to receive a summer stage band scholarship entitling him to attend NIU's summer band camp next August.

Bob, a sophomore, has lived in Rolling Meadows for ten years and has played the trumpet for seven of those years. His father, Norman, now deceased, was a tuba player with the Rolling Meadows Community Band since the band first began. Mr. Mulley encouraged Bob's interest in music. Bob lives with his mother, Jeanette, a secretary for school district 211. According to Jeanette, Bob plans to continue with his music probably by becoming a music teacher, as this is his main interest.

Bob was a featured soloist at the jazz contest along with Mike Brode, guitar; Jim Donehy, tenor saxophone; Dave Gauger and Jim Peterson, both on trumpets; Terry Palmberg, trombone; and George Vlamis, drums.

In addition to these, other members of the band include Rhonda Green, Lane Kasen, Melody Perreten, John Gach, Paul Germano, Ken Grady, John Huffman, Rick Hutchison, Terry Lents, Jack McClure, Randi Mokas, Scott Oliver, Mark Rakstang, John Schreiner, Randy Selig, Mike Worling and John Wiertz.

If you missed the contest at Mundelein you can still hear these kids play, although it won't be jazz. Jazz band members are also members of the Rolling Meadows High School concert band which will be playing this Thursday at 8 p.m. at the gym at Rolling Meadows High School, along with the Carl Sandburg Band directed by George Yingst and the intermediate band, a group of sixth grade students from Rolling Meadows directed by Steve Auchenbach, elementary school band director.

THE NEW WORLD SINGERS, one of the most popular folk singing groups touring America today, will be featured at the Teen Rally Wednesday evening at Meadows Baptist Church for their Sixteenth Annual Missions Conference.

The New World group has traveled more than one million miles to Asia, Europe and across the U.S. and Canada before thousands of young people, as well as making film and television appearances.

The group is composed of one girl and two fellows. Bob Henley is an outstanding guitarist and baritone soloist. Jane Ternigan Hensly, a gifted young soprano soloist who plays the guitar and tambourine, became Bob's wife a year ago while they were both on tour with the group.

Finis Fator, a tenor soloist, is considered one of the greatest guitarists in America today. He was the lead guitarist in the "Up with People" telecasts and had his own group featured as the "Finis Fator Five."

School Board Candidates Night Slated

Palatine Township residents will get an opportunity to hear the views of candidates seeking positions on the school boards of Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, High School Dist. 211 and Harper College at a candidates night at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Gray M. Sanborn School cafeteria, 101 N. Oak, Palatine.

Sponsored by the Palatine Township League of Women Voters, the candidate's night will give each person running for office a chance to give a short speech. This will be followed by a question and answer period and then an informal coffee.

Moderator for the night will be Carolyn Mirek, president of the Northwest Suburban Council of PTAs.

Nine candidates are seeking the three open positions on the Dist. 211 board, six are seeking the two seats on the Harper board and three are running for the two positions on the Dist. 15 board.

Company's Safety Record Was Good

T and F Fluorocarbon Co., the factory at which an explosion severely burned three men Monday night, had a good safety record prior to Monday's accident, according to Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty.

The equipment explosion at the north industrial park plant, 3660 Edison Place, left one man in critical condition and two in serious condition yesterday at the burn unit of Cook County Hospital.

In critical condition was Robert Greenman, 39, of 7500 Elmhurst Rd., Bensenville. Greenman was admitted with severe burns covering 85 per cent of his body.

In serious condition were Jeff Pedersen, 22, of 1859 Prairie, Park Ridge, and William Lewis, 24, of 295 Alcoa Ln., Hoffman Estates. Both suffered burns over about 40 per cent of their bodies. The three are in intensive care in the hospital burn unit.

The three men were working near a machine that coats cloth with teflon when the explosion occurred. The machine resembles a large printing press with an oven through which the cloth passes in the process of bonding the teflon surface to the material.

Fogarty described the explosion as a backlash under the machine that shot out flames igniting the men's clothing. FOGARTY SPECULATED that the flames were fueled by chemical vapors exhausting under the machine. The flammable fumes included xylene and silicone, combined with carbon dust, he said.

A company engineer is studying the cause of the explosion in conjunction with the fire department's own investigation. Fogarty said he doesn't expect an engineer's report for about two weeks.

Fogarty said a backlash under a machine like that "never happens" unless something is wrong with the machine's exhaust system. He said the machine is supposed to exhaust from the top and not the bottom.

The company had a good safety record, Fogarty said, and had "no serious problems to my knowledge." He did recall a similar minor backlash at the plant once before when exhaust fumes at the top of the machine ignited. There were no injuries that time.

The machine involved in the explosion is the only one of its kind in the plant, according to owner Warren Frandsen. The explosion made it inoperative.

City 2 For 2 In Karate Test

A Rolling Meadows policeman took top honors Sunday in the American Okinawan Karate Association championships in North Aurora.

Patrolman Steve Abbate won the black belt division title in the northern Illinois district championship. Abbate holds a second degree black belt in karate. The black belt symbolizes the highest degree of proficiency in this martial art.

Another Rolling Meadows man, Dennis Zitzer, took third place in the same division.

The two were the only entrants from Rolling Meadows among 100 contestants. Abbate defeated 15 opponents Sunday afternoon to claim the title.

Board To Eye Park Improvements

A "major, comprehensive physical improvement plan for all the city park areas" will be presented tomorrow night during a special Rolling Meadows Park Board meeting.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. at the Sports Complex, 3900 Owl Dr.

William Billings, park board president, said the board will consider "the immediate needs and proposed future needs" of the park district at the special meeting.

The meeting is expected to provide a forum for residents who have voiced complaints about the park district's operations since the district sprang a plan to purchase $41,000 worth of playground equipment for three locations.

The district sought to have the city pay for the equipment, but the proposal was turned back by the city finance committee which urged the district to reconsider the plan in light of the residents' complaints.

Three weeks ago Dean Hallerud, park district director, announced that the park board would sit as a committee-of-the-whole for a series of meetings on the playground proposal and other district plans and problems.

YESTERDAY, Billings said Thursday's meeting may be the only one because "if we are going to go back to the city (with the playground equipment plan) we have a time problem."

The city must approve the park proposal before the end of April if the $41,000 is to be allocated by the 1972-73 budget.

Billings did not rule out the possibility of subsequent special meetings. "A lot will have to come out of this meeting," he said. "The question of other meetings is dependent on the outcome of this one."

Staff members are supposed to present "the major, comprehensive improvement plan for all the park areas" at the meeting.

4TH LEGISLATIVE DISTRICT REPUBLICANS

	Wheeling	Maine	Niles
Schlickman	3,987	2,842	1,076
Juckett	1,567	8,145	1,389
Rubin	549	1,136	616

(Wheeling Township complete unofficial totals; Niles and Maine Township totals incomplete)

Eugene Schlickman and Robert Juckett were the apparent winners in yesterday's 4th District House legislative race.

With most of the precincts in Niles, Maine, Wheeling and Northfield townships reporting, Juckett, an incumbent from Park Ridge, was leading with 11,101 votes in unofficial counts. Schlickman, the 3rd District incumbent, was running second with 7,905 votes. Rubin, a Skokie resident, was a distant third with 2,301.

As expected, Schlickman did best in Wheeling Township. With all of 39 of the township's 4th District precincts reporting, Schlickman's unofficial vote total stood at 3,987. Juckett ran second with 1,567 votes. Rubin got 549.

IN MAINE TOWNSHIP, with most of the precincts in, Juckett was four outdistancing his rivals with a vote total of 8,145. Schlickman was running second with 2,842 votes. Again, Rubin was running third with 1,136 votes.

In Niles Township with 30 of 43 precincts reporting, Juckett was maintaining a moderate lead. His vote total stood at 1,389. Schlickman's total stood at 1,076. Rubin got 616 votes.

Early last night Schlickman said that his lead in the race was an even stronger ratio than in past primaries. Like all the candidates he noted the large crossover of regular Republican votes to the Democratic side. Schlickman said he was pleased at being able to carry so many Republican voters in the district despite the crossover.

AT MAINE TOWNSHIP GOP headquarters in Des Plaines, Juckett said he had expected to win a large majority of Maine Township's votes, but declared that he "didn't expect to win this big."

"I'm quite flattered at the Maine vote," Juckett said. He added that he was glad the heavy crossover of Republican voters to the Democratic primary, "a disaster for some candidates, did not affect his own race."

"I think a lot of fine Republican voters wanted to do something to try and destroy the Daley machine. I think they also felt there weren't too many contests on the Republican side," Juckett said.

In the Democratic state senate 4th District primary, scant early returns showed Thomas Flynn of Niles a narrow leader over his opponent, Steven Corwin. The winner will be running against the incumbent, State Sen. John Carroll who was unopposed in yesterday's Republican primary.

Hanrahan's The Man, Say Voters

Edward V. Hanrahan, based on early returns last night, appeared to be the Democrats' candidate for state's attorney.

With 492 of 3,205 precincts reporting at 7:30 p.m. in the city of Chicago, the unopposed state's attorney held a commanding 46,586 to 31,951 lead over the organization's candidate, Raymond K. Berg.

Donald Page Moore, running as an independent Democrat, was running third with 18,493 votes.

In the suburbs, Hanrahan was substantially ahead of his two opponents with only 22 precincts reporting, Hanrahan had tallied 1,116 votes with Moore second with 384 and Berg third with 250 votes.

Democrats who filtered in and out of the county clerk's third floor office in the County Building reportedly were muttering, "Hanrahan's the people's choice."

For Berg, the Democratic organization's regular choice, it appeared that it would be a long night indeed. Berg's greatest strength had been expected to be the city, where Mayor Richard Daley's army of political workers had been expected to give him a substantial lead.

Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman Richard Cowen announced the election of Virginia Macdonald to the 1st District House race with words that recalled her service in Springfield as a delegate to the 1970 Constitutional Convention.

"It's back to 'Fun City' for Ginny Macdonald," Cowen said exuberantly, just two hours after the polls had closed.

Mrs. Macdonald rolled up an early lead in the three-way race with Donald Totten and Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer, who eventually finished third.

"It's been a long but very happy day," the Arlington Heights candidate said. "I was up at 5 this morning. I couldn't sleep before that, but at 5 I finally gave up trying."

MRS. MACDONALD said she was particularly pleased with her ability to hold regular Republican voters in an election that saw many GOPs picking up Democratic ballots.

Virginia Macdonald

"There's going to have to be a serious analysis of these returns. It's obvious that the voters aren't just following party lines, they're thinking on this," Mrs. Macdonald said.

It's Back To 'Fun City' For Ginny

Cowen told a crowded dining room at the township Republican headquarters last night that he interpreted the Republican crossover vote for independent

Democrats as a "strong protest vote against the domination of Cook County by the downtown political machine."

"Our job now is to convince the voters that their best hope for reform and good government is with the Republican Party," Cowen said.

Muskie Builds An Early Lead

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, bidding for a badly needed comeback performance in the 1972 Democratic presidential sweepstakes, built up a solid lead over Eugene J. McCarthy in the Illinois primary Tuesday night.

The senator from Maine was also leading Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., in the separate balloting for shares of the 160 national convention delegates to be chosen. Early returns indicated Muskie had 42 delegates pledged or favorable to him to 11 for McGovern.

In the nonbinding presidential preference primary, Muskie had 97,029 votes or 65 per cent to McCarthy's 53,121 votes and 35 per cent with 1,059 of Illinois' 10,858 precincts reporting.

This Morning In Brief

The State

Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan apparently won renomination and dealt a stinging rebuke to Mayor Richard J. Daley's regular Democratic organization. With half of the county's 5,243 precincts reporting, Hanrahan had 44 per cent of the vote to 32 per cent for the organization-backed candidate Raymond Berg. Donald Page Moore, an independent, trailed with 23 per cent.

Three precinct election judges were arrested on vote tampering charges and later released on $1,000 bond each for a March 29 hearing after an investigation of machines at a precinct polling place in Chicago showed votes had been registered at the time it opened.

The Nation

How about this for a golfer's dream: taking off for a week on the links in the sunny south just as the first flakes of a late winter snowstorm begin to fall in Mount Prospect?

This is just what a group of local men did last week. By the time one fellow called home last Monday to tell his wife he'd arrived safely in Biloxi, Miss., five inches of snow had accumulated here — with much more still to come.

Credit for cooking up the First Annual Mount Prospect Spring Golf Jubilee goes to Richard Coleman, 909 Country Ln. He is also secretary of the Village Green Golf Club, a local men's group.

"Last November I just got a wild brainstorm, decided to explore the various resorts, and came up with the Broadwater Beach Hotel and Golf Club in Biloxi," he said. "I had a brochure printed and sent it to about 140 guys who like to play golf."

While Dick Coleman made tour arrangements, Ken Streit served as golf tournament chairman. Ken holds the same post with the Village Green Golf Club.

Each day the golfers played tournament golf, with more than half the group winning prizes. A bonus was six straight sunny days, with temperatures between 70 and 85 degrees.

"It worked out real well," reported Dick. "The fellows decided to come back next year to the same place. One eager beaver was ready to give me his deposit for next year's reservation!"

CONGRATULATIONS to the Rev. Tom Phillips of Community Presbyterian Church, who was recently elected chairman of the Chicago Presbytery Nominating Committee. In his new position, Tom will also serve as a member of Presbytery General Council. This group coordinates and administers the work of the Presbytery in the Chicago area.

THREE LINCOLN Junior High School students have won first, second, and fourth places awards in the "American Citizenship Contest" sponsored by the Mount Prospect Women's Club.

First prize in the essay contest went to Jan Beckman; second to Steve Booth; and fourth to Jim Flocca. All are students in William Beach's social studies classes.

School District Referendum Saturday

Vote Will Buy 3 Years, Say Officials

Residents of Mount Prospect Elementary Dist. 57 Saturday will be asked to approve a 39-cent tax hike in the district's education fund. Many want to know why.

Dist. 57 needs the hike for financial and educational reasons, say school officials. A "yes" vote will buy three years of financial grace, according to school board members now facing a projected $290,000 deficit at the end of this school year. It will save the current educational program and prevent the board from taking steps to close some schools, they say.

In terms of staff, passage of the referendum would retain the current non-academic programs. Only two art teachers, one nurse, one speech correctionist and one social worker would be eliminated. Four-and-a-half classroom teachers would also go, but projections show enrollment would also decrease from 3,660 to 3,463.

The hike would bring the educational fund tax rate to $2.06 per $100 assessed valuation, a $62 increase for a home with a market value of $40,000. The increase would bring into the district an estimated $370,000 based on a $100 million estimated valuation, predicts Asst. Supt. J. C. Busenhart.

That additional money would be coupled with elimination of director of pupil services at $14,500 a year, a $15,000 cut in clerical services and a $100,000 decrease in operating expenses for 1972-73 plus elimination of classroom teachers to coincide each year with decreasing enrollment. These tactics would keep the district solvent or operating under only a minor deficit until 1975-76, said Board Pres. Harrison Hanson.

WHAT WILL happen then? Hanson and other board members admit they can't speculate that far ahead.

"It's hard to tell because the whole basis may be changed by them for financing schools," said Hanson. He also said the district is not counting on any increased help from the state or federal governments in the next three years. "Also it's very difficult to do planning because we don't know what the town make-up will be like. Enrollment may go up as people with kids out of school move out of the district. We have to know who's going to replace them."

But board members can speculate on what's going to happen if the referendum fails. Revision I, a staffing plan already approved, would go into effect curtailing non-academic programs.

The plan would eliminate the foreign language program in which 400 students are currently enrolled at the junior high level. Band, which now serves 380 fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth graders, would be cut in half as would typing in which 285 junior high students are en-

School Tax Increase Opposed

The proposal to raise taxes in Dist. 57 is not without its opponents.

Thus far the most vocal critic has been Albert Mooser, a candidate of the Dist. 57 school board.

Mooser considers it the job of the board to return the district to a sound financial position without a referendum. The board could do this, he said, by more cutbacks in staff, short-term renting of unused facilities (rooms in several of the district's seven schools are unused part of the day) and consolidation of the district's smaller schools.

The way the choice between staffing plans was presented to the public has also created discontent. Some accuse the board of drawing up the plans, approved

Feb. 3, in a closed session on Feb. 7. They wanted more time to express their opinions, they say.

Some people think the expansion planned for Fairview School which would cost approximately $100,000, should not be considered during what the board has termed a financial crisis.

The board, however, says the expansion is contingent only on the sale of 11 acres of land to the village. The village has approved the purchase. But residents think the $50,000 first payment should be used to decrease the deficit. That could be done, they say, by legally moving some of the operating costs from the education fund to the building fund.

rolled. Practical arts, including home economics and industrial arts also at the junior high level, would be cut in half, affecting approximately 400 students.

Vocal music would be curtailed, probably eliminating the program at the first, second and third-grade level, according to Asst. Supt. Richard Percy. Revision I would also eliminate two learning disabilities teachers. The program would then have to be redesigned, according to Percy, since the nine current learning disabilities teachers handle the legal limit of 10 students each. Six classroom teachers would also be cut.

Dwight Hall, principal at Lincoln Junior High School, the school affected most by the cuts, said the plan is "not a satisfactory solution." School board members, however, say they can live with the program and the $110,000 deficit that goes along with it if they have to. But, they say, that's not where the crisis ends.

If the referendum fails, board members speculate they will have to start closing some schools. Board member Robert Novy has estimated that by the 1974-75 school year, if the money picture doesn't change, the whole district will shut down. Board members are also telling residents that home resale values might go down if the referendum fails.

"WE WILL have to consider closing at least one school, maybe in 1973-74," said board member Edith Freund. "Gregory School would probably be first since we can send its students to other schools without busing them."

Why is the district in such a financial bind? A tax base that remains relatively stable, a decreasing enrollment resulting in lower state aid, increased operating costs and salaries and an increase in the number of programs mandated by the state are reasons cited by school officials.

According to Busenhart, state aid for 1972-73 is expected to drop to $862,000, a $12,000 loss over the past three years. He said that during the past four years costs for special education (80 per cent reimbursed by the state) has risen from $14,000 to $112,000.

But why hasn't the school board and the administration prepared for the increasing deficits, ask some who criticize the board for not making any long-range plans.

Hanson contends they have, pointing to large staff cutbacks made for the 1971-72 school year. "We made some cutbacks in 1970-71, but felt that was not the proper time to do any large cutting."

The board did form a planning committee which, with the computer at the Harris, Trust and Savings Bank, came out in 1970 with a five-year projection for the education fund. The study states that Dist. 57 could expect increasingly larger deficits until 1974-75 and that the district would have to pass a tax referendum to remain solvent.

The board did refer to the study when making some staff cutbacks, Hanson said. But he admits the board decided not to pay the cost of updating the study each year, so the figures are now obsolete.

If the referendum fails, the board could legally come back with another referendum in 60 days. By that time, however, teachers eliminated in Revision I would have already been notified they would not be rehired. According to state law, teachers must be notified 60 days before the school year ends. And sometimes special teachers get hired by other districts pretty quickly, according to Busenhart.

Chamber To Study Proposal For Candidate Night Series

Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce officials have agreed to study a proposal that they set up a series of candidates' nights for the 1973 village elections.

Chamber Pres. Raymond Johnston said this week that nothing definite had been worked out yet, but his group was planning to discuss the program with Mayor Robert D. Teichert. Teichert originally proposed the plan last January.

As envisioned by Teichert, there would be one night scheduled in each of the 17 precincts for candidates to speak at a forum. This would allow each candidate an equal opportunity to be heard in each area, even if he does not have as much time to campaign as he would like, according to Teichert.

LAST WEEK Teichert again spoke of the plan. He said a group such as the chamber was needed to run the program for a number of reasons, including scheduling and screening of questions "to rid of redundancy, imbalance of exposure and needling."

Teichert said he feels getting all the candidates together, where they can talk on the same issues, would be "more meaningful" to the public, than having them speak individually throughout the community.

The reason he chose the chamber to approach on the project, Teichert said, was because they are "an on-going organization with strength and a great stake in good government."

"It would take some effort (to implement) but it would provide some guarantees for all candidates," he said. The purpose of the forums would not be to supplant coffees, he added, as they serve necessary functions in raising financial and worker support.

Casper Wants To 'Tackle Problems'

by KAREN RUGEN

Alex Casper doesn't believe in running away from a problem. That's why he is seeking re-election to the Mount Prospect Dist. 57 School Board.

"I have a concern and a stake in this district," said the 56-year-old incumbent, first elected to the board in 1969. "I have been so involved that I would be running away if I quit now."

The current financial crisis in the district is one problem Casper wants to stay and fight. Usually a man of few words, the candidate said he intends to "keep harping" on the need for approval of a 39-cent tax hike on Saturday. And if it fails, he wants to be around to help resolve the money dilemma.

"The referendum is a step we must take to continue with our good school system. I want to protect it and am optimistic the referendum will pass," he said. "But if it fails, there will still be quality education on the basis of Revision I with its reductions. A lot depends on the results of the referendum. If it fails by a close margin, I would try again, tell our story again and enlist more support. If it fails by a terrific margin, the community is telling us definitely they don't want it."

IF THAT'S the case, the district will have to look to other avenues for solving the problem, according to Casper, an area accountant for American Telephone and Telegraph.

"We need other incomes coming into the district, like more help from the state," he said. "Also the federal government is becoming aware and hopefully will provide funds. I would like to see a basic minimum amount from the state with local enrichment funds provided by the community."

Another source of additional income, said Casper, is changing the inequity of funds provided for unit and dual districts. Currently unit districts, which include both elementary and high schools, receive more state funds than separate dual districts. Casper thinks that could be changed by legislation.

Another possibility is to combine Dist. 57 with part of High School Dist. 214 to form a unit district. But consolidation like that, Casper thinks, will take a little longer.

"ALTHOUGH CONSOLIDATION will benefit the taxpayers, there are other aspects involved like losing autonomy and independence," he said.

Casper feels consolidation can be achieved now through the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC), composed of 10 school districts in the Northwest suburban area. He has served as vice president of the organization and is president-elect for 1972-73.

"I would like to continue to serve on NEC. I think it's a good idea — an interim aid that can offer economy and efficiency to the districts, until we look ahead towards consolidation," he said.

Casper has lived in the district for eight years at 207 W. Orchard Pl. He has four children. Casper has a business degree from City College of New York and New York University. For two years he has served on the board's bargaining team, and if reelected will again serve this year.

HERE ARE his views on other issues:

—NEGOTIATIONS: "I have been adverse to opening negotiations in the past but I think now that has gradually changed. This last year's experience was tantamount to an open session. Both sides issued many press releases. If we're that close to it, I'm in favor of opening sessions."

"Teacher's salaries ought to be reasonable, but should take light of the financial situation. I was satisfied with last year's settlement but sorry it had to take so long. I think the negotiator helped considerably. But you don't learn anything in just one attempt, so I approved hiring him again."

ADMINISTRATION: "Our school board relations have been basically good with the administration. We have a mutual understanding. I think the school board's position should be one of governing and guiding. Sometimes, though, I think we delve too much into matters the administration could handle."

COMMUNICATION: "I think we have very good communication with the newspaper and newsletter. Yet, in spite of that people say they don't know. Good communication depends on the people on both sides."

LONG-RANGE PLANNING: "I think the school board has looked ahead. We have had long-range projections. If we hadn't made plans, we would have had a fantastic deficit. We were talking about cutting back staff in December, 1970. That certainly was looking ahead."

the 12 families that jointly own the slough are not interested in selling it but would be willing to listen to any park district proposal.

Park Pres. William Kuhns said the board hoped that some day the district would own both ends of the Hillcrest Slough, east of Elmhurst Road on both sides of Willow Road.

KUHNS SAID the park district wanted to acquire the land so that it would be kept in its original state. He said the commissioners were afraid that the slough could fall into the hands of developers if the present residents moved away and people who didn't care about preserving the land moved in.

The park district is currently attempting to acquire the slough south of Willow Road. The board voted in January to get an appraisal of the south slough after some 45 area residents appeared at a board meeting to recommend the slough be preserved as a wildlife park.

Kuhns said the board also decided to have Marck, Gundelach & Associates appraise the north slough at the same time they were appraising the south slough.

"We are very much interested in acquiring the north slough, but not to make it into a swimming or boating area or to build picnic grounds on it," Kuhns said. "We just want to keep it as a place to enjoy nature."

Several board members said the park district if it owned the north slough, could get state aid in preserving the land. The board said it would draw up a proposal for the north slough to present to the homeowners association in the future.

Hillcrest Lake Group Wants To Keep Slough

Two representatives of the Hillcrest Lake Homeowners Association told the Prospect Heights Park District Board Monday night that the homeowners group is not interested in selling or donating the North Hillcrest Slough to the park district.

Louis Marn, 418 Hillcrest, and Leonard Basak, 502 Hillcrest, said the homeowners bought the slough for the purpose of protecting it and to insure it would be kept in its present state.

Marn, Hillcrest Lake president, said

Gunman Gets $110 At Store

A lone gunman held up an Elmhurst Road food store Sunday night escaping with $110 in cash.

Angelos Karam, a clerk at the Day and Night Food Store, 1183 Elmhurst Rd., unincorporated Des Plaines, was wounded in the leg and thigh when the gunman fired a shot at several soda pop bottles next to Karam.

Karam told Cook County Sheriff's Police that the bandit fired the gun to show him it was loaded.

According to reports, the gunman came into the store and demanded that Karam's wife, Flora, who was at the front counter, put the money in a bag. Mrs. Karam then called her husband, police said.

Karam told police as he approached the counter in front of the store, the bandit told him to stop and then fired at the pop bottles.

The bandit then stuffed the money in a bag and fled the store on foot.

A customer in the store at the time of the robbery described the gunman as a white male, about 5 feet 10 inches tall with a slender build. He was reportedly wearing a green army fatigue jacket and had blonde collar-length hair.

For Wheeling Township Republicans the news was not all that bad.

Although the strongly Republican Township was split badly by redistricting last year, the many sided battle facing local Republicans ended last night in certain victory for two important candidates: Gene Schlickman and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald.

Schlickman, running in the 4th District, was an apparent easy winner for reelection in the Republican primary. Fellow incumbent Robert Juckett of Park Ridge was also a winner.

In the 3rd District, Mrs. Virginia Macdonald ran the expected race and finished well in the district, and first in Wheeling Township. Mrs. Macdonald finished second in the district with Republican support in areas where many Republicans were deserting the party temporarily to get in the controversial state's attorney's race.

For other candidates in Wheeling Township, the race may not have been so fruitful. Bill Kinkade of Buffalo Grove, candidate for the Illinois House in the 1st District, was in serious jeopardy. Kinkade was in a race for the Illinois House which attracted an unusual number of candidates and although he won handily in Wheeling Township portions of the district, he appeared to be outdistanced by incumbent Brian Duff of Wilmette and challenger John Porter of Evanston.

In the race for the Republican nomination for state senator in the 1st District, Brad Glass appeared to have the edge over Dave Brown, although the race was far from over even late in the evening.

Hanrahan's The Man, Say Area Voters

Edward V. Hanrahan, based on early returns last night, appeared to be the Democrats' candidate for state's attorney.

With 492 of 3,205 precincts reporting at 7:30 p.m. in the city of Chicago, the unopposed state's attorney held a commanding 46,585 to 31,951 lead over the organization's candidate, Raymond K. Berg.

Donald Page Moore, running as an independent Democrat, was running third with 18,493 votes.

In the suburbs, Hanrahan was substantially ahead of his two opponents with only 22 precincts reporting. Hanrahan had tallied 1,116 votes with Moore second with 394 and Berg third with 250 votes.

Democrats who filtered in and out of the county clerk's third floor office in the County Building reportedly were muttering, "Hanrahan's the people's choice."

For Berg, the Democratic organization's regular choice, it appeared that it would be a long night indeed. Berg's greatest strength had been expected to be the city, where Mayor Richard Daley's army of political workers had been expected to give him a substantial lead.

GENE SCHLICKMAN and Virginia Macdonald, tabulate returns from their districts with Marion Gimbel of Arlington Heights. Both Schlickman and Mrs. Macdonald were apparent winners in the legislative district races in the suburbs.

It's Back To 'Fun City' For Ginny

Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman Richard Cowen announced the election of Virginia Macdonald to the 1st District House race with words that recalled her service in Springfield as a delegate to the 1970 Constitutional Convention.

"It's back to 'Fun City' for Ginny Macdonald," Cowen said exuberantly, just two hours after the polls had closed.

Mrs. Macdonald rolled up an early lead in the three-way race with Donald Totten and Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer, who eventually finished third.

"It's been a long but very happy day," the Arlington Heights candidate said. "I was up at 5 this morning. I couldn't sleep before that, but at 5 I finally gave up trying."

MRS. MACDONALD said she was particularly pleased with her ability to hold regular Republican voters in an election that saw many GOPs picking up Democratic ballots.

Virginia
Macdonald

"There's going to have to be a serious analysis of these returns. It's obvious that the voters aren't just following party lines, they're thinking on this," Mrs. Macdonald said.

Cowen told a crowded dining room at the township Republican headquarters last night that he interpreted the Republican crossover vote for independent

Democrats as a "strong protest vote against the domination of Cook County by the downtown political machine."

"Our job now is to convince the voters that their best hope for reform and good government is with the Republican Party," Cowen said.

Muskie Builds An Early Lead

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, bidding for a badly needed comeback performance in the 1972 Democratic presidential sweepstakes, built up a solid lead over Eugene J. McCarthy in the Illinois primary Tuesday night.

The senator from Maine was also leading Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., in the separate balloting for shares of the 160 national convention delegates to be chosen. Early returns indicated Muskie had 42 delegates pledged or favorable to him to 11 for McGovern.

In the nonbinding presidential preference primary, Muskie had 97,029 votes or 65 per cent to McCarthy's 53,121 votes and 35 per cent with 1,059 of Illinois' 10,858 precincts reporting.

This Morning In Brief

The State

Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan apparently won renomination and dealt a stinging rebuke to Mayor Richard J. Daley's regular Democratic organization. With half of the county's 5,243 precincts reporting, Hanrahan had 54 per cent of the vote to 32 per cent for the organization-backed candidate Raymond K. Berg. Donald Page Moore, an independent, trailed with 23 per cent.

Three precinct election judges were arrested on vote tampering charges and later released on $1,000 bond each for a March 29 hearing after an investigation of machines at a precinct polling place in Chicago showed votes had been registered at the time it opened.

The Nation

With Chief Justice Warren Burger dissenting, the Supreme Court rules 6-1 that state and county laws requiring any lengthy residence in order to vote are unconstitutional. The decision suggested a 30-day waiting period may be enough.

Band Trip Is Explained

Warren Freeman, director of the National Educational Scholarship Foundation, met with members of the Wheeling Instrumental League Monday night to answer questions about the proposed Wheeling band tour of Germany.

The Foundation is sponsoring the musical competition at the German cities of Wiesbaden and Mainz, Aug. 13-27.

Freeman flew here from his home in Connecticut to talk with the league officers and help with any necessary preparations. He explained special arrangements are being made by the Spectrum Travel Agency, an international group carrier, to provide cleaning places for band uniforms plus transportation of instruments.

Spectrum is primarily a "wholesale" dealer which specializes in large tour groups, Freeman said. He added the trip is not the cheapest possible way for the band to travel, but it provides more than minimum accommodations and reservations on approved airlines.

Spectrum has also placed a $1 million deposit in the Michigan National Bank, Freeman said, to "guarantee performance" or make sure the students are able to complete the trip. The bond applies to all of the bands which are able to make the trip.

FREEMAN ALSO explained the Wheeling High School Band was not selected solely on the recommendation of Robert F. O'Brien, director of bands at Notre Dame University. Freeman said a committee started with a list of about 100 bands and each member added or eliminated bands until a small group was selected. The Wheeling recommendation came partly from William D. Revelli, director of bands for the University of Michigan. Wheeling Band director Irwin Brick said Revelli has been to Wheeling or seen the band perform several times.

Freeman reminded league members that the foundation is also trying to raise enough money to provide a scholarship for a member of each band which wins the competition in the three categories in Germany.

The idea of the band trips began, Freeman said, "because I'm interested in educational travel." Freeman, as headmaster of an independent school in the east, said he was on a trip with some of his own students when the idea of bringing a group of bands to Germany came up.

Freeman said he consulted with O'Brien and other officials and decided the plan had merit. "I know we haven't got all the best bands in the United States — we couldn't do that. We are not saying these are the best bands in the country but no defense is needed for the Wheeling Band," Freeman said.

"ONE OTHER VERY compelling reason I got into this is that I'm upset with the image they see over there (in Europe), said Freeman. "Everywhere you go you see dirty, unkempt hippies — this is true all over Europe. This trip gives our young people a positive way to present themselves to Europe."

Freeman added he has been dean of the College of Music and band director at Boston University, and has held positions in public schools and colleges.

"I feel the main purpose of my coming here tonight is to help you if I can. I'd like to help you put this across," he said.

Buy Insurance Against Rights Suits

The Board of Education of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 decided Monday night to buy civil rights insurance for board members and district employees.

By a vote of 5-2 the board decided to buy the insurance for three years at a premium of $6,000.

The insurance will protect board members and district employees as individuals from court judgments brought against them if their actions are found to have violated someone's civil or Constitutional rights.

Board members Erwin Poklacki and Sharrille Hildebrandt voted against buying the insurance. Poklacki said he did not think the board had studied the issue carefully enough, adding, "This protects us only if we act in haste and do something that will get us in trouble. I don't personally think I need this policy."

Supt. James Erviti told the board purchase of the insurance was recently made legal by the legislature, saying, "I think in view of the many inquiries that are being made to school districts about legal rights, I think this would be desirable."

THE DISTRICT ITSELF has always been protected by liability insurance, but in lawsuits board members and administrators are often named as individuals, Erviti said.

He pointed out that the board employs an attorney whose advice is "supposed to keep us out of trouble. But none of us is perfect. We can make mistakes and do something that will impair someone's rights."

Also at Monday's meeting the board voted 5-2 to postpone action on participating in cooperative purchasing operated by the State of Illinois and the Northwest Education Cooperative. Poklacki and Hildebrandt again voted against the action.

Board members asked Board Atty. Frank Hines to study the cooperative purchasing arrangements, in which several governmental units take bids for items and buy together to get an improved price because of volume. Several board members expressed concern about what would happen if a board member held interest in a company that was dealing with other school districts and ended up selling items to his own district because of a cooperative arrangement.

Trustees Commit $6,000 For Cultural Center Study

The Arlington Heights Cultural Commission got a green light from the village board Monday night to proceed with its plan to hire a theater consultant for a feasibility study on the design of a cultural center.

The trustees agreed to commit $6,000 plus expenses for a study by George Izenour, an internationally recognized theater consultant who has worked on more than 140 cultural centers including the Performing Arts Center in Milwaukee.

Cultural Commission Member Sidney Rosenfeld told the trustees Izenour has indicated he could begin the study the end of April and have it completed by late summer.

The cultural commission had requested

Choir To Sing At Area High Schools

A 42-voice choir from Culver-Stockton College, Canton, Mo., will sing at Forest View High School and Arlington High School tomorrow morning.

The choir will complete their tour of Arlington Heights Thursday at 8 p.m. when they present a concert at the Christian Church, (Disciples of Christ), 333 W. Thomas St.

The concerts represent three of the 15 planned for the choir's annual spring tour of Chicago during the week. The choir, under the direction of D. Larry McSpadden, perform a variety of musical works from contemporary to religious.

$25,000 to finance two feasibility studies — one on design characteristics and a second report on possible means of financing a cultural center.

In their four to three vote to fund the Izenour study, the trustees agreed to draw the money from the revenues now generated by auto parking on the proposed site for the cultural center, immediately south of the library on Dunton Avenue.

The siren song of embattled State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan lured away droves of Maine Township GOP regulars yesterday, contributing to the primary defeats of Floyd Fulle and Robert Sherwood.

Fulle, in a stinging defeat for North Suburban Republican organizations and a rebuff for Gov. Richard Ogilvie, lost to Samuel Young of Glenview in the 10th District Congressional primary by more than 6,000 votes, according to preliminary returns.

Sherwood, a 2nd Ward alderman from Des Plaines who tried to capitalize on the recent redistricting and unseat one of two incumbent state representatives in the 5th District, was also defeated by a sizeable margin.

THE NORTH SUBURBS yesterday became the political home of U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, who pushed aside his primary opponent, Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase, by an estimated 20,000 votes. Mikva established himself as a vote-getting powerhouse, and clearly has a chance of beating Young this November in the traditionally GOP-dominated district.

Fulle, who was endorsed by four of five GOP organizations in the 10th District and had the backing of Gov. Ogilvie, was bitterly disappointed in his defeat. He blamed Young for running a campaign that consisted solely of personal attacks against him.

As it was throughout Cook County, the big story yesterday was the tremendous crossover Republican vote for Edward Hanrahan. In normally Republican Maine Township, more than 13,000 residents voted in the Democratic state's attorney race. Of those, at least 6,500 supported Hanrahan.

"The crossover killed us," Sherwood said last night as the results rolled in at Maine GOP headquarters in Des Plaines. "If Maine had had the turnout, we could have done it. But with the few Republican votes cast here, we just couldn't do it."

Sherwood, who lost every township in the 5th District except Maine, said he did as well as could be expected in Maine considering the crossover.

WINNING PLACES on the 5th District GOP state representative ballot in the district were both incumbents, State Rep. Richard Walsh of Oak Park and State Rep. Edward Bluthardt of Schiller Park.

Walsh, who did relatively little campaigning and appeared only a few times in Des Plaines, tallied 10,662 votes throughout the district, according to preliminary returns. Bluthardt got about 9,200 votes and Sherwood was third in a field of four with just over 4,200 votes.

Incumbent State Sen. Howard Mohr of Forest Park defeated John Phillips of Leyden Township for the GOP 5th District Senate nomination.

Mikva was elated at his triumph in the congressional primary.

"It's not only the victory, but it's the size of it and it's all throughout the district," he told the Herald last night.

"People just didn't want to decide on the fraudulent non-issue that someone is trying to take away their schools and their way of life. They voted for good government and reform," said Mikva, referring to Blase's campaign attacks on him.

THE REPUBLICAN candidate for Congress in the 10th District, Sam Young of Glenview, was the apparent winner last night on the Republican side of the Congressional ticket.

FLOYD FULLE OF Des Plaines. In the tight race for the Republican candidacy in the 10th District, Fulle's campaign was unsuccessful.

Hanrahan's The Man, Say Area Voters

Edward V. Hanrahan, based on early returns last night, appeared to be the Democrats' candidate for state's attorney.

With 492 of 3,205 precincts reporting at 7:30 p.m. in the city of Chicago, the unseated state's attorney held a commanding 46,586 to 31,951 lead over the organization's candidate, Raymond K. Berg. Donald Page Moore, running as an independent Democrat, was running third with 18,403 votes.

In the suburbs, Hanrahan was substantially ahead of his two opponents with only 22 precincts reporting. Hanrahan had tallied 1,116 votes with Moore second with 394 and Berg third with 250 votes.

Democrats who filtered in and out of the county clerk's third floor office in the County Building reportedly were muttering, "Hanrahan's the people's choice."

Fulle Bitter Over Defeat To Young

A light Republican turnout and a hotly contested Democratic contest were cited by Samuel Young as the two ingredients that gave him his victory last night over Floyd Fulle in the 10th Congressional race.

By 8:30 p.m., with only 20 per cent of the precincts reporting, Young was already ahead with 5,445 votes to Fulle's 2,577. Northfield, New Trier and Evanston townships were reporting strong Young leads. Niles Township was running about even for the two conservative Republican candidates. Maine Township showed Fulle in a 4 to 1 lead, less than the Young people had expected.

By 11 p.m., with 93 per cent of the precincts reporting, it was all over. Young was leading with 61 per cent of the votes, carrying four out of five townships.

FULLE CONCEDED bitterly to Young at 9:45 p.m. last night.

"My opponent's campaign has been on one issue only — attacking me personally to defeat me. It seems to have worked for him," Fulle told a crowd of supporters at Maine Township Republican headquarters in Des Plaines.

"I am going to lose, but I do not believe that Sam Young has the character or the strata to represent us in this district. He ran a 100 per cent negative campaign to destroy me as an individual.

"If that's character, if that's integrity in politics, I cannot buy it. I'll work my tail off for other Republicans, but not for Young," Fulle said.

The county commissioner added that the "tremendous" crossover of Republican to Democratic voters in yesterday's primary is "almost incomprehensible."

According to Fulle, Maine Township, which voted more than 2 to 1 against Young, had its lowest GOP primary turnout in history.

"That's a red light for all of us. We've got our work cut out for us."

YOUNG CREDITED his victory to a variety of factors including a small number of contested GOP races resulting in a large number of Republicans casting Democratic ballots in two of Fulle's strongest townships, Maine and Niles.

"The people were striking a blow at the Democratic Party," Young said. "The public showed they admire the independent guy running against the organization."

Calling himself an independent but still regular Republican, he stated that this too might be a reason why he pulled more votes than his opponent.

Fulle's recent county scandal also contributed to his loss, Young said.

The conservative Republican will be racing liberal Abner Mikva in November.

Mikva's weak point in the 10th District, Young feels, is that the views he held while representing the 2nd District will not be popular among people in the 10th.

"His views on public housing and mandatory busing are not well thought out," Young said, adding Mikva's attitude on spending is contrary to fiscal reality.

Gene, Juckett Apparent Winners In 4th District

Eugene Schlickman and Robert Juckett were the apparent winners in yesterday's 4th District House legislative race.

With most of the precincts in Niles, Maine, Wheeling and Northfield townships reporting, Juckett, an incumbent from Park Ridge, was leading with 11,101 votes in unofficial counts. Schlickman, the 3rd District incumbent, was running second with 7,905 votes. Rubin, a Skokie resident, was a distant third with 2,301.

As expected, Schlickman did best in Wheeling Township. With all of 39 of the township's 4th District precincts reporting, Schlickman's unofficial vote total stood at 3,987. Juckett ran second with 1,567 votes. Rubin got 549.

IN MAINE TOWNSHIP, with most of the precincts in, Juckett was four outdistancing his rivals with a vote total of 8,145. Schlickman was running second with 2,842 votes. Again, Rubin was running third with 1,136 votes.

In Niles Township with 30 of 43 precincts reporting, Juckett was maintaining a moderate lead. His vote total stood at 1,389. Schlickman's total stood at 1,076. Rubin got 616 votes.

Early last night Schlickman said that his lead in the race was an even stronger ratio than in past primaries. Like all the candidates he noted the large crossover of regular Republican votes to the Democratic side. Schlickman said he was pleased at being able to carry so many Republican voters in the district despite the crossover.

AT MAINE TOWNSHIP GOP headquarters in Des Plaines, Juckett said he had expected to win a large majority of Maine Township's votes, but declared that he "didn't expect to win this big."

"I'm quite flattered at the Maine vote," Juckett said. He added that he was glad the heavy crossover of Republican voters to the Democratic primary, "a disaster for some candidates, did not affect his own race."

"I think a lot of fine Republican voters wanted to do something to try and destroy the Daley machine. I think they also felt there weren't too many contests on the Republican side," Juckett said.

In the Democratic state senate 4th District primary, scant early returns showed Thomas Flynn of Niles a narrow leader over his opponent, Steven Corwin. The winner will be running against the incumbent, State Sen. John Carroll who was unopposed in yesterday's Republican primary.

ALD. ROBERT SHERWOOD of Des Plaines was an apparent loser in the race for a seat in the Illinois House in the 5th District. With Sherwood is his daughter, Karen.

Muskie Builds An Early Lead

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, bidding for a badly needed comeback performance in the 1972 Democratic presidential sweepstakes, built up a solid lead over Eugene J. McCarthy in the Illinois primary Tuesday night.

The senator from Maine was also leading Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., in the separate balloting for shares of the 160 national convention delegates to be chosen. Early returns indicated Muskie had 42 delegates pledged or favorable to him to 11 for McGovern.

In the nonbinding presidential preference primary, Muskie had 97,029 votes or 65 per cent to McCarthy's 53,121 votes and 35 per cent with 1,050 of Illinois' 10,858 precincts reporting.

Totten, Ginny Lead In 3rd

The battle between three Republican candidates for two Republican seats in the Illinois House from the 3rd District was apparently decided early in the evening yesterday.

Early returns from the four townships that are part of the newly formed 3rd District showed that all indications placed Mrs. Virginia Macdonald first, Schaumburg Township Committeeman Don Totten second and Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer an unsuccessful third.

In Schaumburg Township, with 35 out of 38 precincts reporting, Totten got an expected high return of 4,125 votes compared to 1,538½ for Macdonald and 1,326½ for Meyer.

In Wheeling Township, Mrs. Macdonald pulled ahead by a measure of two to one over Totten and four to one over Meyer.

In Elk Grove Township, with 51 out of 61 precincts reporting, Totten and Macdonald came close to each other with 3,286 and 3,334 votes respectively and Meyer came in third with 2,818 votes.

AND IN PALATINE Township, Totten was leading over both other candidates. Although the race was not yet over by presstime, early indications showed that the vast absence of Republican voters in the primary hurt Meyer's candidacy worse than it did the other two candidates.

Since he did not rely on the regular Republican organizations, Meyer's strength would have to come from voters interested enough in his campaign to not vote for the party's two endorsed candidates. Apparently it was those voters who were lured into casting votes instead in the Democratic primary where the hotly contested race for Cook County State's Attorney was a controversial issue.

City Council Approves Budget Of $9,737,064

The Des Plaines City Council Monday night approved a nearly $10 million 1972 city budget, which is more than $450,000 higher than the 1971 budget.

Acting after Herald press time, the council approved a $9,737,064 budget, which is 5 per cent higher than the 1971 budget of $9,280,064.

Increases were caused by higher wages, creation of new city jobs, including a city environmental protection officer and personnel officer, and more funds to fight construction of a sewage plant on the city's west side, according to City Comptroller Duane Blietz.

The budget also includes about $50,000 for a possible renewal of the city's plastic bag garbage collection program, this program had come under attack from environmentalists who say plastic bags cannot be naturally broken down into non-harmful biological wastes.

CITY OFFICIALS expect Des Plaines Police patrolmen to sign a contract soon for a 6 per cent raise, Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel said Monday night.

The raise would increase salaries from $12,040 in 1971 to $12,762 in 1972. The budget indicates about $50,000 more in salaries will be paid to the 54 patrolmen, up from a total of $603,935 in 1971 to $652,251.

More negotiations are expected between the city and representatives. Spokesmen for firemen and public works employees, Des Plaines City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi said at the meeting that contracts would be sent out today to the employee organizations for their study.

According to the budget, salaries for firemen in 1972 will cost the city $628,229, compared with $521,146 in 1971 for 56 firemen.

Funds were added to the proposed city budget last week for the plastic bag program, on the recommendation of Ald. Ewald Swanson (6th) who said he did not want the program abandoned.

The city had encouraged use of plastic bags by providing free-bags and holders, along several pick-up routes, but the council had been unable to agree on details of instituting the bag system.

Firemen, Public Works Men Want More

Des Plaines firemen and public works employees have decided to seek higher pay settlements or more benefits, after disclosures of a higher-than-expected wage settlement with police patrolmen.

Despite announcements of wage settlements by Mayor Herbert Behrel last week, firemen and public works employee spokesmen said yesterday that more negotiating sessions may be necessary.

The city has reportedly agreed to give patrolmen a 6 per cent wage raise, boosting top salaries from $12,040 in 1971 to $12,762.

According to statements from Behrel Monday, firemen had agreed to accept a 5 1/2 per cent raise with time and a half for overtime benefits, and Municipal Employees City Coordination Association (MECCA), the public works representative organization, had agreed to a 5 1/4 per cent raise and some benefits.

Behrel was corrected in his belief that settlements had been reached at Monday night's city council meeting, when City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi, who has conducted negotiations, said settlement terms had not yet been "finalized."

Herman Gualano, president of the 54-man firemen's association, said yesterday that he had received the impression during negotiations that 5.5 per cent was "the tops the city was going to go." The Federal Pay board has designated a 5.5 per cent as the top raise it would approve, although several unions have been granted higher raises.

His association either wants 6 per cent, or 5.5 per cent with two new benefits, which he said will be discussed at future negotiations.

THE FIREMEN'S association, which had agreed last year to the same raise as the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA) for a top salary of $12,040, wants time-and-a-half for overtime for all firemen, under the rank of deputy chief.

At present, firemen who are recalled to stations to fight fires receive call-back pay. This is $5 for the first hour and $3 for each additional hour, much less, Gualano said, than usual hourly wages.

Police and public works employees now get time and a half for overtime, he said. The city negotiators had agreed to provide time and a half salary only for fire-fighters, not inspectors or officers — and the association wants this benefit for all firemen up to the deputy chief level.

The association also wants to get higher wages for firemen who drive pumper trucks. According to civil service rules, this driver is an engineer, and should receive about 5 per cent higher wages, Gualano said. At present, they receive the same pay rates as other firemen. About 15 men would be affected.

William Jacobs, attorney for MECCA, said more negotiations will be made to bring the wage settlement up to 6 per cent. "We feel we have been shorted," he said.

Gunman Gets $110 At Store

A lone gunman held up an Elmhurst Road food store Sunday night escaping with $110 in cash.

Angelos Karam, a clerk at the Day and Night Food Store, 1163 Elmhurst Rd., unincorporated Des Plaines, was wounded in the leg and thigh when the gunman fired a shot at several soda pop bottles next to Karam.

Karam told Cook County Sheriff's Police that the bandit fired the gun to show him it was loaded.

According to reports, the gunman came into the store and demanded that Karam's wife, Flora, who was at the front counter, put the money in a bag. Mrs. Karam then called her husband, police said.

Karam told police as he approached the counter in front of the store, the bandit told him to stop and then fired at the pop bottles.

The bandit then stuffed the money in a bag and fled the store on foot.

A customer in the store at the time of the robbery described the gunman as a white male, about 5 feet 10 inches tall with a slender build. He was reportedly wearing a green army fatigue jacket and had blonde collar-length hair.

Steal $22 At Pharmacy

Burglars took $22 from a petty cash box at a south side Des Plaines pharmacy over the weekend. Police said a key was apparently used to enter the Beecham-Massengill Pharmacy, 2720 River Rd.

Parent Effectiveness Training

A Return To The Joy Of Being Parents

by ELEANOR RIVES
(First of Two Parts)

Your young son is engrossed in outdoor play. It's a beautiful day; the air is filled with the squeals and laughter of children having fun. His turn is next.

Suddenly you call him to come to dinner — now.

He stalks into the house, angrily blurted out, "I don't want to eat, you dirty old stinkbug, you!"

Do you: 1. Shout back at him? 2. Send him to his room? 3. Give him a lecture? 4. Ignore his outburst? 5. Sympathize and soothe him?

None of these.

According to Connie Girtz, who with her husband, Al, teaches classes in "Parent Effectiveness Training (PET)," a parent must learn to respond not to the child's words, but to decode them, to look deep down inside and find the real message — to respond to his feelings.

"WHEN THE CHILD owns the problem, if we can just stay neutral and actively listen, we can help him through the problem instead of solving it for him," said Connie. "A mother might respond with something like, 'You're pretty mad at me, aren't you . . .,' allowing the child to be himself and talk about his feelings."

Simple. But dramatically effective. It's called active listening and it's one of three techniques learned and practiced by concerned parents enrolled in the PET course.

Have you, as a parent, ever become frustrated, worried, angry or insecure with your children? Do they ever defy your authority, bicker with you, disregard your feelings, break family rules or show annoyance with your concern?

"PARENT EFFECTIVENESS Training" is a course designed to teach parents how to avoid and handle family conflicts, to help them relate and act with greater effectiveness toward their children, and — not so incidentally — toward each other. It works with bosses, employees and friends, too.

The course was created by Dr. Thomas Gordon, a California psychologist who earned his PhD at the University of Chicago. Working with problem children, he came to realize that the benefits of his counseling were quickly torn down when the child returned to the home setting. To make the total setting more healthy, he originated a preventive education program for parents.

Rev. and Mrs. Al Girtz of Des Plaines

are two of more than 1,000 licensed instructors in PET in the United States. They are currently conducting an eight-week course in the Postgraduate Center at Forest Hospital in three-hour sessions on Thursday nights.

THE GIRTZES ARE well qualified to lead the program from the standpoints of both training and experience. Al, a Lutheran pastor, is currently a chaplain-resident at Lutheran General Hospital where he is getting special training as a pastoral counselor. As a parish pastor in Minneapolis for six years, he was involved in adult education, youth work and counseling. A graduate of Dana College in Blair, Neb., and Luther Seminary in St. Paul, he is a member of the International Transactional Analysis Association.

Connie Girtz, with a bachelor of science degree in psychology and education from Dana College, has been an instructor in elementary education for three years and a non-professional counselor to teens for many years.

MOST IMPORTANT — the Girtzes are parents of three robust, active, bouncy children of their own — Jonathan, 6; David, 5; and Karin, 2. And the lines of communication in the Girtz household are wide open.

Working as a team, the couple are conducting PET classes for the fourth time. Outside of the classroom, they present PET programs, individually or as a team, to churches, schools or any interested organization.

Parents enrolled in the eight-session course — and enrollment is kept to a maximum of 16 — follow Dr. Gordon's book "Parent Effectiveness Training." The course quickly gets down to cases on how to communicate clearly, to discipline without causing rebellion, to develop more loving relationships and to raise responsible, self-reliant, cooperative children.

THERE ARE THREE effective techniques that clear the way for real communication with your child.

The first is the "active listening" technique as cited in the case of the little boy who didn't want to come in for dinner. This is effective when the problem belongs to the child.

The second technique, the "I" approach, is most effective when the problem belongs to you, the adult — when you are the one affected by the action. You're bugged about something the child (or other person) has done; you need to tell him about it but you still want to preserve the relationship, not reject the child.

WHEN CONNIE'S son repeatedly threw applejacks on the floor, she finally calmed down and said matter-of-factly, "It really bugs me when you throw these on the floor, because then I have to clean them up." She hit at the action rather than the person, discussed his behavior without blame and told how it affected her. She gave him an "I" message.

He didn't do it again.

The third technique is most effective when the problem is in the relationship itself. For example, Dad and teenage son both need the car at the same time. They sit down, talk it out, compromise. How about son getting the car two days a week in return for helping Dad weekends?

ADULTS IN THE PET classes not only learn these techniques but actually practice them on each other every week by "role playing" problems, many of which they bring from their own homes. After putting their new skills into practice at home, they come back and share their experiences with the class.

They are very careful to avoid the 12 roadblocks which barricade the avenues of communication and almost automatically block an effective relationship with another person.

Tomorrow: The 12 roadblocks and how to avoid them.

Grandson's Death Prompts Book About Birth Defects

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Until Feb. 26, 1970, Tjessco Russell Gaver had little knowledge of birth defects.

That was the day her first grandson, James Walter Grace Jr., was born. He was not made perfectly. His spine was open, a condition known as spina bifida. Little Jim, as his grandmother came to call him, died three weeks after birth.

Could an operation have saved his life? At some birth defects centers on occasion delicate surgery gives spina bifida infants a fragile hold on life. Then there are other operations. Children who survive may never become completely whole, but they are taught to make their abilities count more than their crippling disabilities.

Mrs. Gaver said in an interview that the hospital in which her grandson was born did not operate a birth defect center. These are special places, strategically located nationwide and funded by the National Foundation — March of Dimes.

LITTLE JIM was transferred to such a center in Newark, N.J., nine days after birth. Mrs. Gaver said his open spine was infected by then. "It was too late," she said.

"It may be true but it's true — we are not interested in other people's problems unless they affect us personally."

"When a birth defect touched my life in such a tragic way, all I could do was think of finding some way of making certain that little Jim had not lived — and died — in vain."

She decided to learn all she could about birth defects, their treatment and even, where possible, the prevention of same. When she learned all that, she put it between the covers of a book just out — "Birth Defects And Your Baby" (Lancet).

AMONG THE facts that must be faced are these:

—250,000 children are born in the United States each year with birth defects. This misfortune strikes about one in every 10 American families.

—20 per cent of all defects are inherited from one or both parents who may not have the defect themselves but carry it in the genetic blueprints, the genes, they pass on to their children.

—The toll in anguish to parents, in medical bills to families, in costs to society for institutional care is incalculable. The defects caused by a single large-scale epidemic of rubella German measles, for example, may ultimately cost $1.5 billion.

Mrs. Gaver says the subject is of importance to those about to get married, to those already married who plan to have children, and, of course, to all those who have a loved one with a birth defect and don't know what to do about it.

"KNOWING WHERE to seek help is the beginning of hope," she said.

Mrs. Gaver said 22 publishers turned down her book manuscript on birth defects.

"Such a distasteful subject," one editor told her.

"It is," Mrs. Gaver said. "But it is far more distasteful to helplessly witness the death of a child for whom no adequate medical attention can be found — on account of ignorance about the birth defects centers throughout the country."

Speaking Of . . .

You And The Women's Reserve

by KAY MARSH

Pat T. was a nurse. Most of the time she's a mother of three and busy with Little League, but she works weekends at the local hospital.

Mary A. can't take a full-time teaching job now, but she's on the high school's substitute list. Her neighbor keeps her baby when she gets a call to teach.

Sally J. has a degree in English, but now she's set her sights on becoming a children's librarian. Her husband babysits two nights a week while she takes courses toward her master's degree in library science.

Married right out of high school, Eleanor T. never held a job. Through the years, though, she's become an expert needlewoman and plans to open a shop of her own as soon as her youngest child starts to school. Meanwhile, she teaches knitting, macrame and other crafts to small groups at home and banks her earnings.

WHAT'S THE COMMON denominator? Pat, Mary, Sally and Eleanor might all be said to be members of a "Women's Reserve" in that they're career-oriented women who are home-bound now, but who expect to return to the world of work as soon as possible. And just as National Guard and military reserve units are made up of citizens who spend some of their time learning to be soldiers, so are the WR's forward-looking wives and mothers who spend some of their time learning to be career women.

You may be a WR member yourself, even if you never volunteered. According to a Labor Department study released last year, about a third of all wives with children between 3 and 5 are in the labor force. The proportion rises to half for those with school-age children. What's more, three out of five of today's working women are 35 or older. It's a rare woman these days who retires to rest in an empty nest.

WHY'S VARY. Women work to meet the rising cost of living, or because of what experts call "a climate of rising expectations." Women work for money and /or for personal fulfillment. Most working wives say they would want to continue working even if the family didn't need the money.

The new wife-style, then, clearly indicates a fairly standard pattern for women to settle into regular employment once the children are reasonably independent. If you're home today raising a family, you will probably be looking for a job a few years from now. Your rewards, psychic and financial, will certainly be greater if you look upon your years at home as "reserve years" to prepare for the future.

Use it or lose it. Whether you're a typist or a violinist, keep up whatever skills you have, even if it is difficult to schedule regular practice periods.

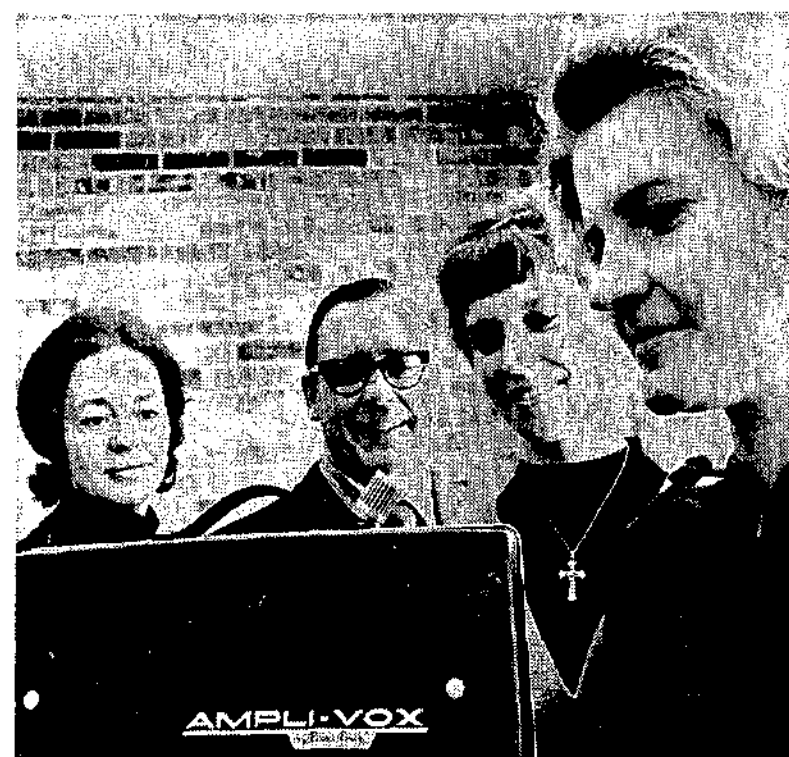

Read and heed. Read trade journals and professional publications to keep up in your field. Changes seem to come a little faster every year.

CONTACTS AND CONTRACTS. Keep in touch with friends where you worked. Keep up your membership and active participation in clubs, unions or professional organizations in your field. And remember that going back to school brings you not only new knowledge, but also a host of valuable contacts with peers and professors who can help you find a job when you're ready.

Learn. If you can't enroll for regular college courses, take a correspondence course or one on television. Discipline yourself to your own program of continuing education to help you succeed, either in the career you left behind you or in a brand new one that you're aiming for now.

Earn. Substitute for someone who's sick or on vacation. Take a temporary job at an extra busy season, such as Christmas in a department store. Freelance a typing or writing assignment at home. Sign up for volunteer work that ties in with your special interests. Whatever your field and however young your children, there's probably some way you can participate on a part-time or temporary basis.

THE DAY MAY COME when business and/or government will establish formal reserve training programs for women employees temporarily on leave to raise a family. Meanwhile, you have to recruit yourself and use the "reserve years" to build for the future when you'll be ready to return to work and all the satisfactions of an active professional career.

We're devotees of seafood in any form and this dish with scallops is a big favorite. Place 2 lbs. fresh scallops in a large heatproof baking dish. Then blend 1/2 cup Rhine wine with 2 tsp. lemon juice, 2 tsp. chopped shallots, 2 tsp. chopped parsley, 1/2 tsp. chopped fresh dill, 1/2 tsp. salt and 1/4 tsp. ground pepper. Pour this over the scallops and drizzle 1/2 cup light cream over the whole thing. Sprinkle with 1/4 cup bread crumbs and dot with 2 tsp. butter. Bake in a 450 degree oven for 15 minutes. Remove and place under the broiler just long enough to brown. This should serve six but four didn't leave a crumb.

Dear Dorothy: How can I clean my white vinyl raincoat? Have had no luck with soap and water.—Jill P.

There may be other ways but one of our correspondents sprinkled baking soda on a damp cloth and said it made her white plastic raincoat look sparkling white after it was rinsed and dried carefully. No, I don't have stock in the company. We just report the various uses of the product and I'm constantly amazed by its versatility and effectiveness.

Dear Dorothy: I like the protection provided soft drinks in cans, but was annoyed because the carbonation disappeared when I didn't use up the whole can at one time. My brain started to function one day. Now I just pour what I don't want in a pint jar. With the cover screwed on, it stays perfect until I want it.—Candy R.

Dear Dorothy: I worried about how to treat certain windows because of adjacent radiators. When I read that fiberglass curtains are fire-safe, my problem

Demo Women Celebrate Club's 5th Anniversary

Celebrating its fifth year of renewed activity, the Democratic Women's Club of Des Plaines will hold a potluck dinner tomorrow in Oehler's Community Room, starting at 6:30 p.m. Mrs. Ruth Pelinski, president, will act as hostess.

Among the expected guests will be past presidents of the club: Jan Arrigo, Evelyn Gauger and Priscilla Berg. Also attending will be Margaret (Peg) Barry, candidate for delegate to the Democratic National Nominating Convention for the 10th Congressional District. A resident of Des Plaines, Mrs. Barry has been an active member of the Democratic Women's Club of Des Plaines since 1967. A board member of the club, she now serves as political adviser to the group.

THE PUBLIC IS welcome at the anniversary dinner. Any additional information may be obtained by calling membership chairman Evelyn Gauger at 299-3677.

In 1967 the club was reorganized by a group of Des Plaines women with the purpose of enlightening interested voters on vital issues and to help update their political knowledge. Mrs. Ruby Fletcher was elected president the first year. In the following years, the group focused not only on issues involving the Democratic party but also on local issues.

While the club is non-partisan in local issues, the members actively support the Democratic candidate of their choice on the state and federal levels because of their belief in the two-party system, explained Mrs. Celinski. Members have encouraged friends and neighbors to register and to vote in primaries. They have taken surveys to determine the political climate of the area and have participated in civic functions.

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

THERE'S A HUNGRY grey squirrel screaming profanities at me through my office window.

There are some small warblers and a pair of cardinals at the bird feeder.

The ice is breaking up fast on the lake and the coots are moving in. Before long they'll be stumbling around the lawn on long, gawky legs that are made for swimming, digging at the crab grass roots and the loose corn the kids put out for them.

All of the oak trees need pruning; there's a representative stock of vintage 1971 leaves on the grass. Although I left the utility shed unlocked all winter, no one item, lawn mower, rake, shovel... nothing was stolen. Next year I'm putting up signs.

As I am sure, it is at your house, spring presents all of the above and some substantially more important duties that require your attention. I use a Spring Check-List to be sure that everything gets done. And I present it here in case you'd like to use it as a guide to prepare your home for the summer.

Items are listed in order of importance.

1. Make up Spring Check-List for wife. (Personal note: She'll need a scraper for the peeling paint on the south side of the house.)

2. Buy a new 12 volt battery for the boat. (Note: Each fall I take the order of the two batteries in the boat and put it in one of the cars. The new battery, each spring, is then used on the electric fishing motor and the year-old battery goes back to the outboard position.)

3. Buy new batteries for the Lowrance fish locator.

4. Tune the Chrysler outboards and give the boat a general cleaning out. Double-check the bow-mount for the electric motor; test the stringing in the landing net; test the steering cables and lubricate the pulleys.

5. Edit carefully Spring Check-List presented to me by wife.

6. Remove all of last year's line from all reels and rewind with fresh line, as follows: 2 lb. mono on ultra-light; 6 lb. mono on spinning reels; 12 lb. braided on revolving spool worm reels; 17 lb. No-Bo on spooning reels; 30 lb. mono on coho trolling reels.

7. Use emery paper to smooth all the guides on all the rods where any burrs or rough edges might cut the line. Lightly lubricate all reels and all rod ferrules. Glue down loose rod-wrappings.

8. Sharpen blade on wife's lawn mower.

9. Get a new pair of polarized sunglasses. (Note: Try the Foster-Grant "flip-ups" that flip the lenses up so you can see in shadows.)

10. See how what's-her-name is doing on her Check-List and then start on the tackle box:

Tackle-Box Check-List
1. Dump out everything on the floor. It's best to use the living room carpet, so as not to chip painted lures.

2. Separate the lures into groups, as follows:

a) Caught most of my fish on this type.
b) Caught several fish on this type.
c) Caught a few fish on this type.
d) Caught no fish on this type.

3. Throw away all lures in Group "d." Don't give them to the kids for their tackle boxes, since they probably won't have any better success with them than you did. If you didn't catch any fish on a particular type lure, then either you didn't try it, you don't know how to use it, or you were sold a pup.

4. Thoroughly scrub, with soap and water, the inside of the tackle box. If you have cork liners in the box, daub them dry. Be certain you rinse all the soap out of the box, or you'll have soap-flavored lures all summer long and wonder why you can't catch fish. The kitchen sink is the best place for this job.

5. Check all bottles of pork rind and pork baits. If the brine in the bottle still covers the baits, they will be all right for this season. Carefully check the caps on the bottles to be sure the brine has not corroded them. If they leak, they'll ruin everything in the tackle box.

6. Back to the lures that you now have spread carefully in groups around the living room. All the plastic worms that you did not keep in a plastic bag or plastic worm box, throw away. They are so impregnated with a variety of "flavors" and odors, they're likely to repel fish. Touch up the finish on all the lures. Particularly on white and partially white lures, repaint. Take a piece of monofilament and check all the slip-sinkers you used last year. If any of them bind and don't slide freely on the line, throw them away.

Check all feather, rubber and hair jigs. If they weren't cleaned last fall and are matted now, chances are you won't be able to restore their flair. Throw them away. Check all spinner-baits to be sure the spinners turn freely. If the spinner blades are corroded, detach and throw away the bad blade and replace with a snap-on spinner blade.

7. Hooks. Number 3 hooks measure about an inch from the bottom of the bend to the eye. You can sharpen, rather than replace, if they are dull or rusted. All your extra loose hooks should be "strung," according to size, on safety pins.

8. Now, replace all the lures in the tackle box, neatly, and take a picture of it, because you may never see it in such remarkably good order again until next spring.

9. Remind wife it's getting too dark for her to do a first class paint-scrapping job and to come on in the house.

10. If you are not an ice-fisherman, then you are probably carrying around an expired fishing license. Buy a new one immediately. You can't go fishing tonight, but you'll sleep better knowing that you're ready.

The most important thing to remember about this annual spring home cleanup, is that you have to be completely ruthless in your decisions.

For example, no matter how attractive a lure may be to you, if it doesn't take fish for you, it has no value and only takes up space in your tackle box. Last year's line may seem okay, but it has been wound tightly on the reel all winter. If you don't want to replace the entire reel, at least reel off the first 10 or 12 feet and throw it away.

That "old-favorite" reel may be an old friend, but if it isn't working perfectly, especially in the drag, it will have to go. The reel may not be all there is to fishing, but it can stop your casts, shorten them, or lose fish for you faster than any other single item.

And finally, in the ruthless department, you may have to check back more often than you would like, to be certain that she's keeping current on her check-list. But a firm, positive approach is the only way to get things done.

HOCKEY TALK. Tony Esposito of the Chicago Black Hawks, an all-star goalie and a key figure as the Hawks begin their bid for the elusive Stanley Cup, speaks to another large turnout Monday afternoon at the fifth Paddock Publications Pro Sports Club Luncheon at Old Orchard Country Club. Also recognized at the luncheon were Tom Porter, who coached Hersey to the state wrestling championship, and Dick Redlinger, who guided Conant to a Sweet Sixteen berth in basketball.

Doyle's-Striking Charges Into Contending Position

A race in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League is developing after all.

Just when it seemed that Des Plaines Lanes was going to make a runaway out of it, the turn of events at Beverly Lanes Saturday turned the PWCTL into a highly contested race.

While Des Plaines Lanes was losing to Franklin-Weber 5-2, second place Doyle's-Striking Lanes blanked Morton Pontiac 7-0 to close the margin to three points.

Franklin-Weber Pontiac is in third place, three points behind the leaders, and L-Tran Engineering is in fourth by the benefit of a 7-0 win over Thunderbird Country Club. Arlington Park Towers jumped up two notches in the standings with a 7-0 triumph over Koffo Office Supplies.

Balanced scoring enabled Doyle's-Striking Lanes to down Morton Pontiac. Lu Schoenberger had a 508 series with 216 and 211 games and Bette Breille had a 597 with a 214 game. Eunice Whitmore contributed a 209 game, Alice Schroder a 210 and Judy Croston a 201.

For Morton Pontiac, Marge Carlson had a 217 game and Mary Yurs a 215. Franklin-Weber was paced by a 603 series by Lee Winski with 187, 215 and 201 scores. Marge Lindenberg had a 212 game. The leading pin getter for Des Plaines Lanes was Winnie Lohse with a 545 series. Nancy Porcellus turned in a 556 series.

Pleickhardt rolled a 210 game and Benjie Bartlett a 205. Jean Ladd led Thunderbird Country Club with a 546 series.

Arlington Park Towers had its best series of the season, a 277. Dee Kachelmuss turned in a 611 series with 172, 225 and 214 games and Mary Lou Kolb registered a 607 series with 234, 214 and 159 games. Donna Lohse contributed a 203 game and Peggy Wales a 200.

International Track Meet Slated In Area

Prospect High will be host to the first annual Coca Cola International High School Track and Field Championships Saturday, June 10 at 6 p.m., giving area fans a chance to marvel at some of the finest prep tracksters in the world.

The meet is an outgrowth of the highly-successful National High School meet that has been hosted, directed and officiated the past three years by members of the Northern Illinois Track and Cross Country Coaches Association of suburban Chicago.

This new event, like a Junior Olympics, should be first-class in every respect — and better than ever with the addition of international high school-age competition. The new site is the excellent eight-lane U.S. Royal track at Prospect with seating for 10,000 spectators and lighting for an evening schedule of events.

Housing, meals and a banquet

after the meet — headlined by a world-famous track personality — will all be provided for the athletes at the Holiday Inn in Mount Prospect. In addition, a coaches' smoker Friday evening and a Friday-Saturday International coaching clinic offering two hours' graduate credit and featuring outstanding coaches from America and abroad will be held in conjunction with the meet.

Additional information can be obtained by contacting one of the following four coaches:

Joe Newton, York High, Elmhurst, 60126, 834-9400 (school) or 654-3240 (home).

Bruce Samore, Arlington High, 253-0200, ext. 63 (school) or 358-3567 (home).
